This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

To My Kinsfolk: —

The Genealogical and Historical Account of Wm. Locke, of Woburn, our common Ancestor, and his descendants, has been brought to a close. Commenced only for my own satisfaction, and then expecting that it could be completed in as many months as it has taken years, it has at length extended to a large volume. State, County, Town, Church, and Family Records, have been carefully examined; old Deeds and Wills have been put under contribution; and the memories "of the oldest inhabitants" have been taxed for materials to elucidate the History of our race. "Tradition," a very uncertain witness, has been called into aid, but not trusted, unless corroborated by other evidence. What I have stated without any qualification (a) may be taken as true; a suitable allowance being made for errors, in records, (which are not always to be depended upon,) and errors incident to the transcribing names and dates, which are frequently made by the most careful; and some of this kind may undoubtedly with truth be charged upon me.

I do not offer you a history of high dignitaries in Church or State, or valiant warriors who have won renown at the head of armies. Mine is a history of the yeomanry and artisan; of those who have earned their bread on their farms and in their workshops "by the sweat of their brow;" and if they performed well their part in their station,—however humble it may have been,—they are not to be despised,—but honored. The husbandman with striped frock and thick shoes, in his cornfield, the mechanic with his apron at the anvil, are often "nature's noblemen;" while he who wears a fine coat is sometimes little more than a coxcomb or a pedant.

I have labored to rescue from oblivion the names of those who have gone before us, to record their virtues, and to place landmarks where they resided; that those of us who are now on the stage, and those that come after us, may answer the question—"Who was your father?"

Too many, I fear, who are bound up in time present, care but little about the past—or the future I might perhaps add. I have seen some such; but, as has been well said by an eminent writer,—

"There is a feeling in all, save the obtusest of us, that will be heard in spite of utilitarianism, and we shall invariably find, that whatever tends to connect us in idea with the past or the future, tends also, and in a greater degree than any thing else, save revealed religion, to make us conscious that we belong not wholly to earth or to the present, but are portions of immortality. He who narrows his thoughts and wishes to the time being, may certainly reap some practical advantage from the limited application of his faculties, but it will be at the expense of higher and better feelings. The more we free our minds from the idea of time and space, the nearer we approach to the understanding of the Infinite, — to that which has neither beginning nor end, — and nothing does this so effectually, as the abstracting ourselves from the present in the consideration of the past."

Daniel Webster, (he needs no titles of honor to mark his rank, for he was the embodiment of all that was great in man,) said, — "It is a noble faculty of our nature which enables us to connect our thoughts, our sympathies, and our happiness, with what is distant in place or time; and looking before and after, to hold communion at once with our ancestors and our posterity. There is also a moral and philosophical respect for our ancestors, which elevates the character and improves the heart. Next to the sense of religious duty and moral feeling, I hardly know what should bear with stronger obligation on a liberal and enlightened mind, than a consciousness of an alliance with excellence which is departed; and a consciousness, too, that in its acts and conduct, and even in its sentiments and thoughts, it may be actively operating on the happiness of those that come after it."

There are traits of character that are undoubtedly transmitted from generation to generation through centuries, and well may we suppose that Augur's prayer may have been that adopted by the Lockes; "Give me neither poverty nor riches." Certainly I have found none that were rich, and but few that were poor. They have been just "well to do." Intelligent for the times; they were industrious and frugal; tillers of the soil; for though so many of them have resided within a few miles of the city, for more than two hundred years, but few have been, until recently, attracted to the "mart of commerce;" and fewer still "have gone down to the sea in ships;" and in this last particular have differed from their namesakes in England, who, in the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries, were travellers and navigators. It might, perhaps, be useful to point out the different peculiarities and traits of different branches, but it would occupy space that may be used for other purposes as important. I will observe, however, that some of the branches through three or four generations have exhibited a strong taste for intellectual pursuits, and have, amidst many obstacles, obtained good educations; and many, both male and female, have been devoted and eminent teachers.

I have deviated in the plan of this work from others of a similar character, by following down to the present time, and including, in the Genealogy, those families that are descended through the females. I saw no reason why the daughters were not as important a part of the family as the sons. In so doing I enlarge the field of exploration, and gather into the fold families who, though bearing other names, are a part of us, and should be with us; and by this plan the work will have a more general character, and excite an interest more extensive. As evidence that this is true, I have only to say, that I have met with more encouragement, have received more assistance, and found more patrons, from this class than from the other.

The first part of the work is confined, exclusively, to the descendants of WILLIAM LOCKE of Woburn, and does not include any who are descended from John Locke of Hampton, N. H. (now Rye); or the descendants of John or Joseph Locke, (who came from Scotland!) and settled at Block Island, R. I.; nor of another family that settled in Lancaster Co. Pa., branches of which are to be found in Maryland, Virginia, the Carolinas and Kentucky. There are several other families of the name, whose ancestors are said to have emigrated to America within the last seventy-five or one hundred years. In Vermont is a family which now bears the name of Locke, whose ancestor came from Germany, and was then called Oberlock or Overlock, and is probably a branch of the same family that originally settled in Maine about 1750, and whose descendants now retain their German name. B. F. Locke of "Ten Mile Stand," Tennessee, says, his "father Thomas was born in London, and came to America before the American Revolution." I have never discovered but one intermarriage between any of these families and our own.

A general account of some of these different families will be found in the Appendix.

As to the name (a) it has ever, both in England and America, been spelled with and without the final e. I have added the e without regarding the manner in which particular individuals or families have spelled the name. It is now the more general spelling.

The APPENDIX contains a general history of some families bearing other names, from their earliest known origin in America, down to the time that intermarriages took place between those families and the Lockes. The Munroes, Tolmans, Fessendens, Pierces, and Clarkes will be found there.

Also several old wills, and other early documents and biographical sketches of several of our family.

Another article will also be found there, which may attract the curiosity of some in a greater degree than things more modern, viz.: The History of the Lockes in England; the principal part of which I most fortunately found in the "Gentleman's Magazine," a very learned periodical work that has been published in England for more than one hundred and thirty years, and is still continued.

Many additions have, however, been made to the history there given, which have been gathered from other sources in England, at a great expense. This history dates back to 1461, with slight notices of some of the name who lived in the reign of King Alfred in the ninth century.

I have but little doubt that one name only is wanting, that of the grandfather of our emigrant Ancestor, to connect William Locke with the family whose pedigree is given on pp. 358–359; where I have said that his grandfather was probably Christopher of Pilrow, in Somersetshire; but the works I have consulted in relation to this family, as well as to others, show such discrepancies that I cannot place full reliance upon the statements they contain. In two standard English books, the name of Sir William Locke himself is erroneously printed Leake.

Seven years of labor are over, they have brought some perplexities and more pleasures. I hope the time spent has not been entirely in vain, and trust my kindred, scattered through the land, will find some satisfaction in following through successive generations, back to that humble dwelling in the ancient town of Woburn, that orphan boy who landed on these shores in 1635, — who was then and there the architect of his own fortune, who there erected the dwelling now standing, (see Frontispiece) beside which still ripples the same brook in which he bathed his weary limbs, and which yet bears his name; and near by the majestic elms, which perhaps he planted, spread their ancient arms and give a cooling shade.

That ancient dwelling, — humble as it is, — moss-grown and decayed, from whose altar daily ascended the prayers of that venerable patriarch, and beneath whose roof he said, — "I give my soule to God that gave it me, and my body to the earth," that is the Mecca of my dreams, and I would give more to call it mine, with its meadows and its woods, than for the proudest palace in the land.

Boston, January 1, 1853.

NOTE. — It would take too much time and room to give the names of all those who have rendered me valuable assistance in the preparation of this work; but I should do injustice to a few individuals if I did not publicly thank them; and first, Dr. Benjamin Cutter, M. D., of Woburn, without whose aid the work would have been more deficient, and whose accuracy in such matters is as much to be relied on as is his skill as a Surgeon and Physician. Jotham Meriam, Esq., of Oxford, is entitled to many thanks for his untiring perseverance in procuring records, of many families, besides the Meriams; and to many others let me say, I thank you for your contributions. There are a few who, if they had their deserts, would be pointed out for their ignorance, or total indifference, but I will spare them. Thank Heaven they are not numerous.

EXPLANATION OF THE PLAN.

The first column of figures is the consecutive numbering carried through the book of every child; figures like these, 50 before the head of each family denote the number of the Paragraph or Family: figures immediately succeeding the first name in each Paragraph in brackets thus, [50] refer back to the individual in the consecutive numbering, where that individual is first named; figures like these 453 at the extreme right hand of the page, refer forward to the paragraph where a further notice of the preceding individual is to be found with his children; figures in brackets thus [1070] after a name other than the first name in each Paragraph, refer to the place either backward or forward, where that individual is found in the first column; figures preceding the names of children in the line are a continuation of the consecutive numbering; Roman numerals VI. standing before Chil. denote the generation to which those children belong.

For example: — On page 16, in the first column, you find at fig. 9, James Locke, who married Sarah Cutter; fig. 7, at the end of the line, refers to Paragraph 7 on page 21, where and on the next page you find an account of James Locke, and the births of his children. Again, on page 175, you will find Paragraph 453 and "Jeremiah Pratt [1059] m. Celia Fitts [1070];" that is, Jeremiah Pratt, whose birth will be found at No. 1059 on page 83, in the first col. married Celia Fitts, whose birth will be found at No. 1070, on page 84 in the first col.

Where a woman's name is enclosed in parenthesis thus: Jonathan Locke Par. 97, m. Wid. Mary (Haven) Nichols, it shows that her maiden name was Mary Haven.

b. born; d. died; d. yg. died young; m. or md. married; mg. marriage; fa. father; mo. mother; gr. fa. grandfather; gr. gr. fa. great grandfather; s. son; dau. daughter; chil. children; wf. wife; wid. widow; a. aged; prob. probable; note of ? interrogation denote that there is some doubt about what it preceded.

The names of a few towns which are often repeated are sometimes abbreviated, viz. Wob. Woburn; Lex. Lexington; Camb. Cambridge; West Camb. West Cambridge; Chsa. Charlestown; Fitz'm. Fitzwilliam; Fram. Framingham; and some others where the name had been given at length in the context.

Where a town is named, but no State, Massachusetts must be understood, unless the same town has been before named with another State in the context, excepting that in the history of the descendants of John Locke of Hampton, N. H. where, if no State is given, New Hampshire must be understood.

OLD AND NEW STYLE.

The practice of double dating between January 1 and March 25th, thus 1675–6, or 167⅚ until the introduction of New Style in 1752, was generally common, and that practice I have followed where dates were thus given. Before 1752, the civil year began March 25, which was called the 1st month, April, the 2d, &c. and dates were written thus: 20. 10. 1654–5. or 20: (10): 1654–5; that is, the 20th of the 10th month, 1654, or Jany. 30, 1665. To change O. S. into N. S. the 1st month must be called the 3d, adding 10 days to all dates between 1582 and 1699 inclusive, and 11 days after, 1699.

WILLIAM LOCKE.

THE earliest notice that I have found of our Patriarch WILLIAM LOCKE, is derived from "Savage's Gleanings" in the Massachusetts Historical Society's Collections, 3d series, vol. 8, p. 253. The information there given was discovered by the Hon. James Savage, to whom the public is largely indebted for his long and patient researches in pursuit of materials wherewith to elucidate the early history of New England and its inhabitants. The book from which it was taken, was a manuscript volume in folio, at the "Augmentation Office" in Westminster Hall, London, which was found in 1842; "and may not have been seen by more than two or three persons for two hundred years." "It contains the names of persons permitted to embark at the port of London after Christmas 1634, to the same period in the following year, kept generally in regular succession."

The religious and political persecutions in the reign of James I. which drove the Puritans from the kingdom in 1620, and forced them "for conscience sake," to find a new home in the bleak and almost unknown shores of New England, continued to operate for a long period, and emigration increased from year to year. Many obstacles were interposed in the reign of Charles I.; and by the influence of Archbishop Laud, orders of council were passed, compelling those who wished to emigrate to take the oath of supremacy and allegiance. It was the exercise of this arbitrary power which has furnished us with the means of determining at what period many of our forefathers left England; and in many cases the places from whence they came, and their ages and occupations; as the certificate of the administration of the oath was recorded in the office, and has been preserved for more than two centuries.

The record relating to William Locke, is as follows: —

"22 Mar. 1634, theis underwritten names are to be embarqued in the Planter, Nic. Trarice, master, bound for New England, per certificate from Stepney parish, & attestacon from Sir Tho. Jay & Mr. Simon Muskett, two Justices of the Peace; the men have taken the oath of supremacy and allegiance.

William Lock, 6,	Judith Phippin, 16,
Jo. Maddox, a sawyer, 43,
James Launin, glover, 26.

During the month of April following, several more lists of persons, (b) that embarqued in the Planter, are recorded; some of whom came from Suffolk. Stepney Parish, anciently written Stebunheath, is one of the largest subdivisions of London, in the County of Middlesex. It was formerly a place of more consequence than at present. As the certificate in which the name of William Locke appears was given at that place, I instituted a search in the Parish Records there, to see if anything could be found relating to him or his family, or that of Nicholas Davies, to whose family he seems to have been attached at the time of his emigration. I was so far successful as to find a record of the following baptism —

"1628, William, son of William Lock, mariner, and Elisabeth his wife, 20, Dec. 1628, seven days old," and, subsequently —

"Buried Elisabeth, wife of William Lock, mariner, 27 June, 1631."

The identity of our William with the above record, is proved by his age as given in the certificate; by the age he gave of himself in Court, in several depositions that are to be found on the Court files in our County of Middlesex, and also by his known age at the time of his decease, which took place June 16, 1720, a. 91 years and 6 mos.

What causes operated to induce him, a boy of six years of age, to leave his native land and come to these unknown regions, was a question that did not admit of a satisfactory answer. Davies was a man of property — with a wife, who was eight years his senior, and a son of thirteen. He settled at Charlestown, and when Woburn was incorporated, and set off from Charlestown, in 1642, Davies was one of those appointed "to sign town orders." His wife d. 23, 3, 1643, and on the 12, 5, 1643, he married Elizabeth Isaacke of Woburn, less than two months after the death of his first wife; — in 1648 he removed to Charlestown, and the same year sold his house and land at Woburn to William Reed, of "Muddie River, (Brookline,) and in 1660–61, his name with that of Nicholas Trarice is signed to a paper recorded at Cambridge, relating to some land at Woburn; but the contents of the paper did not show his residence at that time. Here I lost all trace of him; his death could not be found nor any will, nor the settlement of his estates, either in Suffolk or Middlesex. I could trace no connection or association between him and our patriarch after they came to America; but I could not drive the impression from my mind that there was a relation between William Locke and Davies, or his wife, and that having probably lost his parents, he had found a home with his relatives and followed their fortunes to the New World. Proof was wanting and not to be found. But after years of research, I am rewarded at the "eleventh hour," by the discovery of the will of Nicholas Davies, by my friend Mr. T. B. Wyman, Jr., at the County Office in Alfred, York Co., Me., in which will, William Locke is recognised as "my cossen," which according to the mode of speech of that day may mean either cousin or nephew. In the present case, considering the difference in the age of the two persons, it may, I think, with good reason be understood to mean nephew. Davies' will is dated York, Ap. 27, 1667, and was Probated Mh. 12, 1669–70. He makes a bequest to his "cossin" Matthew Barnard and his wife of Boston — and "I give unto my cossen William Locke of Owborne two silver spoones and five shillings in silver." Other bequests are made; to daughter Astine (? Austin) and her two children Mary and Sarah, £3; to Mary Elizabeth and Mehitable Dod, 20 shillings each, after the decease of his wife Elizabeth. He appoints his friends Capt. John Davess and Peter Weare overseers.

As the Barnards (a) and Dodds were connected with the Lockes in England, I hope that before this work is through the press, I may be enabled to complete the chain, that will connect our family with the family in England, whose genealogy I have, extending back several centuries before the emigration, and which will be found as before stated in the Appendix, K.

Where or with whom WILLIAM LOCKE resided during his minority is unknown. On the 25th Dec., 1655, he was married to MARY CLARKE, then of Woburn, the dau. of William and Margery Clarke. Mr. Clarke had been a resident in Watertown, and there his dau. was born 10, 10, 1640, (Dec. 20, 1640,) by which it will be seen that she was only fifteen years and seven days old at the time of her marriage; a rather early age to begin a matrimonial life; but events proved that young as she was, she was capable of raising a large family of children, whom, at her death, she left respectable members of society, and enjoying the comforts of life. She d. at the good old age of 74 years and 7 months, July 18, 1715.

Some account of her father will be found in the Appendix, C.

An examination of the Records at the Registry of Deeds Office, in Middlesex Co. — of the Woburn Town Records, and of many original deeds now in my possession, shows that if our Patriarch was an Orphan boy, he knew how to take care of himself; for he soon became owner of real estate, and eventually was a man of property. His first purchase was about 1650, as appears by the following document which is recorded at the Registry of Deeds, at Cambridge. L. 4, p. 229.

"John Johnson aged about 35 years or there abouts and William Johnson aged about 40 saith that William Locke bought of Goodmn Persons, [or Parsons] of Boston all his land he had in Woburn which was two lots that was formerly John Sybley's and Benjamen Hubbards wh' sale was about 20 years agoe and he paid him for it in clapbord bolts to the said Persons content, and further more say, the said Locke hath had possession of this land by himself, and his assigns ever since. (a) (Signed) WILLIAM JOHNSON, JOHN JOHNSON."

This Document was sworn to before Richard Russell & Thomas Danforth assistants 13, 8, 1671.

In 1654, There was granted by the Proprietors of Woburn, to William Locke and nine others land in "Great Meadow;" and the same year there was granted to him one parcel of meadow land near Cambridge line, called Pond Meadow.

In 1673, Mh. 29 — there was granted in the 3d Range at "Maple Meadow," beginning at "Cedar Swamp," to William Locke 3 acres, and William Clarke 4 acres. The same year a great division of common lands was made to different individuals, by lot, in proportion "according to their persons and effects," at which time Mr. Locke had as his share 72½ acres, probably at "Maple Meadow."

In 1677 William Locke had 35 acres near Billerica line, and the same year he was allowed 5 acres more for "badnes of lots;" (b) and the same year was granted to William Locke and George Brush a "small piece of made meadow that lyeth on the south side of Maple Meadow between the meadow they bought of Joseph Carter and the meadow that is Robert Snows;" — in 1680 there was laid out "to William Locke near Cambridge line and —— Meadow 17 acres on the account of swamp bottom right, 8 acres of it bought of James Simonds and the other on his own account." Also half an acre in the Mill pond at Pine Meadow. "The 17 acres above said beginneth at a stake in Cambridge line on the Northwest side of a little swamp and runneth Southerly on the same line South Eastward, then turneth by marked trees through the South end of a little pond to the side of the pine hill, thence by side of said hill bearing eastward to the line of the lotts and along that line to Pond Meadow."

"Daniell Ealiars" [Elder? Elden?] of Dorchester by deed dated the 10, 11, 1662, quit claimed to William Locke all his right, title, &c. "to two parcels of meadow land containing five acres more or less, the one in Bull Medow and the other in Spring Medow lately belonging to Richard Houlden."

Oct. 27, 1672, William Locke and Samuel Bloggett bought of William Johnson of Charlestown 37 acres of land in Woburn, formerly given him by Charlestown, adjoining land of Capt. Edward Johnson S. and of the land of Richard Nevers W., James Hayden E., and Woburn Common Elsewhere; — in 1674, he bought of Isaac Brooks "too" wood lots, "by estimation four acres," one near Cambridge line in the 8th division, bounded by William Locke E., John Carter W., Matthew Johnson S., and John Carter N.; the other parcel in the same division, bounded by John Carter S., and William Locke N.; — in 1676, he acquired by "exchange," of William Johnson "carpenter" sixteen acres in the 8th division, bounded by the woodland of John Johnson S., and of Matthew Johnson N.

In 1678, he bought of Joseph Carter "Cuyor" for twelve [and a] half pounds of silver "a parcell" of land "at a place commonly called Maple Meadow on the South Side of the River, bounded by the meadow of said Jos. Carter E., the woodlands of the third division S., the River N., and the meadow of William Lock and George Brush W.;" — in 1679, he purchased of John Johnson "carpenter" for "tenn" pounds meadow land estimated to contain three acres in the Town of Woburne "at a place commonly called Bull Medow," "bounded by Cambridge line W., and the meadow land of William Clarke Est., and the common lands of this town elsewhere. Also one parcel of medow land lying at a place commonly called Spring Medow, bounded by the medow of Richard Poast N., and the common lands of this town elsewhere."

In 1684, he purchased of Joseph Simonds of Cambridge, "carpenter," for seven pounds, land in Cambridge, "lying between Capt. Cookes farm and Shaws farme," by estimation twenty acres, "bounded by the land of Joseph Simonds Westerly and Goodwif brouns Lot East: Widow Meriams lott Northwest Capt. Cooks farm Southwardly." This he gave to his son Joseph in 1695.

In 1693, he purchased of John Johnson for six pounds "one parcel of upland and meadow at a place called Waterham," in Woburn "being part of allott formerly given by the Towne of Charlestowne To Cap. Edward Johnson and from him to his grandchild William Johnson son of John Johnson aforesaid bounded Westerly by the brook coming from the ould Sawmill and South by the land of the said John Johnson North by the land of William Locke Senr."

In 1707, he bought of William Cutter of Cambridge for £25, a tract of land in Cambridge "being part of ye farme commonly known by the name of Capt. Cooks alias Rolfs farme containing twenty five acres" "bounded Northerly upon ye line between Cambridge and Woburn adjoining upon said Lockes land Southerly upon sd. Cutters land Westerly and Easterly upon the land of William Johnson of Woburn."

In 1710, William Locke, and his son Ebenezer, acquired by exchange with Joseph Whitmore, "Tailor" two small lots of land which said Whitmore "purchased of his father in law Thomas Kendall" adjoining said William and Ebenezer's land, one lot bounded North-west thereby and by land of Samuel Johnson South-west, South-east by Thomas Kendall's land "at a place called Corner Hedge" North-east by land "formerly belonging to Thomas Gardner now under the improvement of Samuel Whitmore;" the other lot being in the same vicinity and bounded by the same parties.

He undoubtedly owned other land, as the purchases and grants enumerated do not include land that he gave several of his sons, but I do not find any particular description thereof.

I have been thus particular in the notice of his possessions for three reasons; first, for the purpose of showing that he was something of a landholder; second, to show where his lands were by noticing the persons of whom he purchased and by whose lands they were bounded; and lastly, to revive those old local names, that seem to have been well nigh forgotten. How many persons can tell us where was "Pine Meadow," "Great Meadow," "Maple Meadow," "Corner Hedge," "Waterham," "Mineral Hill," "Mine Hill," "Copper-Mountain," "Settle Meadow," "Pond Meadow," "Cedar Swamp," "Beach Island," "Bull Meadow," "Hog Swamp," &c., names once well known and familiar to the old inhabitants of Woburn.

I do not find that he disposed of much of his estate, excepting by gift to his sons, whom, it appears by his will made in 1703, he had from time to time provided for. In 1697 he gave his son Ebenezer one third of his lands in Woburn, and one half of his house, in "consideration of love and natural affection and for divers other good causes and considerations." In 1699 he gave the same son one half of his estate, as follows. "For and in consideration of the love and good affection that I have unto my loving and dutiful son Ebenezer Locke as also in the consideration of £20, in money to me well and truly paid give unto said Ebenezer one moyety or one half part of all and singular ye rights titles and interests of housing and lands belonging to me within the limits and bounds of ye township of Woburne."

In 1703 he made his will — appointing Ebenezer his executor, giving him all his property, excepting one half of his personal estate which he gave to his wife, but requiring him to pay to the other children certain sums, and to provide for his mother as pointed out in the will. The provisions made for her were on a liberal scale. (See the will in full in the Appendix, A.) For the fulfilment of the conditions imposed by the will, Ebenezer gave his father a bond which is before me. This bond however was not given till April 13, 1709, and on the 15th of the same month he, William, gave a deed to Ebenezer of all his real estate of every kind and description within the bounds of Woburn.

I find no papers by which Ebenezer is to provide for his father and mother during the father's life, and there is no intimation that any such provision was made, and the presumption therefore is that he had personal estate undisposed of sufficient for their maintenance while he lived.

It appears by the foregoing, that a kind Providence had blessed him "in basket and in store," and that although he came to the wilderness a poor orphan boy, he was able to settle his large family of children comfortably in life; and at the age of 75 he could look forward to the end of his days, secure in the comforts that were necessary for him and his partner. As I said before, he had given to his sons William, John, Joseph, Samuel and James a goodly portion of his estate from time to time. John had also been provided for by his grandfather Clarke, with whom he "had been a liver many years," who had by his will, given him his real estate and other property, subject to a distribution to the children and wife of his grandfather.

But little is known of the personal character of Dea. Locke. He filled no high stations. He was an humble cultivator of the soil, or at most an artisan (a), capable of planning and erecting a comfortable dwelling for himself or his neighbors. He was one among a great class in every country, that we sometimes are apt to attempt to look down upon. But honest labor in every pursuit is honorable, and the husbandman and mechanic of New England are as much to be respected as any class in the community.

From an examination of the Town Records it appears that he bore a share in managing "town affairs," though his name does not appear quite as often as his "next neighbor" Capt. Edward Johnson, the then great man of Woburn, who has left his foot-prints behind him, both in prose and poetry. Dea. Locke was frequently on important committees, in relation to town lands, roads, &c.

In 1671, he was one of a committee of the town to settle the bounds between Ralph Reed's land and the highway leading to Shawsheene, also to lay out land to Samuel Bloggett near "Rag Rock" — 1675, 1676 and 1678 he was a "Surveyor of fences," 1677 was chosen Constable, at that day an office of some more respectability and responsibility than it has been in later days. He was also Constable in 1701, was chosen Selectman 1686 and 1696, and grand juror to the Supreme Court 1695. These are only a few of the times I find him noticed.

In his younger days he was unwilling to give his assent to the then prevalent notions that church membership was essential to the proper and correct performance of man's civil duties; and that the right of having a voice in the election of the rulers of the State must be preceded by the rights of church fellowship. In this notion he was not alone; — and he with some of his neighbors were charged with claiming a right of voting for Governor; and for which he and his neighbor William Simonds were summoned before the Court, and were fined. He paid part of the fine, but on the petition of Capt. Edward Johnson a part was remitted. Connected with the same complaint was the long contested question of infant baptism, which kept the churches in a turmoil for many years, and it is probable he was of the Anabaptist party at that time. But if so he doubtless altered his views, as he became a member of the Church, and for many years was one of its Deacons and main pillars. Unfortunately the old Church Records have been destroyed. "Concerning William, Senr., he was for many years a distinguished citizen and member of the Church of Woburn; I have in my hands, a paper, styled 'A Coppy of the Proposals of Woburn Church offered to Mr. John Fox, when on his probation among them June ye 3d, 1703.' These 'proposals,' are a declaration by six principal members of Woburn Church (in behalf, it may be of the rest of their brethren) of their adhesion, for substance to the Westminster Confession of Faith (or to that drawn up by the Synod at Boston 1679 – 80) and to the Cambridge Platform, and they are subscribed by William Johnson, Samuel Walker, Joseph Wright Senr., James Convers Senr., William Locke Senr., and James Convers Jun., all men of great respectability and distinction in their day." — Letter from Rev. S. Sewall.

The Bible, which belonged to him is in possession of the writer; it is in Black letter, and was undoubtedly printed before 1600. It has been handed down through successive generations, and was generously presented to me by Miss Nancy Locke of New Ipswich, N. H., together with several hundred papers, that belonged to Dea. Locke, and to his descendants; including, wills, deeds, bonds, &c., from which I have extracted much valuable information.

The house, probably built by, and which was occupied by him, (see Frontispiece) is now known as the "Fox House," and is situated about a mile and a half Westerly of Woburn Centre," on the road leading to Lexington, near the residence of Joseph Gardner, Esq., having the brook that runs from "Kendall's Pond" in its rear. The house stands on the Westerly side of the road, and the fruit and other trees in the garden, hide it almost entirely from the sight. The garden and some of the trees are evidently very ancient. This house and the surrounding lands descended to his son Ebenezer, and from the latter to his son Samuel. It was probably here that Samuel kept an Inn many years, until 1742, when he moved to Lancaster. Samuel sold the estate Oct. 21, 1741 to Samuel Wyman 3d for £900. It is described as bounded N. E on land of Samuel Wyman; S. E. on land of John Burt; S. W. on road from Cambridge to Billerica; Northerly to the most Easterly corner of Lieut. Samuel Kendall's orchard near said Locke's house; S. W. on said orchard to road aforesaid; N. W. on said road to said Locke's land; N. E. on land of Capt. Caleb Bloggett to the way to Samuel Wyman's barn, (and probably included the land where Mrs. Skinner's house stands,) containing sixty-five acres — several small lots of land were also conveyed at the same time. I am informed that Dea. Samuel Wyman gave this property to his son Joseph, who sold it to Col. Loammi Baldwin, Senior, by whom it was conveyed to Thomas Fox and his son the late Capt. William Fox, and is now owned by his heirs.

For the information of persons living at a distance, I subjoin a short notice of Woburn. It is situated 10 miles N. W. by N. of Boston in the County of Middlesex — and formerly was a part of Charlestown, and was called "Charlestown Village." It was first settled in 1640, and incorporated in 1642, and included what is now Burlington, a large portion of Winchester, and a portion of Wilmington. Burlington was incorporated in 1730 as a Precinct, and a church was gathered in 1735, but was not incorporated as a town until 1799. That part of Wilmington which was formerly a part of Woburn was called the "Land of Nod," and was the source of a long controversy between Charlestown, Woburn and several individuals who laid separate claims to it. [See Frothingham's History of Charlestown, p. 111.] Wilmington was incorporated 1730. Woburn undoubtedly took its name from Woburn in Bedfordshire, England, or from a Parish of that name in Buckinghamshire.

Lexington, which was the residence of three of the sons of William Locke, lies South-west and West of Woburn, and formerly called "Cambridge Farms" was incorporated in 1692 as a Precinct and as a town in 1713. William, Jr. who resided on land that was a part of Burlington, but is now in Lexington; Joseph and Samuel, who owned lands near the line of Burlington and Lexington, and Joseph having his house there, were settled within two miles of their father; James lived about two miles South, and John about a mile and a half North; Mary, who married Samuel Kendall, was only about a mile from the father; and Ebenezer resided on the homestead.

The patriarch had therefore all his children but Elizabeth, who married James Markham, in his immediate neighborhood; the parents of nearly all his sons and daughters in law also resided within the circle of a few miles; — all respectable members of society, with a goodly share of "this world's goods," what else save the blessing of Heaven could be wanted?

Having thus introduced our progenitor, let us trace his descendants in the succeeding pages.

1 Dea. WILLIAM LOCKE, Jr., [3] m. 1 SARAH WHITTMORE, May 29, 1683, dau. of Francis and Isabell (Park) Whittmore of Cambridge. She was b. Mh. 7, 1662, d. ——; he m. 2. ABIGAIL HAYWARD, June 8, 1698; who d. his wid. probably 1748 or 1749. He d. July 8, 1738, a. 79½.

He was owner of land in 1683, and as early as 1689 owned a "hous" in the Westerly part of Woburn. In 1683 the Town of Woburn granted him "four acres to be laid out near his own land" and Mh. 3, 1700, there was granted him "four acres of land where the top is his own near Cambridge line, he paying to the Selectmen for the town use two shillings in money for every acre, he not to obstruct any highway or watering place according to a former order of the town."

He was a Deacon in 1709 — was a Selectman 1703-4 and 1732; and held many other offices in town. In 1728 he was one of a committee "to treat with Mr. Edward Jackson in order to settling in Woburn," and to supply the pulpit; and the same year one of a committee "to go to the Rev. Mr. Fox and see if they can make things easy with him." His name often appears on committees appointed in relation to "town affairs."

He resided in the second precinct of Woburn, on land which was included in Burlington when that town was incorporated in 1799. After his decease, on the petition of Thomas Locke his gr. son, a part of the estate was set off to Lexington including the house, making a notch into the South-westerly line of Burlington. A portion of the estate is that now owned by the heirs of Hammond Locke. The original estate, a part at least, was given to Dea. William Jr., by Dea. William Senior, his father; and on the decease of the former in 1738, one half of the house and land was set off by the children to the widow for her use instead of a dower, by agreement; and at the same time the other half was divided between the children. Previous to this, in 1718, Dea. William had given his son Daniel several lots of land in Lexington and Woburn, and Francis another son at the same time conveyed to Daniel for £115 his "interest in the Mansion house" "where he (Francis) then lived," it being the Easterly end. This was probably a part of his father's house, that the father had before that time given him, including "a place for a tan yard" and "a convenient place for a tan house" and also several lots of land adjoining the father's estate. When his widow died I know not, nor how the property was settled; but his son William became owner of the house and homestead, in part at least, and there resided.

She was b. Dec. 23, 1658, and d. Feb. 23, 1720, a. 60; 2. he m. wid. MARY (WINN) WYMAN, Nov. 30, 1720, who was b. May 11, 1670. She was the wid. of Nathaniel Wyman, and dau. of Increase Winn, of Woburn, who was the first white child b. in Woburn.

He resided at Woburn. His gr. fa. William Clarke in his will says, "my grandson John Locke who has been a liver with me many years, to him I give all my housing and lands in the Towne of Woburne" and "all my other estate of houshold and cattell;" but his widow was to have the use of all his "housing and lands, houshold and other estate" during her life, excepting his "armes and implyments of weaving and his work hous the which" he "left in the hands of his grandchild" whom he made his executor, and he obligated him to pay to the other heirs their proportion of the value of the estate. Shortly after the death of Mr. C. his widow leased to her grandson all the estate. Mr. Clarke's homestead was near Burlington line, a little westerly of the present house of J. Johnson, Jr., where the remains of the cellar are now visible in the field between Mr. Johnson's house and the house of W. W. Colgate, near the pond. In 1693, John Locke sold John Walker, Jr. "Tailor," 9 acres near "Copper Mountaine," in exchange for 10 acres "at a place called Long Meadow;" in 1694, he sold Jacob Wyman 4 acres at "Maple Meadow," and in 1720, he sold to Nathaniel Kendall 22 acres for £80, at "Hog Swamp," bounded Southerly by Benjamin Simonds'; Westerly by road leading to James Proctor's; Northerly by Joseph Reed's; Easterly by said Reed and Locke; in 1718 he sold Timothy Reed, housewright, 4 acres at "Little Rock Meadow;" in 1734 he sold Timothy Winn 20 acres, bounded North and West on his own land, and elsewhere by land of Nathaniel Kendall, John Bruce and Ralph Reed. In 1714 he sold William Butler 32 acres laid out to William Clarke in the 4th range of great lots — bounded Easterly by John Mousal; Westerly by Theophilus Richardson; and Northerly and Southerly by the range lines. July 1750, he bought of Benjamin Wyman 30 acres, bounded Southerly on the highway; Westerly on land of Benjamin and James Simonds and Edward Walker; North by E. Walker; Southerly by Peter and Jacob Wyman; and Easterly by J. Wyman and the highway, with the buildings thereon. Compensation "550 pounds bills of credit." Aug. 1750, he sold his grandson John Locke, Jr. alias Kendall (a) for 264 pounds Lawful money and other considerations, 18 acres, part of his homestead with the buildings, bounded Easterly on the town road leading to the Meeting house; Southerly by the county road, Westerly by his own meadow, Northerly by his own land called Walker's field; and by Jacob Wyman's; — also 10 acres "called the old place," bounded Northerly by the county road; S. E. by Israel Reed's; Southerly by Thomas Reed's, and Westerly by said Reed's and Benjamin Simond's. Also 20 acres at "Hog Swamp," bounded Easterly by the town road, leading to the meeting house in the 2. Parish; Southerly by James Simonds; Westerly by Solomon Wood; Northerly by said Wood and heirs of Nathaniel Reed; and also all his "personal estate, excepting one cow and a heifer." His wf. relinquishes dower. Feb. 1750, he sold Benjamin Wyman 12 acres near "Mineral Hill," bounded N. and W. by Edward Walker, James Simonds, Jr. and Benjamin Simonds; S. by the land that was his homestead, and East by said Homestead and Jacob and Peter Wyman. And Nov. 25, 1751, it being the latest period I have found him named, he sold Nathan Wyman 4 acres at "Mine hill near Nathaniel Kendalls," bounded Easterly on the county road leading to Billerica; Southerly on the town road leading to Edward Walker's house; Westerly by John Bruce, and Northerly by "Mine Hill lot" and land of sd. Bruce.

Besides what he had from his gr. fa. Clarke, his father had given him "housing and lands," which by will he "confirmed unto him." He and his wife died I suppose at Lancaster, for in the journal of Capt. Abijah Wyman of that town, it is recorded "old Mr. John Locke and wife of Woburn died about Ap. 3, 1756," and I know not to whom this could apply but to them. At this time he would have been aged nearly 95.

He is frequently mentioned on the town records, — was surveyor of highways in 1698, constable in 1702, 1706 and 1708, — fence viewer in 1712, — tythingman, 1710, 1720 and 1725. He was sometimes styled weaver, at others husbandman.

I find that "a child of Joseph Locke, d. 1695;" "a son Mh. 30, 1706;" and "a child Ap. 7, 1707;" but no Christian names are given, and whether they were any of those whose names are given below, I cannot say.

His farm was principally at Cambridge Farms, now Lexington, and probably adjoined his bro. William's. Mh. 26, 1695, his father gave him 20 acres, at a place called "Cambridge ffarmes," containing, a mansion house, barn and "outhousing, orchard, fields," &c.; bounded by Capt. Cooks ffarme S. E., Joseph Simonds W., and "a lott that was Thomas Browns N."—Also eight acres of Woodland (so called,) that is the wood and timber, "not the soyle," bounded by Camb. town line, S. W., Thomas Kendall, N. W. and Capt. Carter's lott S. E., and by woodland of William Locke, Senr. N. E.—also four acres at "Bull Meadow," bounded by Camb. line S. W., William Clarke N. E., "and by the upland in all other places." In 1715 he bought of Thomas Mead, Execr. of his father Israel Mead, (prob. the brother and father of Locke's wf.) "one half of that whole messuage, or tenement lately in the possession of said Israel Mead," situated in Lex. for £82.10. In 1712 he sold Timothy Reed of Woburn, (prob his son in law) 5 acres of meadow near the house of sd. Reed, being a part of "Little Rock Meadow," bounded W. by sd. Reed, S. by John Locke, East by Eleazer Kendall, and West by Samuel Nevers. In 1717 he sold Robert Fiske "Weaver" of Lex. two acres in Lex;—in 1733 he sold his son Joseph for £200 "bills of credit," "and partly in consideration of £240, to be accounted towards his portion," 15 acres in Lex. bounded S. E. by the town way; S. W. by Dr. Fiske; N. W. by Daniel Tidd; N. by Joshua Simonds, and elsewhere by his own land. Also 10 acres bounded by his own land; and the W. half of his "Mansion house" and barn, and half of 12 acres in Woburn, bounded S. W. by Lex. line, and elsewhere by Samuel Kendall and Samuel Locke. In 1742 he sold Joseph for £60, and other considerations, half of 32½ acres in Woburn, bounded S. W. by "Bull Meadow;" Westerly and Northerly by Lex. line to Dea. George Reed's land; and Esty. by sd. Reed. In 1746 he sold his son Stephen half of 60 acres in Lex. and half of 32½ in Woburn. His house is supposed to have stood where the house of his gr. gr. gr. son William Locke now stands near the house of William Gibbs, Esq. It was taken down about 1830, the estate having been owned by his descendants to the present time. The land on which the house of Charles Locke (near William's) stands, was a part of the old farm. Amos and Reuben Locke, cousins, and gr. sons of Joseph, Senr. both resided at the old house.

(a) There is some doubt about these marriages; they were taken from the Boston Records under the dates given above. [See Nos. 23—28—30] But it is not certain that Mary, Elizabeth and Margaret Locke, whose marriages are there recorded were the daus. of Joseph above. I have found no other disposition of Joseph's daus. of these names; neither have I found the daus. of any other family of similar names, either in Boston or vicinity; and therefore have assumed that these were the daus. of Joseph. As to Elizabeth [28] there is a singular error. In the publishment she is called Elizabeth Cock, but the marriage is recorded Locke. No births of child. of Scotto and Russell have been found.

He resided in Wob. where the house of Horace Conn stands on Pleasant St. He probably died at Lancaster about 1749, at which time his will was proved at Worcester, and he is called, "of Lancaster formerly of Woburn." His father's mg. is recorded on the Wob. Records Francis Kendall, alias Miles, and the tradition is that he emigrated without the knowledge of his family, and to avoid discovery altered his name. I do not understand which was said to be his true name, Kendall or Miles, but suppose the former. He had a brother Thomas, who resided at Wob. who had 10 daus. but no sons. Intentions May 8, 1717. She prob. d. Nov. 30, 1756. He had deceased prior to this, but when I do not know. He was living in 1738–9, for, Jany. 30, of that year, he purchased in Lex. land of John Whitmore, and Mh. 12, of same year, he purchased land in Lex. of Jonathan Raymond. His father had given him land, and he was possessed of a large estate. A part of it was about half a mile from Lexington Common on the County road to Bedford, where a cellar is still to be seen, and where his house probably stood. His only son Samuel, is known to have resided at this place.

He is prob. the Samuel Lock named in the following extract from the Journals of the House of Rep. 8 Feb. 1733: —

Voted, "That there be and hereby is granted 1500 acres of land, lying between the towns of Lunenburg and Rutland eastward of Wachusett Hills, to be divided to & among the officers & soldiers engaged in ye Fight at Lamprey River, & to such as shall be allowed to represent those that are dead, viz. to ye representatives of Capt. "The Fight in which these men were engaged, was near a body of Water since known as Wheelwright's Pond, in the Town of Lee, N. H., July 6, 1690, in which sixteen of the English were killed on the spot" (See "Drake's Book of the Indians," p. 335.)

father left a large property for those days in lands and personal estate, including several slaves, which the son inherited, after the decease of his mother. The Real Estate was appraised at £600. Aug. 1771, he sold "from 140 to 170" acres of land, to Benjamin Estabrooks and Joshua Reed of Lex.; and before he d. he contrived to spend all his patrimony, having a great taste for fine horses and fine clothes, and d. poor about 1800; and thus this branch of the family became extinct.

He resided with his father on the Homestead, of which he had become the owner by gift and purchase, as was related in the notice of his father. He was also the owner of other land and a house previous to his father's decease; for in 1699, he mortgaged a house and two lots of land to Thomas Kendall, as security for money borrowed. One lot of six acres is described as bounded "South East by said Kendall's own land, South West by the land of William Locke, North West by the high way, North East by land of Mr. Blocket, [Blodgett.] The other lot of six acres, with a dwelling-house, is bounded East by a brook, South by said Thomas Kendall, West by the highway, North by Samuel Blocket, Jr." In 1713, he bought of William Johnson, Jr. a lot of meadow land, "bounded by the meadow of Henry Johnson Westerly, and by the brook that cometh from Ralf Kendall's and so runeth to Samuel Kendall's Southwardly, and by the land and meadow of the said Ebenezer Locke elsewhere." By his will, it also appears, he was owner of a large tract of land in the "North Township above Groton," which was what is now Townsend and a part of Ashby, which he gave to his sons, Ebenezer and Josiah, in his will. He was frequently elected to town offices, and was Lieut., but was released from Military duty on account of "bodily infirmities." His will was made two days before his decease. See a deed in the Appendix from his father, which will furnish a description of his estate.

Perryman. Mrs. LOCKE was b. Aug. 31, 1673 and d. ——. He d. Dec. 11, 1745, a. 68. His father, in his will, says, "with refference to my son James Locke I lett him go to work for himself to gett something to begin the world with, and also gave him about thirty pounds in money, to help him purchase his land and build upon it, so that I have given him his full portion already, and now I give him ten shillings more as a token of my love."

In 1699, Sep. 9, he purchased of James Converse, 46 acres in Wob. "near a place called the Pine Mountain;" "bounded, South East by ye Woodland of Henry Gardner and Josiah Johnson, North East by ye Woodland of Josiah Johnson, North West by ye Woodland of John Carter, and South West partly by Cambridge line and partly by Woodland of John Carter." Also "twenty acres of swamp bottom, so called, with the liberty to take it up for himself, where the top is his own, according to an order of the Town of Woburn."

In 1715 he purchased of Josiah Johnson, ten acres of Woodland, bounded South Westerly on Cambridge and Lexington lines, North Westerly on said James Locke, North Easterly on land in possession of Widow Garner [Gardner?] and South Easterly on Charlestown line. The following is from the Woburn Town Records, May 17, 1700. "Then layed out to James Locke of Woburn, 23 acres and a half where the top is his own already, at a place called Pine Mountain, on the South side thereof, near Cambridge line; bounded by the Woodland of Josiah Johnson East; South by ye Woodland that was Matthew Johnson's and Sam. Blodgett's, and the said James Locke's Woodland elsewhere, twenty acres thereof upon Samuel Converse's account, and three acres and a half given him by the proprietors of this town of Woburn, at their meeting, April 22, 1700." These tracts of land constituted the beginning of his homestead, and here he built his first house, a short distance from the house of his gr. gr. son Jonathan Locke, who resides near the West line of Winchester, formerly Woburn.

Mh. 7. 1708–9, James Locke was chosen "haward," and again, Mh. 3, 1711–12; and Mh. 3, 1717–18, Surveyor of Highways, and Mh. 2, 1718–19, Constable. "Feb. 12, 1719–20, reconed with Constable James Locke and he having paid into the Selectmen and their orders, with an order to Mr. Cotton when paid £10.1.0, the full of the list of the Town Rates committed to him to collect. Discharged in full thereof." (Wob. Rec.) Jany. 1745–6, his son James of Hopkinton was appointed Administrator on his estate — Inventory £1370. Oct. 1747, the Commissioners appointed by the Court to make a distribution of his estate, made a Report which was sanctioned by the judge. One third of the Real Estate was set off to the widow, and the other two thirds to his son Jonathan; he giving bonds to pay the other heirs their share, viz. to James — £146.6.8, to heirs of dau. Hannah Pierce, deceased, £60.3.4, to daus. Sarah, wife of William Jones, Ruhamah Bond, [formerly Whittemore,] Phebe, wife of Daniel Brewer, Rebecca, wife of William Munroe, and Mary, wife of John Wright, each £55.3.4. The Pro. Rec. also show, that, James had previously rec'd £24, Hannah £25, Jonathan £8, and Sarah, Phebe, Ruhamah, Rebecca and Mary, each £30. At the settlement Jonathan was allowed £280, for services rendered after he was twenty-one.

10 FRANCIS LOCKE, [12] 1. m. ELIZABETH WINSHIP of Medford, Feb. 25, 1713, who d. 1758, a. 67; 2. m. Wid. MARTHA (RUSSELL) DUNSTER, Mh. 15, 1759. She was the wid. of Henry Dunster, to whom she was m. Feb. 25, 1707–8. She was b. July 26, 1691, at Cambridge, the dau. of Joseph Russell, who m. Mary Belcher, June 23, 1662. Mr. Dunster was a grandson of Pres. Dunster of Har. Col. Francis Locke, his wife Elizabeth and his dau. Elizabeth were original members of the Church in West Camb. which was formed 1739.

He resided in Medford a few years after his marriage where his two eldest chil. were born, but in 1718 he was of Woburn, as at that date he sold to his brother Daniel all his "interest in the mansion house in which I now dwell." This was probably a part of the mansion of his father, and with it he also sold several lots of land. This estate or a portion of it had probably been given to him by his father Dea. William Jr. In 1719 he probably moved to what is now called the "Foot of the Rocks" in West Cambridge, then Cambridge, he having in Aug. 1718, bought of Edward Winship of Lexington and Gershom Cutter, Jr. of Cambridge, eight acres of land in Camb. May 4, 1733, he purchased of John Francis of Medford another lot of land in Cambridge; and Ap. 13, 1736, he bought of Benjamin Bagnal of Boston, land in Camb., and Feb. 10, 1746, he bought of Samuel Whittemore eleven acres of land in Cambridge. In 1760 he sold his son Samuel a small lot of land at the "Foot of the Rocks," with a dwelling house then occupied by Samuel Godding, being "a part of the Mill pasture," also another small piece; the compensation was £26.13.4 "lawful." Dec. 1769, he sold his son Samuel for £141.5.5, a part of "Cane's lot," a part of "Bagnal's lot," and a part of the "Whittemore lot," all at the "Foot of the Rocks," reserving the control and use of the same during his life. At the same time he sold to all his children for £23.6.8, that part of his house called "the kitchen and little room" and the corn house and land, reserving the use of it during his life. After his decease it was to be divided, giving Samuel a double share.

In 1747, Francis Locke and Gershom Cutter, were fined 30s. ea. for travelling on Sunday from Camb. to Newton (to attend meeting) by Henry Gibbs, Jus. Peace. But the Court of Sessions ordered the proceedings quashed. (Court Ses. Rec.) He was a tanner, and also kept a tavern. The house in which he resided is now standing at the intersection of the main road with the road leading to Woburn, and is owned by Stephen Locke. He d. Sep. 3, 1770, a. 80, and his wid. d. Daniel's land. At the same time his brother Francis sold him for £115 his interest in the house where he (Francis) resided, which was prob. a part of his father's house. At the same time he also sold him several parcels of land, including "a place for a tan yard" and "a convenient place for a tan house."

In 1734, Daniel bought of Samuel Kendall, Jr. 10 acres in Wob. and 3 acres of Thomas Robins; and in 1738, after the decease of his father, the other heirs conveyed him 11 acres of his father's estate. In 1741, he purchased of James Cutter or Cutler for £200, 30 acres in Lex. After the death of his mother, his brothers and sister conveyed to him for £964, old tenor, four-fifths of their father's estate, being their shares in the same, and including the "mansion house and barn." This conveyance was made Mh. 27, 1749.

May 24, 1750, he sold to William Porter, of Salem, 160 acres in Wob. and Lex. with his house, for £640. Up to this time he is called of Woburn, and styled a "Weaver," an occupation then common. The property sold Porter was probably all his real estate in Lex. and Wob. Nov. 5, 1750, then of Cambridge, he bought of Thomas White 40 acres of land in Acton, and the same day 30 acres of Timothy Farrar, of Acton, "Innholder." He undoubtedly moved to Acton at this time, and his son Daniel went with him or soon after, for Ap. 2, 1751, he sold to Daniel, Jr., the estate purchased of Farrar. And on that estate Daniel, Jr. kept a tavern, it being the first tavern in Acton. In 1771, and again in Dec. 21, 1780, his wife Dorcas then living, he sold to Benjamin Brabrook, of Acton, probably son of his second wife, land in Acton. At this time he was 88½ years old. He died at Acton, but when I know not.

He was living June 11, 1752, for he then sold Samuel Reed of Wob. 20 acres of meadow land in Wob., but must have d. before Mh. 9, 1765; his daus. with their husbands then conveyed to their bro. Ebenezer the "whole of their father's estate, both real and personal," for £100. He resided on the place now occupied by the Wid. Duren, in the extreme westerly corner of Wob. In 1712, (then called Jr.) he bought of Daniel Bloggett for £40 "passing money" 17 acres in Wob. at "Rock Meadow Plain," bounded by Timothy Reed South and East; by George Reed, North, and Samuel Richardson, West; including "housing and timber," &c. In 1721–2 (then called Ebenezer 2d.) he bought of Edward Johnson, Jr. and Ebenezer Johnson, Jr. of Wob. for £30, 10 acres at "Rock Meadow Plain," in two pieces, bounded by Timothy Reed, William Locke, the "range lines" and his own land. In 1738, his brothers and sisters conveyed to him part of their father's estate, viz.: 18 acres at "Rock Meadow Plain," bounded Northerly by William Locke, Westerly by Thomas Bloggett, Jr., Southerly by the Range way, and Easterly by Samuel Wyman; 13½ acres bounded Northerly by Range way, Westerly and Southerly on a part of his father's farm and a dam, and Easterly on his own land; 10¼ acres called "Hill Pasture," bounded Westerly on his father's estate, Southerly on John Bloggett, Northerly on path leading to Timothy Reed's, and on said Reed's land, and 3¼ acres bounded by other portions of the estate of his father. He probably built a part of the house now known as the Duren house.

27 EBENEZER LOCKE, [41] m. MARY MERIAM, the dau. of Thomas and Mary, of Lexington. In 1715, when he was 16 years of age, "he putt himself and of his own free will and accord, put himself apprentice to Joseph Loring of Lex., House Carpenter and joyner to learn his art, trade or mystery, After the manner of an Apprentice." At the close of the Indentures, which are now before me, is this "Memorandum." "It is to be understood yt ye sd. Apprentice is bound to Lydia Loring, ye now wife of ye above sd. Joseph Loring, and she to him, in all things to [be] performed what is above written." His father d. Dec. 1723, and bequeathed "him the sum of ten shillings in money, and one hundred and fifty acres of Land lying in ye North Township above Groton, (now Townsend and Ashby,) the which with what I formerly gave him, I count to be his full part and double portion out of my estate." One hundred acres of this land he sold to his brother Josiah the same year, and soon after moved to Hopkinton; where in 1733 he bought land of John Howe; and in 1736, of Benj. Beduna, land and a grist-mill. The same year he sold land to Josiah Rice, and in 1751, then of "Country Gore," near Oxford, he sold lands in Hopkinton to Joseph Wood, of Hopkinton. He and his wife were "admitted to full communion" in the Church at Hopkinton, Ap. 4, 1725, and were dismissed to the Church in Oxford, Sep. 3, 1738.

He, perhaps, was the same Ebenezer Locke who contracted with the "Proprietors of Gardner's Canada Township," to build them a Mill in 1753. The place is now the Town of Warwick. The Mill was not completed for several years, as he was frequently driven from his work by his fear of the Indians, who were "doing much mischief in the vicinity."

[I am not certain, whether the Ebenezer, who built the Mill, was the one above or not. It may have been Ebenezer, the son of his brother Joshua that built the Mill, who then, or soon after resided at "Ervingshire," part of which place is now included in Shutesbury and Orange. In his old age he resided with his son-in-law, Nehemiah Stone, at Charlton, where he d. Jany. 12, 1775, a. 74. I find records of births of two daughters only. He may have been the father of an Ebenezer Locke, who was with Gen. Winslow at Nova Scotia in 1755, and who, it appears, by the army rolls was "b. at Oxford," and was aged 19 in 1755; but I am inclined to think that this Ebenezer was the son of Joshua, (See Par. 29,) but I doubt of his being b. at Oxford.]

The house and farm formerly owned by Ebenezer of "Country Gore," is now in possession of Rufus Eddy, and by the house stands a noble elm, planted by Mr. Locke.

[In 1756 Mr. Locke gave as an excuse, for not having completed the mill according to agreement, sickness in his family, and the death of a daughter. This must have been a child of whom nothing more is known.]

Mr. Locke resided at Woburn until 1742. His father by will gave him all his "housings and lands in the bounds of Woburn;" which included the old homestead of his grandfather, Dea. William, and at this time known as the Capt. William Fox farm on the road to Lex., about a mile and a half Westerly of Wob.

Centre. Samuel sold this farm in Dec. 1741, to Samuel Wyman, 3, for £900. And it is probable that here it was, that he, Locke, kept a tavern for several years. He owned other lands, for the same month that he sold to Wyman, he also sold to Dr. Jonathan Hayward 36 acres at a place known as "Listening Hill," and "Corner Hedge." This land was adjoining to, and Southerly of the farm now owned by Joseph R. Kendall; and he also sold several small lots to Hayward.

He moved to Lancaster 1742; became a large landholder in that town, also owning lands in Ervingshire, which he bought of John Erving, Esq., of Boston, in 1755. He also was owner of a large quantity of Land in "Naraganset Township, No. 2," now Westminster; also in "Road Town" now Shutesbury. His original purchase in Lancaster was made of John Buss, of Lancaster, for £1000, it being the house and lands on which said Buss then resided. The deed is dated June 3, 1742.

Mr. Locke kept a public house or Inn at Lancaster for many years, which was a place of resort for the principal men of the town, and where the "fathers of the town" were accommodated with their wines and other beverages, if the old account-books in my possession are true. Mr. Locke was Treasurer of the 2d Precinct in 1748 and other years. He was a man of great business qualifications, and was respected as an intelligent and honorable man. He d. 31 HANNAH LOCKE [47] m. THOMAS PIERCE, of Woburn, Nov. 5, 1722. He removed then, or soon after to Leicester, and in 1728, or before, he settled at Hopkinton. His wife was admitted to the church in that town in 1730, by letter from the Ch. in Leicester. She d. before Jany. 24, 1743, for at that date he md. Lydia Gibbs, of Framingham. In 1747, he was a resident of Framingham, where he d. between Feb. 22, 1768, when his will is dated, and April, 1768, when his will was presented for Probate.

[A very singular error was five times repeated on the Probate Records in 1747, when guardians were appointed to the chil. of his first wf., her father having deceased leaving the chil. property. In the records of the appointment of guardians, it is recited that they were "the children of Thomas Pierce late of Framingham deceased," when in fact he did not die till twenty-one years after. It was the wf. who had "deceased." By his 2d wf. he had in Framingham Elizabeth, b. Nov. 30, 1744, bap. at Hop. Dec. 9, 1744, (who md. Silas Haven of Hop. Ap. 25, 1771 ?) Jonathan, b. 32 JAMES LOCKE, [48] m. ELIZABETH BURNAP, Jany. 11, 1727, at Hopkinton, who was b. at Reading May 1, 1708, the dau. of Dea. Benjamin Burnap, who m. Elizabeth Newhall, of Malden, June 19, 1700. Dea. Burnap was b. June 8, 1677, and was the son of Robert Burnap, Jr., by wf. Ann, who was the son of Robert Burnap, Sen'r, who was the first of the name in New England, and whose wife's name was also Ann.

[Burnap was the original orthography of this name in this country, at Reading, where the family first settled, and has so remained until the present time with most of the descendants of Robert; but in 1771 Dea. Benjamin, the brother of Elizabeth, changed his name to Burnet, and his descendants, some of whom resided at Southboro', are now known by that name. Previous to that time there were Burnets in Boston and other places, but I think they were not connected with the Reading family. I am inclined to think that Burnet is the true name, as the name of Burnap I have not been able to find in England.]

James Locke was a farmer and settled in Hopkinton about 1725. He was appointed Administrator on his father's estate in Wob. in June 1745. On the division of the estate, his share was £146. 6. 8. He remained at Hopkinton, where all his chil. were b. till 1749, when he removed to Ashby, then Town send, where he purchased a farm (of Amos Whitney?) it being the first farm surveyed in that part of Townsend which is now in the bounds of Ashby. I have the original plan, which is before me, and is dated April, 1736, and is recorded in the Proprietors' books, Dec. 4, 1736. It was situated in the North-Easterly part of Ashby, on what, for many years, was the principal road from Townsend, through New Ipswich, N. H. to Keene, N. H. This road was laid out Jany. 15, 1750, by Townsend, and is described as "Beginning at Pearl Hill Brook, near the Bridge, near John Conant's fence; thence Northerly to John Stevens'; thence towards the bridge across Willard's stream; thence up to James Locke's; thence to the Brook running out of Locke's meadow to the Beaver Dam, and across said Dam, so on to the Westerly side of Pine Hill, near Ebenezer Taylor's House, to the Province Line." At the same time the Town voted to pay James Locke £10, for building a Bridge across the stream that runs out of his meadow, and he to maintain the same for ten years. The original house stood in the orchard North of where the present house stands; the cellar and well are both now to be seen. Large additions were made to the farm, by him or his son Jonathan.

In 1767, Ashby, taken from Townsend, Ashburnham and Fitchburg, was incorporated. Mr. Locke became one of the influential men in the town, and for many years was nearly always Moderator of the Town meetings; and when the church was organized in 1776, June 17, his name stands first on the list of members. In 1773 he sold all his real estate to his son Jonathan, (who resided with and took care of his parents,) and d. Sep. 1, 1782, a. 79 yrs. and 2 mos.; and his wid. d. Nov. 25, 1785, a. 77, at the house of her dau. Rebecca, who m. Dea. Ephraim Adams, of New Ipswich, N. H., where she was buried, and on whose tomb-stone is the following Epitaph:

"Sleep virtuous dust within your peaceful urn,
There rest in hope, till thy blest Lord's return."

The following Epitaph is inscribed on his tomb-stone at Ashby:

"Death is the lot, the tomb the place,
For all the sons of Adam's race."

34 SARAH LOCKE [50] m. WILLIAM JONES, of Weston, Dec. 25, 1733, whose pedigree is as follows: — Josiah Jones, b. in England about 1640, emigrated to New England about 1665; m. Lydia Treadway, (of Charlestown, ?) Oct. 2, 1667; settled in that part of Watertown that is now Weston, and had JOSIAH, Nathaniel, James, Samuel, John, Isaac, Lydia, Mary, Sarah and Anna. JOSIAH, Jr. m. Abigail Barnes, of Marlboro,' and had Josiah, Daniel, William, Elisha and Abigail. William, b. Jany. 4, 1706–7, md. Sarah Locke, moved to Lunenburg and built a house on what is still called Jones's Hill, which property is now possessed by his descendants. During the Indian wars his house was fortified, and was called "the castle." Mr. Jones, who was the "King's surveyor," went to Nova Scotia to lay out a township, and on his return, the vessel in which he had taken passage, was shipwrecked and he was lost, Jany. 26, 1761.

"Mrs. Jones was a very brave woman, and a lady;" it is said that on one occasion she saved the life of a squaw, who was pursued in a fit of passion by an Indian, by throwing open the door of her house, and letting her in, and then closing it, at the instant his tomahawk was thrown, and which stuck in the door; the scar which it left, having often been seen by one of her grandchildren now living. 35 PHEBE LOCKE, [51] m. 1.DANIEL BREWER, (of Cohcord ?) Sep. 9, 1732. Soon after they resided at Weston, as appears by the baptisms of the chil. In 1735 they were at Hopkinton, and he was prob. the same Daniel Brewer who was rated at Framingham in 1742, and a member of the Church there in 1746. (See Barry's Framingham). There is a great uncertainty about this family. Two of his sons, Samuel and Daniel, were in both the French and Revolutionary wars, and it is probable that the father was also in the French war. Capt. Daniel Brewer and Samuel Brewer are found on the Army Rolls, Feb. 1756; and the name of Capt. Daniel is also on the alarm list at Concord in 1757. Among "the sick and wounded" in the Crown Point Expedition in 1756, were Samuel and Daniel Brewer of Concord, who received aid from the Government of Mass. (See Journals of the General Court.) I have very little doubt that these were either Daniel the father and his son Samuel, or Daniel, Jr., and his brother Samuel. When and where the father d. is not ascertained. His wid. m. ISAAC HARTWELL, at Oxford Country Gore, July 14, 1776, who d. Dec. 6, 1786, and was the first person buried in the grave-yard at that place. She d. at Hudson, N. H., at the house of Dea. 202 Samuel, bap. at Weston, Jany. 7, 1732–3. He was an officer in the French war, and prob. was the Ensign Brewer who was under Major Rogers, the famous commander of a company of Rangers during that war. They were at Fort William Henry, Jany. 17, 1757.

The Third Provincial Congress of Mass. appointed Samuel Brewer Adjutant General of the Mass. Army, June 27, 1775. (See Journal of Pro. Congress, p. 404.) Dec. 12, 1775, a warrant was issued by the Council to pay "Samuel Brewer, Esq. £25. 17. 1. for his services as Adjutant General of the Colony Army." (Council Rec. Vol. 6.) In the absence of all evidence to the contrary, I suppose this was the son of Daniel.

Samuel the son of Daniel, was a Col. in the Revolution. Sep. 15, 1777, then at Stillwater, he with other officers petitioned the government of Mass. to be supplied with clothing and camp equipments from a vessel recently captured from the British and brought into Boston, to make good the losses they had sustained in the retreat from Ticonderoga. (See Vol. 4 of Petitions at the State House.)

Col. Samuel Brewer was cashiered Sep. 29, 1778, as appears by the army rolls; and tradition says was immediately restored, and was in commission as late as 1781, since which date I find no trace of him. In the His. of Concord it is stated that Samuel and Daniel Brewer, (of Concord ?) were among "the sick and wounded soldiers" "in the Crown Point expedition (1756), who received aid from government." They were prob. the sons of Daniel. The most diligent research has failed to gain any more information about these two.

203 Daniel. Tradition says he was a Surgeon in the Army of the Revolution, and that he was shot in coming into camp, through misapprehension, by the sentinel; no further knowledge of him has been ascertained, unless he was the Daniel mentioned above in connection with his bro. Samuel.

50 Doctor DANIEL LOCKE [81] m. 1. MARY ———. He probably went with his father to Acton the last of the year 1750, at which place Ap. 2, 1751, his father sold him 30 acres of land in Acton, which was prob. the same the father purchased of Timothy Farrar, Innholder, Nov. 1750, being the place prob. where he, Daniel, Jr., kept tavern. In Sep. 1751, "Daniel Locke, Jr., was permitted to renew his Innholders' license," (County Rec.) Dec. 15, 1756, Daniel Locke, Jr., sold to Thomas Hancock, Esq., of Boston, two lots of land in Acton, one of 30 and the other of 25 acres. His wf. d. at Acton, July 2, 1756. I have been unable to learn her family name.

[There is a tradition that she was from Scotland, and allied to a noble family, that her mother, whose maiden name was prob. Stewart or Stuart, was the wid. of a Mr. Miles, and came to America with this dau. and a son John. That the mother's dress, jewelry and general appearance indicated that she was of more than common rank. After some years she visited Scotland, returned again to Mass., and the second time, for the purpose of recovering property she had abroad, she sailed from Boston for Scotland, and after that was never heard from, and is supposed to have been lost at sea. There are some circumstances that go to show that the above is substantially true.]

The next that I learn of Daniel L. is taken from the History of Warren, Me. "Dr. Daniel Locke came to Warren this year (1763) from Acton, Mass., with two chil., and marrying the wid. of Hugh Scott, [her maiden name was Margaret Starrett] established himself on the farm owned by his wife. He was skillful in the treatment of sores, letting blood, extracting teeth, and in relieving such complaints as readily yielded to roots and herbs. It is said also that he laid claim to some knowledge in astrology; but whether his proficiency in this science was equal to his skill in surgery, we are unable to say; although he often complimented the parents on the auspicious state of the planets, when called to assist at the birth of a child. He was a prudent and respectable man, whose name is often mentioned by his survivors." Dr. Locke d. at Warren, then St. Georges, (a) in 1774, leaving his property to his son Abraham.

(a) History of Warren, Me., and a subsequent letter from the author of the History. An old gentleman at Acton thought that Locke's wife's name was Ruggles, but I have found no evidence of it. I think her name was Miles. Warren was called St. George's Upper Town, until 1776.

68½ JOHN LOCKE, alias KENDALL, [98] m. MARY REED; int. Aug. 12, 1749. He was the son of Nathaniel and Abigail (Locke) Kendall. His mother was dau. of John Locke (21), and he was prob. b. Dec. 30, 1729, although the Wob. Rec. say 1730, but they also say that his mother d. May 16, 1730. One date must be wrong. The journals of the House of Representatives contain the following entry, under date of 19 June, 1739:

"Petition of John Locke, of Woburn, praying ye order of ye Court that his daughter Abigail Kendall's son John may take on him ye name of Locke for reasons mentioned." — "Granted." — The petition has not been found, but the "reasons mentioned," may have been that his grandfather having buried all his sons, was desirous of having some one to bear his name, and therefore adopted his grandson, to whom he sold or gave all his property. Why he retained both names, the writer cannot conceive, but in various deeds and other papers he is always called "John Locke alias Kendall." He was a man of some property; — Mh. 15, 1748, he bought of James Proctor, 50 acres near a place called "Hog Swamp;" — Aug. 10, 1750, he bought of his gr. fa. one lot of 18 acres, and another of 50, "part of the homestead with buildings thereon" — and all his personal estate excepting one cow and a heifer." He united with his gr. fa. in the sale of 30 acres to Benj. Wyman of Wob. Jany. 2, 1749: — Jany. 16, 1750, he sold Jacob Wright and Nathan Simonds, 10 acres near "Hog Swamp," and 10 acres called

He d. prior to Dec. 19, 1758, administration having been granted on his estate at that time. His wid. m. Ezekiel Reed, June 15, 1759 or '60. The writer has been informed that he was killed in the French war, but no time or place is stated. He may have been wounded, and perhaps d. at home, for several witnesses, including some females, were summoned into court to prove what disposition he had made of his estate.

Feb. 26, 1849, a. 104 yrs. 1 mo. and 5 days. He retained to the very last his physical and mental powers in most remarkable perfection. The late Gov. Hill, of New Hampshire, in the "Farmers' Monthly Visiter," published at Concord, under dates of Ap. 30, 1847, and Mh. 31, 1849, has given a very interesting history of Mr. Adams, accompanied by letters written by him at the age of 102, that are remarkable as evidence of mental vigor in one so aged, and who had but a slight education. He resided at Sherburne, and Union, Me.; was a soldier in the Oxford army, and afterwards resided at Northampton, where he died, as it is said, by drinking cold water when heated; but which I think was not so, as I find there was allowed at the settlement of his estate quite a bill for medical attendance, and other expenses incurred during his last sickness. He was never married. His will was dated July 30, 1800. He bequeathed property to his uncle, Samuel Porter, of Rutland.

Grace, Betty, Henry, Nancy, and Christian, he removed to Sudbury, where he had a son Fortunatus, b. 1779, as appears by the Rec. of Sudbury, but I think it should be 1769. He was an Ensign in the army under Gen. Winslow, at Nova Scotia, May, 1755, and prob. was the Lieut. Locke who was in the army with Gen. Braddock, and was wounded at the time of "Braddock's Defeat." He was also with Col. Rogers, the famous Ranger, in New York and Canada; and at some period was one of the King's Surveyors. He also was distinguished as the only one, by the name of Locke, who was a Loyalist, or more generally known by the term Tory; and when the British evacuated Boston, Mh. 17, 1776, he left with the army; was in one of the battles at Staten Island, where he met and recognised his sons Frederick and Henry in the American army. How long he remained with the British army I cannot learn, but eventually went to England, leaving his wf. and family, and never returned. 86 EBENEZER LOCKE [163] m. PHEBE MORES, about 1759, at Oxford.

[I have been unable to ascertain where he was b. He was out three years in the French War, and may have been the Ebenezer Locke who was with Gen. Winslow, at Nova Scotia in 1755, and who was there enrolled as a native of Oxford, and then aged 19. But of this I have some doubt, as there is no evidence that his father, Joshua, ever resided at Oxford The Ebenezer last mentioned may have been the son of Ebenezer (see par. 27) who lived at Oxford, although I have no reliable information that he had any sons.]

Ebenezer, whose name stands at the head of this paragraph, resided after marriage at Oxford. In 1762, he was at Ervingshire, as it appears by the Church Records of New Salem. Ervingshire was an unincorporated township, and which is now included in the towns of Erving, Shutesbury and Orange.

The Church Rec. at New Salem contain the baps. of Mary the dau. of Ebenezer Locke and his wife Phebe, of Ervingshire, Feb. 7, 1762; and then the baptisms of Lucy, dau. of Ebenezer and Mary Locke, June 17, 1765; Sampson, son of same, May 3, 1767; Allis, dau. of same, July 2, 1769. I have no doubt that the name Mary should have been Phebe, as being the mother of the four last named. I am satisfied that he had but one wife, Phebe Mores, who was b. Sep. 14, 1738, and d. at Rockingham, Vt. May 12, 1820, a. 82. About 1770, Mr. Locke removed to Rindge, N. H. where the rest of his chil. were b. After that he resided at Rockingham, Vt. and Peterboro', N. H. and finally removed to Schuyler, N. Y., where he d. Sep. 24, 1812, a. 75. Phebe Mores was the dau. of Collins Mores, of Oxford, who m. Bathsheba Wood, of Groton, May 2, 1722, who was b. Ap. 5, 1702, the dau. of Nathaniel and Alice Woods, of Groton.

May 26, 1769, he was chosen an Agent to confer with Agents from other towns, relative to a petition to the Gen. Townsend, and was immediately, according to the custom of the times, "warned out," but at the first town meeting held after his removal, was chosen moderator and added to the Committee of Correspondence, which had been chosen the year previous. At a town meeting, June 19, 1775, "Mr. Locke protested against the proceedings (of the town), the warrant coming out in the King's name." In 1777, he was appointed "to take acknowledgments and recognisances of debts," a member of the Middlesex Convention at Concord, Aug. 1774, and of another, Oct., 1779, and of the State Convention to form a Constitution the same year; and a Representative in the Legislature in 1783. Aug. 24, 1775, a warrant was issued by the Council to "pay James Locke £6.11.11., for clothing furnished the army." During the time he resided at Ashby, he lived on land which he bought of his father, it being the southerly part of his father's homestead. His house, which has long since been removed, stood in the orchard south of the house that was afterwards built by his brother Jonathan, and which is now standing. His residence at Townsend was about a mile north of the "Harbor." He did not labor on his farm for many years in consequence of an injury to one of his hands, but was a land surveyor for a long time. He moved from Townsend to Sullivan, N. H. about 1784, where he d. Jany. 19, 1808, a. 78. Although deprived of the advantages of an early education, his energy and perseverance enabled him to attain a position that gave him great influence with his townsmen, and he left a character behind him that his descendants would do well to emulate.

Martha Burnap, the sister of his mother. He was a soldier in the French war, and was one of a company that marched to Crown Point under the command of Major Nichols, June, 1755. When about 23 years of age, for the benefit of his health he started on a voyage to he West Indies, during which he was impressed by a British man of war, and detained in the British service about seven years, till the close of the war between Great Britain and France. A large portion of the time he served in the ship of war Foudroyant, that had been taken from the French, by whose commander, Capt. Duff, he was well treated, and of whom he ever spoke in terms of praise. I have before me a part of a journal or log-book kept by him. He was present at the attack on Martinico, by the fleet under Sir James Douglass, Jany. 2, 1762, and at the capitulation of Port Royal. In his log-book he gives a particular account of the attack, and the articles of capitulation, the names of the vessels engaged and their commanders, and also of the capture of several vessels during that year. He was discharged at Plymouth, Eng. Sep. 26, 1763, and on the 26th of Oct. he left London on his return to America, in the Temple Snow, Capt. Hatch, bound for Boston, where he arrived the last of Nov. His family had long supposed him dead, and his return created no little excitement. He was md. 1765, and lived at Southboro' a short time, and moved to Ashby about 1768, where he resided until 1772, when he moved to Fitzwilliam, N. H. and there resided till about 1805, when he moved to Sullivan, N. H. His farm at Ashby was the first west and north of his father's, and was the same afterwards owned by his nephew, Hon. John Locke. The house was on a part of the farm that has since been owned by Jerry March. He sold his farm, Sep. 13, 1770, to John Wright, of Weston. He was elected Deacon of the Church at Fitzwilliam, July 3, 1773, and officiated as Deacon over 25 years, and was also Proprietors' Clerk in Fitzwilliam from 1781 to 1787. He died at Sullivan, Feb. 16, 1823, in his 90th year. His wf. who was b. at Southboro', Aug. 17, 1745, d. at Sullivan, Aug. 13, 1813, a. 68.

Adams was noted for his strong original sense and quaint humor. He took a leading part in the strong measures which preceded the Revolution; and when the war broke out did his full duty, both in the council and the field. Probably no man in the town did so much to procure soldiers and other means of the war. During his long residence here, he was oftener than almost any man, elected to the various town offices. He represented the town in the Provincial Congress, and was four years a Representative in the State Legislature, from 1782 to 1785, and was a soldier of the Revolution, and was present at the battle of White Plains. Mrs. Nichols, afterwards Mrs. Locke, was a woman of great intellectual powers, uncommonly amiable in her deportment, and a Christian by profession and practice. She was one of the best of mothers, and the evidence of her patriotism in the Revolution is perpetuated in a number of short poems which she wrote, and which were published at the time. She d. Locke, or as he was more commonly called "Squire Locke," after his first marriage remained in Hopkinton, (where he was an Assessor in 1765 and '66,) until 1769, when he removed to Framingham, where he lived till June, 1770, when he moved to Fitzwilliam, N.H. then called Monadnock, No. 2, where he had purchased an uncleared lot of land, on which he built a log hut, in which he lived until he built a more commodious house, which he did the next year, and which house is now standing and owned by James Reed. During the time he lived at F. and afterwards, he purchased several lots of the proprietors' land. In May or June, 1772, at the request of his father, he moved to Ashby to take charge of his father's farm, and of which he received a deed, Mh. 1773, living in the old house with his father till 1782, when he built the large house now (1852) standing at the intersection of the old road leading north to Mason, N. H. with the old road leading westerly to New Ipswich, N. H. and which was sold by his heirs to Joshua Willard and David Lawrence. He purchased other land adjoining of his brother James, and also several large tracts of land in Grafton and Andover, Vt. and in the State of New York. He built a saw-mill on what is now called "Locke's Brook, or Squanecook River," and was engaged extensively in the lumber business, and kept a Public House about ten years. Very soon after moving to Ashby he became one of the leading men in town and church affairs. In May, 1774, he was one of a committee to whom was referred the communication of the town of Boston "relating to our privileges," and in June following he made a very lengthy and well written report, which was unanimously accepted, and a committee of correspondence was appointed, of which he was one, and to which he was often re-appointed. In 1774 and 1775, he was chosen constable, an office then of more consequence than now; in 1777, '82, '83, and '84, a selectman; from 1778 to '85 and 1794 to '96, assessor; and town clerk from 1779 to '85, and moderator nearly every year. He was a member of the first Provincial Congress, held at Salem, Oct. 7, 1774; member of the Middlesex Convention, held at Concord, Aug. 30, 1774; also of that held at the same place Oct. 1779; and member of the Mass. Convention to frame a Constitution, held at Cambridge, Oct. 1779. He was commissioned a Justice of the Peace in 1783, which office he held until his death, and was an active magistrate during the whole period. In the old French war he was a Sergeant, and was in several campaigns, at Ticonderoga and Crown Point in 1758 and '59, and was Capt. of the Militia some years during the Revolution.

He was a stout built man of middling height, dignified in his appearance, wore a large wig, was uncommonly industrious and energetic, and in all the stations to which he was called, he performed their duties to the general satisfaction of his townsmen. Having no advantages of an early education, he yet acquired information sufficient for the times, but aware of the benefits of good schools, he was one of thirty who pledged their property to found and maintain an Academy in the adjoining town of New Ipswich, N. H. and his three sons had a collegiate education.

Ashby, from its first settlement for more than half a century, was somewhat famed for church and ministerial troubles, and during the whole of Mr. Locke's residence there he was more or less connected with them. He appears to have been the leader of a party who were Calvinistic, and the other party having more faith in Hopkins, were headed by the minister, Rev. Samuel Whitman. At times the war waxed warm, till at last, March, 1779, by a small majority, "brother Locke" was suspended from church privileges. Several attempts were made to call a mutual council without success, and several ex parte councils were held without any good result. Oct. 7, 1783, a mutual council however was held, and the result appears in the following extract from the Church Records, under date of Oct. 9, 1783:

"A private settlement of the unhappy controversy in Ashby being strongly recommended by a mutual council, convened Oct. 7, 1783, and accordingly effected by the parties, upon brother Jonathan Locke voluntarily making the subsequent declaration, 'That in the course of the long dispute he had been engaged in with the Church, he had been sometimes transported into feelings and conduct unbecoming the Christian spirit; but was not, however, conscious of any behavior which deserved Church censure;' upon this, the Church passed the following votes:

"1st. That the suspension of brother Jonathan Locke from the Communion of this Church was done without proper deliberation.

"2d. That he be now restored to fellowship and communion of this Church."

At the same meeting, Mr. Whitman, by the advice of the Council, was dismissed from his pastoral relations, but continued for some time to preach at his own house to his followers, but finally left town.

125 SUSANNAH LOCKE, [154½] m. SILAS TOWNE; Int. at Oxford, 1744. I find no record of her birth or parentage, but from the fact that Ebenezer Locke was the only one of the name who resided at Oxford, and judging from the date of her marriage that she was about the same age with Lydia and Hannah, the known daus. of Ebenezer L., I have assumed that she belonged to the same family. She was prob. b. at Woburn or Hopkinton before her father removed to Oxford. "She was a woman of remarkable energy of character, and a few years since there were persons alive who could attest to her many acts of charity and benevolence." He was a worthy man, and having lost his property during the last years of his life, and become decrepit by age, his neighbors voluntarily contributed to his support and that of his aged partner, being unwilling to see them "thrown upon the town," and the ladies of Waltham are entitled to much praise for their efforts to make happy the declining years of these octogenarians.

Mr. Rokes came out in the morning for the purpose of obtaining some garden seeds, and remarked to some one, that after many years of toil and hardship, he had just got able to live. Waiting for the stores to be opened, and probably watching for the appearance of the fish, he fell from the bridge upon the rocks below, and terminated an honest and laborious life at the age of 67." His wid. d. Aug. 20, 1820, a. 72.

Mr. Locke's early advantages for an education were exceedingly limited; the country was new, and schools there were none in the vicinity. He informs me that all the schooling he had until he was 22 years of age, was five weeks that he went to the late Judge Farrar, five weeks to his uncle James Locke, and six weeks to the late Hon. Samuel Smith, of Peterboro', N. H. His parents, though destitute of an early school education, were well informed, and to their instruction he was indebted in his youth. He labored on the farm till he was 22 years of age, when he commenced his education under the celebrated Master Ebenezer Pemberton, then preceptor at Andover Academy. In 1789 he entered Dart. College about one year and a half in advance, where he remained about nine months, when he took up his connections there and entered Har. Coll. where he grad. in 1792. While preparing for college he taught a district school at Andover, and in the winter of 1791 and '2 he taught a large town school at Brookline, and after he graduated he returned to Brookline and taught the same school about fifteen months. In Nov. 1793 he commenced the study of law with the Hon. Timothy Bigelow, of Groton, and was admitted to the Bar in Middlesex Co. Sep. 1796, and immediately after opened an office at Ashby, and for many years practised in all the Courts in Middlesex and Worcester Counties, and in the neighboring counties in the State of New Hampshire. He was often elected to the offices of Town Clerk and Selectman; was appointed on all important Committees, and represented the town of Ashby in the State Legislature, in 1804, 1805, 1813 and 1823, the town not sending a representative but a few of the intermediate years. He was a member of the Mass. Convention to revise the Constitution in 1820; and in 1823 he was elected a member of Congress from the then Worcester North District, which included five towns in Middlesex Co. and was twice re-elected, when having been six years in Congress, he declined another election. In 1830 he was chosen a Senator from Mid. Co., and in 1831 one of the Executive Council, since which time he has not been in public office, although he continued to practise at the Bar for some years. For several years after his marriage he resided in the "Edwards House" and until 1804, when he built the large square house on the "Hill," now owned by Mr. H. Spencer, which he occupied till 1837, when he left Ashby and removed to Lowell, to reside with his son John G. and with that son in Nov. 1849, he removed to Boston, where he now, 1852, resides, enjoying the past and the present, and at the age of nearly 89, reading the finest print without glasses, and often walking two or three miles at a time.

She had a retentive memory, which enabled her to treasure up all she read, and in the truest sense she was a Christian in word and deed. She received a bodily injury by being overturned in a carriage in early life, from which she never entirely recovered, and during a long life had more than a full share of sickness of the most painful kind, being almost helpless for many years, all of which she bore without repining, and finally closed a long life, Feb. 10, 1848, a. 81. After the death of her husband, she resided with her dau. Mrs. Goss, and with her son Samuel, and d. at the house of her son Charles, at Louisville, Ky.

He kept a journal of family items and events that happened from youth until May, 1817, when it was lost by the burning of his house, and May, 1828, his son's house standing upon the same spot was burnt, and all the papers that his father had collected since the first fire, and every thing else was destroyed. Prof. Adams had a strong intellect which was most thoroughly disciplined, was uncommonly amiable in his deportment, and in all the stations he filled gave the highest satisfaction. Judge Washburn, in his History of Leicester, says: "After a succession of Principals (in Leicester Academy) Mr. Ebenezer Adams took charge of the institution in 1792, and continued in that office till 1806, when he resigned it. As a teacher his character was almost unrivalled. For the fourteen years he continued in that employment he was uniformly respected and esteemed, as well by his pupils as by the inhabitants of the town, and when he left, bore with him the highest testimonials of the regret of the trustees of his surrender of a place he had so usefully filled." While at Leicester, he also held the office of Postmaster.

He was a dignified looking man of the old school in his manners, always commanding the respect of the society in which he moved, and died, regretted by all, Aug. 15, 1841, a. nearly 76.

555 Col. MARSHALL PINCKNEY WILDER, [1410] m. 1. at Rindge, N. H. TRYPHOSA JEWETT, Dec. 31, 1820, who was b. Dec. 27, 1799, and d. July 31, 1831, a. 32. She was the dau. of Dr. Stephen and Nancy (Colburn) Jewett, of Rindge. 2. m. ABBY BAKER, Aug. 29, 1833, who was b. Aug. 4, 1810, the dau. of Capt. David and Jemima (Richardson) Baker, of Franklin, and sister of the Rev. Abijah R. Baker, of Lynn.

Col Wilder was early associated with his father in trade at Rindge, N. H. from which place he removed to Boston in 1825, and has been successfully engaged in mercantile pursuits under the firm of Wilder & Payson, Wilder & Smith, and now Parker, Wilder & Co. His residence is at "Hawthorne Grove," in Dorchester, where he has extensive gardens and green-houses, in which is to be found one of the finest collection of fruits and flowers. His success in bringing the camellia japonica and the pear to perfection is unrivalled.

He was an original member of the "Mount Auburn Cemetery Association," and of the "Massachusetts Horticultural Society," and of the latter was President eight years, when he resigned and was elected President of the "Norfolk County Agricultural Society." At the meeting of the "National Convention of Fruit Growers," held at New York in 1848, he was chosen its President, and on its union with the "North American Pomological Convention," under the name of the "Pomological Society," he was again appointed its President. He was highly instrumental in the formation of the "Massachusetts Board of Agriculture," and which has since become a department of the State government.

On the organization of the "United States Agricultural Society" at Washington in 1852, he was also chosen its first President. On the decease of the lamented Downing, he was appointed to deliver his eulogy, which he did before the "Pomological Congress" at Philadelphia, Sep. 13, 1852.

His exertions in the cause of agriculture have been untiring, and there is no one who has done more to improve the quality of our fruits, and the fostering a love for farming; and his many addresses before societies, and his communications in various periodicals have had a great influence in producing a higher state of cultivation through the country.

Col. Wilder was in commission in the New Hampshire Militia, represented Dorchester in the Mass. Legislature in 1839, was a member of the Executive Council in 1849, and Senator from the County of Norfolk in 1850, and although a new member of that body, he was chosen its presiding officer.

655 JOHN GOODWIN LOCKE, [1643] m. JANE ERMINA STARKWEATHER, Oct. 26, 1829, at Worthington, where she was b. Ap. 25, 1805, the dau. of Dea. Charles and Deborah (Brown) Starkweather, and niece of the late Hon. Ezra Starkweather of Wor. being a descendant of Robert Starkweather, who was at Roxbury in 1640, and who afterwards moved to Ipswich. Mrs. Locke has for many years been generally known as a writer; her contributions, both in prose and poetry, to the literature of the day, have been frequent. A collection of her poems was published in 1842, and a poem entitled "Boston," was published in 1846, and a 2d edition appeared the same year, and "Rachel," a book for children. She has another volume nearly ready for the press. A well-known popular critic says, "Her writings partake more of improvisation than those of any other American female writer."

Mr. Locke was educated for a mercantile business, but his health failing, he was obliged to relinquish it, and for several years continued ill health prevented his engaging in any active business. In 1826, he went to Caracas, Venezuela, as agent for a mercantile house in New York, but the climate was unpropitious, contrary to his expectations, and he returned the same year, and soon after entered the law office of his father at Ashby, and commenced reading law, and for several years he took charge of his father's business while the latter was absent in Congress; but a chronic disease of the eyes seemed to forbid hopes of success in that profession. After passing about two years at Buffalo, N. Y. he settled in Lowell, Aug. 1833, and for six years was clerk in a large manufactory. In 1839, he was elected a member of the Common Council, in Ap. 1840, was chosen Auditor of Accounts, and in Sep. of the same year, Clerk of the Council, to both of which offices he was re-elected nine consecutive years, and in 1849 he received an appointment in the Boston Custom-house, where he yet remains. He was appointed a Justice of the Peace for the County of Middlesex in 1842, and for the County of Suffolk, in 1852.

The "Midnight lamp," could it speak, would testify to his unremitted toil for seven years, to the exclusion of every thing else, in preparing the Memorial of his ancestors, and as Tacitus says, "Nihil scriptum miracula causa," (Nothing composed for the sake of exhibiting prodigies, or exciting wonder.)

He obtained his education preparatory to entering College at New Ipswich, N. H. Westford and Concord Academies. Graduated at Har. Coll. 1829, studied Law with his father at Ashby, was admitted to the Middlesex Bar, 1834, and entered on the practice of Law at Ashby, where he continued till Oct. 1835, when he moved to Lowell, and became a partner with Hon. John A. Knowles. Mr. Knowles retired from business in 1839, leaving Mr. L. his law business. He was eminently successful in his profession. During his connection with Col. he taught a school the winter of 1828 at Billerica, the winter of 1829 at Ashby, and after he grad. he was chosen Preceptor of Billerica Academy, where he continued until June, 1830. At Lowell he was chosen Clerk of the Police Court, and Clerk of the Common Council, which offices he continued to hold until his death, Sep. 26, 1840, a. nearly 33. From an obituary in the Christian Register, written by his pastor, the Rev. Dr. Miles, I extract the following: — "To the strict purity of his private life, to rare sincerity and simplicity of character, to great discernment and independence of judgment, he added an unfailing kindness of manner and a generous warmth of affection, which both found their way at once to all hearts, and kept a lasting hold upon them. And as his life was free from guile, so there was a touching simplicity in his death."

WILLIAM CLARKE.

There were several William Clarkes in and about Boston before 1640, and it is not possible to state with certainty at what time the father of Mary, who m. William Locke, emigrated. From his residing at Watertown, and his connection with several persons who came over in 1635, I have supposed that he was the William Clarke who came in the "Plaine Joan," and whose name was registered in London, May 15, 1635, "aged 27," and that his wife Margaret or Margary, was the Margaret Clarke who was registered as a passenger in the "Primrose," July 15, 1635, "a. 21," with her son "William, aged 1 year," and so I stated in a communication published in the New Eng. Historic-Genealogical Register, Vol. 5, p. 248. Since then, I have discovered several depositions made by William and Margary Clarke, of Woburn, in which their ages are given, and if correctly given, make them older than the William and Margary, who came over as above stated in 1635.

Digitized by Google

William Clarke, of Woburn, in 1664, says he is aged "about 69," which would give his birth in 1595, and Margary Clarke, in 1659, says she is aged 60, which would give her birth in 1599.

It is certain, however, that he was a resident of Watertown in 1640. He bought 60 acres of land in Watertown of Thomas Boyden, 1650, and 1, (2), 1651, he sold Timothy Hawkins "a parcel of Upland, commonly called by the name of the great dividend in the town aforesaid (Watertown,) being the first lot in the third division, containing 35 acres. Bounded on the South side with the land of John Page [and] the common, on the West with the land of Thomas Smith, upon the North with the land of Richard Sautle and Samuel Thatcher, upon the East with the common, which land was granted by the townsmen of Watertown to Thomas Arnold, and by him conveyed to the said William Clarke."

He moved to Woburn in 1651, and same year was appointed on a committee to survey and lay out some land to William Reed, and many times in the succeeding years he was appointed on committees that were chosen to perform similar duties. His name often appears as surveyor of highways, and other town offices. His house was near the present line of Burlington, a little Westerly of the house of J. Johnson, Jr. where the marks of his cellar are now to be seen, in the field between the house of Mr. Johnson and the house of W. W. Colgate, near the pond. In 1654, there was granted to him and Richard Houlden, "six acres laid by for bulls equally to be divided between them," and in 1657, "three acres of swamp bottom near his lot at Bull Meadow"— in 1673, "4 acres of timber land in the 3d. Range at Maple Meadow." In the great division of lands in "Lebanon and the Middle Swamp," he had 63¾ acres. As stated on page 17, he by will gave all his estate to his gr. son, John Locke, subject to a condition to pay his wife and other heirs their proportion. He was a weaver by trade. MONROES OF IRELAND AND SCOTLAND.

DONALD, son of Occaon Ro, a nobleman, in the County of Derry, upon the waters of Ro, in Ireland, went to Scotland with his forces, to the assistance of King Malcolm II, in the 11th century, against the Danes. The King, for this service, gave him the lands of East Dingwall, which he called Ferrin-Donald, i. e., Donald's Lands, and he was called Donald a Bonro, in respect of his father's residence upon the waters of Ro, in Ireland, and thereafter, by the change of the letter B into M, his descendants were called Monro. They got other lands in Scotland, which they called Fowlis, from a place in Ireland called Loch Fowl. From the above Donald were descended a long list of Barons, of whom Sir George, the IX Baron, was slain at the battle of Bannockburn, in 1314; George, the X Baron, was killed at Halydon Hill, July 1333; Robert, the XVII Baron, was killed at Pinkie, near Edinboro', 1547; Robert, the XVIII, fought for Mary, Queen of Scotts, and d. 1588; Robert, the XIX, was the first Protestant of this family, was called the "Black Baron," and d. the same year that his father, Robert, the XVIII died. Hector, the XX Bar., brother of the last, d. 1603; Robert, the XXI, gr. son of Robert XVIII, was a distinguished Colonel under Gustavus Adolphus, King of Sweden, and d. of his wounds, 1633; Hector, the XXII Bar., was created "Baron of Nova Scotia," for services under Gustavus, and d. in 1635. Hector, the XXIII, d. 1651; Robert, the XXIV Bar., nephew to Gen. Robert, d. 1660; John, the XXV Bar., son of the last named, eminent for his services and sufferings, d. in 1696; Robert, the XXVI Bar., was noted for his piety and benevolence; Robert, the XXVII Bar., was 30 years a member of Parliament, and was a brave General, who lost his life at the battle of Falkirk, Jany. 1746. Harry, the XXVIII Bar., was a member of Parliament, and was distinguished for his great classical attainments, and d. in Edinburgh, in 1787.

In the reigns of Charles I and II, there were 3 Generals, 8 Colonels, 5 Lieut. Cols., 11 Majors, and 30 Captains by the name of Monro. Robert, the XXVII Bar., while Governor of Inverness, had a regiment of 400 of his name under pay.

During the 16th and 17th centuries, the Monros of Great Britain were firm defenders of the Protestant religion, both at home and in Sweden, and they had their full share in many a well-fought battle. When some one spoke to the late Col. William Munroe, of Lexington, about the bravery displayed by the Munroes in the Revolution, he replied, "No wonder at all, sir, they have Irish, Scotch, and Yankee blood in their veins."

The foregoing is principally taken from a history of the Monros, written by Dr. Doddridge, and published in an Appendix to the Life of Col. Gardiner. It is a very interesting history, and I regret I have not room for the whole of it.

MUNROES IN AMERICA.

WILLIAM MUNROE is presumed to have been one of that company of Scotch prisoners who were sent to this country in 1652, a list of which is on record in the Registry of Deeds Office in Boston. They were probably some of those who were taken at the battle of Worcester, Eng. which was fought by King James, who commanded the Scots on the one side, and by Cromwell on the other.(a) The King's army was principally composed of Covenanters or Presbyterians.

Many of the prisoners taken by Cromwell it is well known were shipped to different parts of the New World, where they were sold into temporary slavery to defray the expenses of their transportation. The list above alluded to, is the only one known to have been preserved, and very little is known as to the particulars of their being brought here, and their subsequent condition. I copy from the New Eng. Historic-Genealogical Register, Vol. 1, p. 380, the following, it being the most definite about the Scotch prisoners of any thing I have been able to find.

"Extract of a letter written by the Rev. John Cotton to the Lord General Cromwell, dated at 'Boston, in N. E. 28 of 5th, 1651,' respecting some prisoners of the same class of persons included in the above list sent over before these arrived. They all were probably taken at the battle of Dunbar, [that is those who were sent over before] Sep. 3, 1650, when Cromwell was victorious, and four thousand were slain and ten thousand made prisoners."

"The Scotts whom God delivered in your hands at Dunbarre, and whereof sundry were sent hither, we have been desirous (as we could) to make their yoke easy. Such as were sick of the scurvy, or other diseases, have not wanted physick and chirurgery. They have not been sold for slaves to perpetual servitude, but for 6 or 7 or 8 yeares, as we do our own; and he that bought the most of them (I heare) buildeth houses for them, for every four an house, layeth some acres of ground thereto, which he giveth them as their owne, requiring 3 dayes in the weeke to worke for him (by turnes) and 4 days for themselves, and promiseth, as soone as they can repay him the money he laid out for them, he will set them at liberty."

Very probable the same course was taken with those who came in 1652. They were shipped from London, Nov. 11, 1651, by Jo: Beex, Rob' Rich, and William Greene, in the John and Sara, John Greene, master, and were consigned to M' Tho: Kemble, of Boston. The list of the company was recorded as before stated, May 13, 1652.

It contains four by the name of Monrow, viz. Rob't, John, Hugh, and one other whose first name is obliterated by time. This I suppose to have been WILLIAM. What became of the others is not known; tradition says that one of them (prob. John) settled at or near Bristol, then in this state but now in Rho. Island, and was the ancestor of Pres. Monroe. The last part of this tradition is not true, but the first probably is. I have made "diligent search" at Bristol, and by the kindness of J. R. Bullock, Esq. of that place, I have been furnished with a copy of the record of the births, deaths and marriages of the Munroes in that place for about a century. The first is that of Joseph, the son of John and Mehitable, b. Dec. 18, 1696, and John, Thomas, William and George Munroe had chil. b. there between 1696 and 1701. It is probable that they were of the second generation, brothers, or cousins, and that they were descendants of one or more of the Scotch prisoners, whose residence, as before stated, I have not been able to ascertain, though it was undoubtedly in that vicinity.

I think that there is no question but what the Munroes at Bristol were relatives of those at Lexington. I have before me a letter, written in 1764 by Hector Munro, who, I suppose, was a soldier in the King's Army in the French war, and that he had been, then, recently discharged. It is as follows: —

(a) "Charles having marched into England, at Worcester was attacked by Cromwell with 30,000 men, and after having shown many proofs of personal valor, fled. The Duke of Hamilton made a desperate resistance, was mortally wounded, and the Scots were almost all either killed or taken. The prisoners, to the number of 8000, were sold as slaves to the American planters." Russell's Modern Europe, Vol. 3, p. 416.

The Doctor and the Rest of your friends Joyn their Complements to you. Dear sir be so good as to give My Complements to Captain Thomas Munro at Concord and William Munro at Lexintown, and Lickewise to all the Rest of our friends that enquirs for Me, Not for gating yourself, in Doing this you will oblidge your humble servant, HECTOR MUNRO.

As to our William Munroe, the earliest notice that I have found is under date of 1657, in the Town Records of Cambridge, which then included Lexington. "Thomas Rose and William Row" (a) were fined for not having rings in the nose of their swine." Tradition says that he had lands "granted" him at "Cambridge ffarmes," now Lexington, on the north border near Woburn, and that part of Lexington, from an early period until now, has been called "Scotland." His house stood where the present house of Thomas Russell now stands, on the road from Lex. to Woburn, being near the Wob. line. All his sons but Benjamin, the youngest, lived with or near him, and it was said by old Mrs. Sanderson, his gr. gr. dau. who d. last year aged 104, that the old house looked like a rope-walk, so many additions had been made to accommodate the younger branches. This estate has always been owned by his descendants.

Although he began life in America not under the most favorable circumstances, (if the account I have given be true) he seems to have been prospered in his worldly affairs. In 1690, he was made a freeman. "Cambridge ffarmes"

(a) The name of Munroe was often contracted in the above manner in early times, and at a much later time the name was frequently shorn of its proper dimensions in speaking of, or to them.

having been made a "precinct" or parish, in 1692–3 a committee was appointed, of which "William Roe," Senr. was one, "to treat for the purchase of land for the ministry." The purchase was made and an assessment was laid for the payment. The whole number of persons assessed was about fifty; Wm. Munroe and one other were assessed £0 15, 0 each, and there were only two others whose tax exceeded £0 11, 0. Within the next few years several taxes were laid for building a church and the support of the minister, and Mr. Munroe's tax bore about the same proportion to the others as the above. This shows his relative position as to property. In 1694, he was chosen a Selectman of Cambridge, and in subsequent years held several town offices, and is often mentioned on the town Records as connected with town affairs.

I subjoin such an account of his descendants for four or five generations as the very imperfect Town and family records have enabled me to prepare. I have not gone into all the minute detail, that I did in the first part of this book, my principal object being only to so arrange the several branches and families, that those of the name now living would be able to trace their ancestry through the several generations. It is much to be desired that some one would enter on the task of preparing a full genealogy of this family, many of whom were distinguished as brave soldiers and officers in the struggle for Independence, and whose blood crimsoned many a battle-field. They did not disgrace the far-famed valor of their Scotch ancestors, many of whom were distinguished warriors.

FESSENDENS.

John Fessenden and Jane his wife emigrated from the County of Kent, in England, and settled in Cambridge, about 1636, according to the most reliable information I can find; though another account says they came about 1628. They were "glovers," acquired considerable property, and owned land in Cambridge and Charlestown. He was admitted a freeman, 1641, and he and his wife were members of the Church in Camb. as early as 1658. On the Ch. Rec. the name is "Fezington." He was a Selectman in Camb., where he d. Dec. 21, 1666, and his wid. d. Jany. 13, 1682, a. 80.

Having no chil. they sent to England for an heir, and Nicholas and Hannah Fessenden, supposed to have been brother and sister, and nephew and niece of John, came over. One account says that another had previously started to come to America, but had died before his arrival. Hannah, m. John Sewall, of Newbury, Oct. 28, 1674, who was the son of Henry.

The tradition that the Fessendens came from the Co. of Kent, is supported by the following, from Chief Justice Sewall's diary; "Jany. 18, 1688–9, Arrived at Canterbury, (Kent,) visited Aunt Fissanden, her son John and daus. Mary, Elizabeth, and Jane." This also shows that there was a connection between the Sewalls and Fessendens, before the emigration to America, and both families were probably from a cultivated race, as is indicated by so many of them, after emigration, becoming men of education, and exhibiting strong marks of scholarship.

From Nicholas, all of the name in New England, and perhaps all in America, are descended. He resided at Cambridge, which then included West Cambridge and Lexington. The following imperfect Genealogy of some of the older generations, is prepared from such materials as I have been able to find. A more particular search of the Records at the County offices at Cambridge, would undoubtedly throw additional light upon this family.

PIERCES.

ROBERT PIERCE came to Dorchester in 1630, and settled on what was called "Pine Neck," near the water. The late Rev. Dr. John Pierce says, "8 June, 1804, I went to a place called Pine Neck, to view the residence of my paternal ancestors. Found part of the cellar in which was the stump of a tree, and drank from the well dug for the use of Robert Pierce, my gr. gr. gr. gr. father. It is bounded on the east by the Atlantic, and on the south by the mouth of Neponset River." This well is about thirty rods from the Railroad station at Neponset, near the river. It is supposed that he also built the house where Lewis Pierce, a descendant, now lives, on Adams Street, and who now preserves some of the bread that Robert brought from England.

Robert m. Ann Greenway, the dau. of John Greenway, (by wf. Mary, who d. 23, 11. 1658,) who was one of the first settlers of Dorchester, and who was generally called Goodman Greenway. Ann was b. in England, 1591, and lived to the uncommon age of "about 104 years." She d. Dec. 31, 1695. His death is recorded thus: "Robert Pierce of the great lotts, d. 5th and buried 7, 11 mo. 1667;" but another record says he d. Jany. 11, 1664. The name of Pierce has ever been very common in New England, there having been several emigrants of that name. There was a John, of Dorchester, contemporary with Robert, made a freeman 1631; John of Watertown, was made a freeman, Mh. 1637–8; he had a son Robert, made a freeman 1642; Daniel was a proprietor of Watertown, Feb. 1636–7, made a freeman in 1738, and moved to Newbury that year. Edward was in Watertown 1639, is said to have moved to Weathersfield, Ct. Robert of Woburn, was the ancestor of President Pierce; Dr. Bond thinks he may have been the son of John, of Watertown. No connection has ever been traced between either of these families. The name has undergone more changes of orthography than any other name I have ever found. It has been written Pierce, Peirce, Parse, Parz, Perce, Pearce, Pers, &c.

The descendants of Robert, of Dorchester, have been men of substance, being industrious and frugal, and have held a respectable rank in society, having intermarried with many of the most respectable families in Dorchester and the vicinity.

The following Pedigree of this family is only brought down a few generations; the descendants of Robert now living, will be generally able to connect themselves with the different branches.

ROBERT PIERCE m. ANN GREENWAY, who d. Dec. 31, 1695, aged "about 104." He d. Jany. 5, 1664, or 1667.

TOLMANS.

THOMAS TOLMAN emigrated to this country and settled at Dorchester, at what period is not known, but probably about 1635 or 1636, and not in 1630 as has been erroneously stated. He owned a large tract of land westerly of Neponset Bridge, and also lands that are now included in the bounds of Sharon and Stoughton. His house stood near the north side of the Creek over which the turnpike road passes, about a quarter of a mile from Neponset Bridge. He was admitted a freeman in 1640.

In a notice of him in the Gen. Register, the names of his chil. are given, and mention is made of his "second wife Sarah." This I apprehend is a mistake; his first wife was prob. Sarah, whom he m. before he emigrated, and several of his chil. were probably b. in England, perhaps the first four, as no record of their births are to be found, neither any record of the death of his first wife, or marriage to his second wife Katherine, who d. Nov. 7, 1677. His will is in the Probate Office at Boston.

EBENEZER TOLMAN'S JOURNAL.

In the 6th vol. of the New England Historic-Genealogical Register, commencing at page 129, is published what is called a "Journal kept by Joseph Ware, of Needham, Mass." This journal purports to be a record of daily events as they occurred to the army under Col. Arnold, in the expedition to Quebec in 1775. The paternity of this Journal is in dispute. I have been furnished by Mr. William Tolman, of Watertown, N. Y. with a portion of a Journal, a part having been lost, which he alleges was "kept" by his father, Ebenezer Tolman, who was a member of the same company to which Mr. Ware belonged. A comparison of this journal with what is called the original of Mr. Ware, establishes the fact that one is a copy of the other, or that both are copies of some other. They are, with the exception of now and then a word, identically the same, save one important entry which will be noticed. A comparison also shows with considerable certainty that they were written by the same hand. The writing is very similar, and I think I am not mistaken in the opinion that he who penned the one also penned the other, and there is a reasonable presumption that Mr. Tolman was the penman, and that the one furnished me by his son is the original; and for several reasons. First, it appears to have been written at different periods, and has an older appearance than Mr. Ware's copy, which looks as though it was written all at one time, and almost with the same pen. Second, Mr. Ware does not use the personal pronoun I from beginning to end, whereas Mr. Tolman says under date of Jany. 19, 1776, "This day I was taken down with the small pox and carried to the Hospital, and in 15 days was able to return to the prison." And lastly, two sons and two daughters of Mr. Tolman now living, all unite in saying that they have, time and again, heard their father speak of his journal as one that he "kept" on the march and while in prison, and that they have no doubt that it is in his handwriting. They do not wish to have injustice done to Mr. Ware, neither do they wish that their father should have credit for that which does not belong to him. Mr. Tolman and Mr. Ware had frequent intercourse after the war, and the former may have furnished the latter with a copy of the journal.

Were it not that this book has extended beyond the limits which I intended, I should have been pleased to have published portions of the Journal, and also other facts relating to Mr. Tolman. He, like the rest of the soldiers, suffered great hardships on the march, being almost starved for want of provisions, was imprisoned nearly a year, and a part of the time in irons for an attempt that was made to break prison by those confined.

JOHN LOCKE, OF HAMPTON, N. H.

TRADITION says that JOHN LOCKE came from Yorkshire, England, in 1644, (some accounts say 1638,) and "first settled at Dover in N. H. where he owned a right of land;" that from thence he moved to what is known as Fort Point, in New Castle, and about 1652 married Elizabeth, the dau. of William Berry, (who was probably the first settler of Hampton,) at a place called Sandy Beach, now Rye.

From New Castle, Mr. Locke moved to Sagamore Creek, where he resided till 1655, when he went to Hampton. After a thorough search of the ancient records at Dover, Portsmouth, and Hampton, I have come to the conclusion that so far as dates at least are concerned, that full reliance cannot be placed upon the above tradition. There is no record evidence that Mr. Locke ever resided at or had a "right of land" at Dover; his name is not found among the early settlers. The first notice I find of him is in the Portsmouth records, viz: — "And likewise John Locke is to have a house lott between John Jackson's and William Cotten's rails, the lott eight acres. At a town meeting held this first day of Januarie, 1656."

At a meeting Jany. 22, 1660, "John Locke having eight acres to have eight more;" and the same year there was laid out to him eight acres from Stoney Brook towards John Jones, 24 pole wide and 40 pole back into the woods, upon a South West line. This was prob. the 8 acres granted Jany. 22, 1660. John Locke, of Portsmouth, Carpenter, and wf. Elizabeth, sold James Drew a new dwelling-house and 8 acres, Mh. 23, 1660-61, and Sep. 8, 1674 he sold 8 acres to William (Collins?) "dividend land in Portsmouth." The latter sale was undoubtedly after he located himself on what was a "disputed territory," being claimed on the one side by Portsmouth or New Castle, and on the other by Hampton. The little knowledge I have of the locations at Rye and Hampton, does not enable me to speak very decidedly about the lands first granted him; but Thomas J. Parsons, Esq. of Rye, to whom I am greatly indebted for the statistics of the family and descendants of John Locke, says that he has no doubt but what the second grant of "8 acres," was in the vicinity of Locke's Neck. My want of knowledge forbids of my going furtherinto the details. I am pretty well satisfied he did not move to Joscelyn's Neck till about 1665 or 6.

At a town meeting in Portsmouth, Mh. 8, 1665-6, he subscribed 5s for Mr. Moody (the minister,) and the same year Capt. Locke was fined 5, whether shillings or pounds, or for what is not stated, — "Oct. 26, 1671, a noate drawne on Hen. Dering, Constable, to pay John Locke 12s." Being a carpenter, he would be likely to be called upon to do work out of the town where he then resided, (Hampton.)

The present age is noted for claiming for individuals the paternity of various measures and inventions, and perhaps it would be well to claim for Capt. Locke the credit of being the first "squatter." It appears by the records of Hampton, that he "sat down on the common lands at Josselyn's Neck," and began clearing a farm without saying "by your leave," and as the inhabitants claimed a right of saying who should be citizens of the town, they were rather indignant at his independence, and May 24, 1666, (1666-7?) they chose a committee to pull up his fence; and Mh. 12, 1667, "to warn him to desist from improving the town's land, and to notify him that the town is displeased with his building there." Complaint was made against him as a "trespasser," and he was warned to appear at the next meeting and give an account of himself. On the 8 (28?) of March, 1667, (1667–8?) the town voted as follows, viz, "Upon the motion of John Locke, who desireth to yield himself to the town of Hampton as an inhabitant here amongst us, being already settled upon Josselyn's Neck in Hampton bounds, the towne hath accepted of ye said John Locke for an inhabitant accordingly," and thus the "squatter" became transformed into an "inhabitant," and here he continued to reside the rest of his days. "John Locke, Senr was killed by the Heathen in his lot at work upon, Aug. 26, 1696," [Hampton Town Rec.] I extract from the Rev. Huntington Porter's discourse, delivered at Rye, Jany. 1, 1801, the following. In the year 1694, [it should be 1696] a person by the name of John Locke being at the Neck, was ambushed and killed by them (i. e. the Indians,) as he was reaping grain in his field; against whom it seems they had some time before, formed a particular grudge, on account of his having been very active against them, and instrumental in defeating them in several of their attempts to destroy the inhabitants on the sea-coast; and who, at this time, came eight in number, with an express design, (as appeared afterwards,) to avenge themselves in his death; and having accomplished their bloody purpose, returned again without any other material damage."

Another account says that a boy was with him, who secreted himself under some bundles of grain and escaped, and that Capt. Locke after being shot, struck one of the Indians with his sickle, and partly cut off his nose.

"Josselyn's Neck" since that time has been known by the name of "Locke's Neck." He is supposed to have been 70 years old at the time of his death, although one account says 78 — the first is probably the most correct.

There has been an impression on the minds of a few individuals that there was another Locke at Hampton or in the vicinity, at an early period. In 1810, May 10, Jonathan and David Locke made the following deposition, which is preserved at Rye.

"This may certify to whom it may concern, that the following genealogy of the ancestors, in substance as followeth, hath been told unto us by our forefathers, the truth to which we attest to, viz.: 1st, We say that Jonathan Palmer, deceased, was the son and lawful heir to Christopher Palmer and Elizabeth Palmer.

2d. Christopher Palmer's wife Elizabeth, was daughter and lawful heir to William and Judith Berry.

3d. William Berry's wife Judith was daughter and lawful heir to the Locke and his wife who came from England, said Locke's wife's name before marriage was Hermins, and she brought with her into New England a coat of arms, so called, which referred to John Hermins. William Berry's wife Judith was daughter and lawful heir to Nathaniel Locke and his wife, whose name previous to marriage was Hermins."

The facts here stated are not wholly to be relied on. The records of Rye show that Christopher Palmer m. Elizabeth Locke, July 24, 1705, and that their son, Jonathan was b. May 16, 1707. How William Berry and his wife Judith became mixed up in the story I know not, but think it is possible that Judith, the wife of William Berry, was the wid. of Nathaniel Locke, and the mother by said Locke of Elizabeth Locke, who m. Christopher Palmer.

The records of Portsmouth give evidence that there was a Nathaniel Locke there in 1672.

"Mh. 4 & 5, 1672, Nathaniel Locke did two days work on Highways at Great Island" (New Castle) and Sep. 30, 1672, a noate was drawn on Henry Dering for Nathaniel Locke for six shillings." Another record is "At a meeting of the Selectmen this 5th March 1674–5, upon motion made by Widow Locke to live in the school house on the Great Island in order to the teaching of children to read and sew, have granted her desire." Was she not the wid. of Nathaniel before mentioned? I will only add, that tradition says that the other Locke (not John) left no sons. John and Nathaniel were probably brothers, and perhaps were the sons of John Locke, of London, who m. Christian French, July 26, 1624, and had John, b. Sep. 16, 1627, and Nathaniel, b. Nov. 11, 1629.

I have endeavored to arrange the following account of the descendants of Capt. Locke in the best manner possible from the materials which I have been able to obtain. It is very probable that some errors may be found. The imperfect records that have been received do not enable me to place, with an absolute certainty, each individual in the family to which he belongs. I hope my namesakes of New Hampshire will give me credit for what I have done, rather than find fault for what I have not done.

[When no STATE is named, NEW HAMPSHIRE is understood.]

1 CAPT. JOHN LOCKE, m. ELIZABETH BERRY, dau. of William, of Portsmouth, about 1652. There is no record to be found of the births of his chil. but from a deposition made by his son John, (who was prob. the eldest) in 1729, he, John, Jr. was b. about 1654, and at the settlement of the estate of the father, the chil. are named in the order in which I place them below. He was killed as before stated, Aug. 26, 1696; his wid. was living, Feb. 1707.

2 John, b. about 1654; m. Elizabeth 2
3 Elizabeth, b. ; prob. d. unmd. before 1708, as she is not named in the settlement of her father's estate.

5 Alice, or Else, b. ; was living in 1708, by some it has been supposed that she was the wf. of Nehemiah Berry, who m. Alice Locke, Mh. 14, 1714, but this last Alice it is now supposed was a grand dau. of John, Sen.
6 Edward, b. ; m. Hannah Jenness. 4
7 Tryphena, b. ; was living in 1708, (see 18.)
8 Rebeckah, b. ; was living in 1708.
9 Mary, was living in 1708; [did she m. William Hopworth, of Boston, Jany. 3, 1697?]
10 William, b. Ap. 17, 1677; m. Hannah Knowles, Nov. 23, 1699. 5
11 James, b. ; m. 6
12 Joseph, b. ; m. Salome (White?) 7

2 JOHN LOCKE, [2] m. ELIZABETH . His father, about 1677, gave him half his right of land on "Josling's Neck." Feb. 8, 1707–8, John, Jr. then Senr. gave his son John, Jr. half of all his lands at "Josling's Neck," in consideration that he pay a debt to Robert Elliot; and the other half on condition that he maintain his mother, and pay his brother Jethro £5. He had the following children, perhaps others.

It has generally been supposed that that she was a dau. of John Locke, Senr. but from the age of her husband and other facts, the presumption is that she was a gr. dau. of John, Senr. and prob. dau. of Nathaniel, though she may have been a dau. of John, Jr.

19 Elizabeth, b. 1693–4; m. Thomas Leavitt, Nov. 24, 1715. She d. at Hampton Falls, July 11, 1776, a. 82. It is not certain that she was a dau. of Nathaniel — she may have been a niece; possibly a dau. of John, Jr. or of James.

LOCKES OF RHODE ISLAND.

It was my intention to have given some account of the family or families of Lockes that were at Block Island, Richmond, Charlestown, Kingston, and other places in Rhode Island. I am indebted to Hon. Wilkins Updike of Kingston, W. P. Sheffield, Esq. of Fall River, and W. C. Folger, Esq. of Nantucket, for their efforts to promote the success of my inquiries. But the information obtained is yet so incomplete, and much of it so entirely traditionary, that I have concluded to postpone any general history of those families until more facts can be obtained, merely observing that tradition says that John or Joseph Locke came from Scotland to Block Island, probably after 1700, that he was sold into temporary slavery to pay his expenses out, and that he married Marcy [Mercy?] Honneywell or Hunneywell, who was also sold for like cause, and that he had children: Joseph, (a) Timothy, Edward, Marcy, [Mercy] Nathaniel and Abijah.

Of this tradition I have some doubts, in part at least, having a half-formed opinion that John, b. 1689, the oldest son of Nathaniel of Hampton, N. H. and Joseph, Abijah and Timothy, younger brothers of John, settled in Rhode Island, and were the first of the name in that State. Nathaniel, of Hampton, [see page] had a very large family, among whom were four sons of the same names as the foregoing, and of whom no account can be found at Hampton, excepting a tradition that one or more of them went to Rhode Island.

It is not however improbable, that there may have been an emigrant from Scotland by the name of Joseph or John, under the circumstances before named, and that in addition thereto some branches of the Hampton family may have also settled at Block Island or in other parts of the State. It is stated on the authority of an old lady, descended from Timothy of Block Island, and afterwards of South Kingston, that Timothy came from "below" Boston, in which town he learned the trade of a cordwainer, and m. Mary Mott at Block Island. This Timothy, I think, was from Hampton, and his wife Mary Mott or her parents may have also been from Hampton or vicinity. The "old Norfold" Records of Mass. give us the name of Nathaniel and Elizabeth Mott, of Block Island, residing in Old Norfolk in 1685. This Timothy is said to have died in 1797, a. 97.

(a) Mr. Charles B. Locke, of Richmond, R. I. is a descendant of this Joseph. He has manifested an interest in the history of his ancestors, and furnished me with many facts. Mr. Charles F. T. Locke, of Oxford, Chenango Co. N. Y. is a gr. son of a Nathaniel of Block Island, who moved to Chenango Co. N. Y. and d. before 1797, leaving 18 chil.

If we may believe tradition, another family of a different origin also resided at Block Island, that of Nathaniel "who came from England," and had by his 1. wf. Ann, John, b. about 1745, or 1750, (who was a master mariner,) and by 2. wf. who was Temperance Rose, had a son Abijah, who was also a master mariner. But I have no reliable information that will establish the fact that Nathanniel the father was "from England." He may have been from Hampton. There were undoubtedly two brothers named John and Abijah, master mariners, and of whom I have some very interesting particulars.

Here I shall leave the question, requesting that any information relating to the Rhode Island families may be forwarded to me, which will be thankfully received.

HISTORICAL ACCOUNT OF THE LOCKE FAMILY IN ENGLAND.

AND ORIGIN OF THE NAME AND ARMS.

From the "Gentleman's Magazine," Vol. 62, Part 2, page 798. 1792.

[The notes are by the author of the Book of the Lockes.]

Mr. Urban, East Brent, Somersetshire, July 17.

In pursuance of the wishes of A. B. in p. 555, I here send you some account of the Locke family. If it be not better done by any other hand, it is at his and your service.

Tradition considers the name of Locke of Scotch extraction, originally spelt Loch; but, if so, it must have been in very early time; for when Alfred divided this kingdom into parishes, the dwelling of a great man, known by the name of Locke, was called after him Lockstown, or the Town of Locke. It adjoins East Brent whence I date this letter, and where the family at one time became numerous. At present it is called Lockston alias Loxton, the lordship of which belongs to the Marquis of Buckingham. The parish of Locking is distant two miles from Lockstown, and hath long since been divided; but a large farm of many hundreds per annum, called Lockinghead, together with the perpetuity of the living, belongs to the merchants of Bristol,

The Locke family in this neighborhood consider themselves as descended from a very ancient house, arguing that they gave name to the parishes where they lived, before the Conquest, and do not derive their name with a De from the parishes, as is very commonly the case.

However, I have not seen any account of this family before Robert Locke, whom we find to have been joined with Thomas de Saint Maur, as Vicecomes of Wiltshire, anno 1350. John Locke, sheriff of London, 1460, is the first in a pedigree in my possession. Thomas, his son, was a merchant in London, who died anno 1507, and by Joan his wife (who was the only daughter and heir of Mr. Wilcock of Rotheram in Yorkshire) left three sons, John, William, and Michael. John is said to have died without issue, and buried in Mercer's Chapel, 1519, with his arms (a) in the window, a proof the family bore arms before those granted by Queen Mary, 1555. William, married two wives; (b) first, Elizabeth, daughter and heir of Mr. Spencer, a citizen and fishmonger of London; secondly, Catharine, daughter of William, and sister and co-heir of (a) I am of opinion, after an examination of Stow's "Survey of London," that the "arms in the window" were those of Sir William Locke, who was buried in Mercer's Chapel in 1550; yet a doubt remains.

(b) He had four wives.

Sir Thomas Cook, of Wiltshire, knight. Rose Locke, the only daughter by the second ventor was married to Anthony, son of Walter Hickman of Woodford, in Essex, Esq.; by whom she became ancestor to the baronets of that name, the late Lord Montjoy, the present Earl of Plymouth. Matthew Locke, the youngest son by the first ventor, had an only daughter Elizabeth, married to Richard Chandler of London, merchant, son of William Chandler of Little Walsingham, in Norfolk, Gent.; whose only daughter Elizabeth married Ferdinando Richardson (who died 1596), groom of the stole to Queen Elizabeth. The above William Locke, 25 Henry VIII. undertook to go over to Dunkirk, and pull down the pope's bull, which had been there posted up by way of a curse to the king and kingdom. For this exploit the king granted him a freehold of £100 per annum, dubbed him knight, and made him one of the gentlemen of his privy-chamber. Sir William lived to be an alderman of London, and was sheriff of the city in 1548. He died 1550, and by his first wife, left issue eight sons and daughters, exclusive of Matthew already mentioned. Of these elder branches of Sir William Locke's family we have in Somersetshire a very imperfect account. George Locke, of Tiverton, who was buried at St. Sidwell's in Exeter, anno 1586, was supposed to be one of the sons. And from another of them, Thomas Locke of Little Horsely, in Essex, is said to have been descended. He married Susannah, daughter of Sir William Welby, of Gedney, in Lincolnshire, Knight of the Bath, whose issue was an only daughter, Susannah, wife of the Rev. John Carse, D. D. She died Nov. 10, 1649. Perhaps from one of these sons descended the Rev. John Locke, Rector of Askerwell, in the County of Dorset, father to the Rev. William Locke, who died 1686, and who by a daughter of the Rev. Lyte Whynnel, clerk, became seized of the perpetuity of his father's living, which was by the Rev. William Locke, his son (who died May 8, 1722), sold to William Bennet of Norton Bavent in the County of Wilts, whose grandson is the present incumbent. It has been supposed that we are indebted to some part of Sir William Locke's family for two very respectable characters, in the persons of Sir John Locke, Knight, an East India director, who died 1746, and James Locke his brother, husband to the Turkey Company. I think you have told us in your Magazine, that a Mr. Oates, of Richmond in Surry, had one hundred and fifty thousand pounds in 1748, with a daughter of the latter; and a Mr. Rawlinson, of Wiltshire, is thought to have had some such sum with a daughter of the former, with whom he intermarried in 1740.

The Rev. Mr. Locke, of Newark upon Trent, the Lockes of Oxfordshire, Gloucestershire, Wiltshire, Essex, London, and Bristol, including the celebrated Miss Locke of poetical memory, (see p. 72 of your present volume,) can say whether they do or do not derive their descent from Sir William Locke, Knight, Alderman of London.

Michael Locke, younger brother (a) of Sir William, according to a pedigree now before me, was father amongst other children of Matthew Locke, who became seated at Pensford in Buckinghamshire, and had two sons, Richard and Christopher. The former was of Bedminster in the County of Somerset, and, dying 1617, left John Locke, his son, Mayor of Bristol 1641, father of another John Locke of Bristol, merchant, whose son, Samuel Locke, became a merchant in London, and of whose family and death I have not been able to procure any account. Christopher Locke, the youngest son, soon after Abbot Whiting's lands at East Brent were granted to the Whitmore family, was sent into that (a) English antiquarians have supposed that the Michael Locke here spoken of was a son of Sir William and not his brother, and so I have represented him in the chart that follows this article; but I have strong suspicion that the statement in the text is true, and that Sir William had both a brother and a son named Michael. If I am right in my supposition, Matthew of Pensford, who is represented in the chart as the son of Michael, and gr. son of Sir William, was in fact the son of Michael and nephew of Sir William.

parish (which as I before observed adjoins to Lockstown), to divide the forfeited estates into farms; and having laid out a valuable farm for himself at a place called Pilrow, built a large house and became the stem of a very respectable family, whose baptisms, as by the parish register penes me, are as follows:

1. Christopher, bapt. March 25, 1593, father of another Christopher of Pilrow, William of South Brent, and John of Locke's Broad House, in the parish of Mark. This last Christopher had two daughters, Anne and Christian; the former married, first, Henry Symonds of South Brent, ancestor to the Symondses and Hardens; and, secondly, to Tory Tutton, great-grandfather of Isaac Phelps of South Brent, Esq. Christian intermarried with Robert Dod of Burnham, ancestor of the Dods of that parish. William of South Brent had one daughter, Mary, who married John Petheram, ancestor to the Petherams of this neighborhood. John of Locks Broad had but one daughter, Elizabeth, who married John Champion, and, by a female issue, became ancestor of the Guy family.

2. John Locke, baptized Aug. 1, 1595, was church-warden of the parish 1630, and upon our parish-book his name is signed as is represented in Plate II. (where the Locke arms are also engraved Fig. 4.) He became a captain of foot in the civil wars of Charles the First, and was killed at Bristol in 1645. (a.) He had two sons, one of whom died in his minority; the other was the judicious John Locke, the great metaphysician and philosopher; of whom hereafter.

3. Honour, bapt. August 21, 1597, and, intermarrying with Francis Shepard of Mark, became ancestor of the Shepards, Giles's, Giblets, Stars, Coomers, Counsels, and Smeaths in this part of Somersetshire.

4. Christian, bapt. July 3, 1601; of whom we have no farther account.

5. Lewis Locke, baptized 13th July 1606; was buried at Taunton Saint Mary Magdalen, March 27, 1692. By four wives he had thirty-five children, most of whom lived to be men and women; and what is more remarkable, his eldest son John, born 1625, was fifty-nine years of age, when his youngest son Christopher was born at Taunton, anno 1684. It is reported in the family that John had a great-grandson as old as his younger brother; which is, perhaps, the chief reason why this branch of the family cannot truly ascertain their respective degrees of kindred. It is, however, generally believed, that all the Lockes of Somersetshire and Devonshire derive themselves from this Lewis; but whether so or not, we know that Allen, one of the younger sons by the last wife, was father of another Allen who was father of the present Mr. Thomas Locke of Taunton, Maltster, who has six sons, three of whom are settled in London and three in Taunton, the youngest being a Master of Arts of the University of Oxford, also one daughter not yet married.

William Locke of Pitminster, near Taunton, was another son of Lewis by his fourth wife. He married Dorothy, daughter of Richard Cooksley of Dunstar, Gentleman, and died Jany. 25, 1719, aged 49. His only son Richard married Hannah, the only daughter of John Dod, of Burnham in the County of Somerset, Gentleman, and became an inhabitant of that parish. He died 1765, aged 59, leaving the present Richard Locke, Esq. of Highbridge House in Burnham, his son and heir. This last gentleman is well known in the literary line as an Antiquary and Agriculturist, he having in the course of forty years written many essays and short pieces, upon various subjects, in the different periodical publications of the day, some with, but more without his real signature. His two essays in the fifth volume of the Bath Agricultural Society's papers, (one on the improvement of meadow land; the other, an historical account of the flat part of Somersetshire, as it has been and still is capable of improvement,) are originals in their kind. He has been announced in your present volume, (p. 241,) as the original author of the History of Taunton; in which town he was not a resident, as there intimated, having always resided in Burnham where he was born. The ingenious Mr. Richard Locke, of Magdalen-Hall, Oxford, is his only son. The arms borne by this branch of the family are: Party per fesse, Azure and Or, a pale between three falcons indorsed, counterchanged. Crest: a falcon of the same with a padlock in its beak.

(a) That Capt. Locke was killed as above related, has been stated by several authors; but Lord King, in the life of John, the son of Capt. Locke, speaking of a letter written by John the son to his father, says "It is without date, but was probably written before 1660."

Another Richard Locke of Pitminster, above mentioned, was author of two mathematical tracts; one intitled, "An Essay on the Longitude," printed for Meadows and Ashby, in 1732; the other "The Circle Squared," printed for J. Wilford in 1734. I do not know whether he was a grandson or a great-grandson of Lewis; but he was uncle to the present John Locke, Esq. of Pitminster, whose only daughter and heir was lately married to Thomas Welman, Esq. near Taunton.

John Locke, Esq. the celebrated philosopher, was son of Captain Locke, already mentioned to have been killed at Bristol. He was born at Wrington (which is eight miles from East Brent), 29th August, 1632; and immediately upon the death of his father, was sent to Westminster School; whence he was removed to Christ-Church College, Oxford, in 1651; took his degree of Bachelor of Arts in 1655, and Master of Arts in 1658; became Secretary to Sir William Swan, an English Envoy to one of the foreign Courts in 1664; travelled with the Earl of Northumberland in 1668; began to write his essay on "Human Understanding" in 1670; made Fellow of the Royal Society in 1671; Secretary of the Presentations under Lord Chancellor Cowper in 1672; Secretary to a Commission of Trade, in 1673; took the degree of Bachelor of Physick in 1674; travelled to France in 1675; became a courtier under the Earl of Shaftsbury in 1679; was prosecuted for libelling the Government in 1682; deprived of all preferments, even his student's place at Christ-Church College in 1683. By the application of William Penn to King James the Second, he might have received his pardon on pleading guilty, which he refused with this memorable saying, "He had committed no crime, and therefore should not plead guilty." In 1685 he fled to Holland, and was one of the Eighty-four persons demanded by King James of the State's General, which made him live in exile till 1687, when he constituted a weekly assembly at Amsterdam; amongst whom were Mr. Le Clerc, Mr. Limborch, &c. &c. In 1689 he returned to England, with the Princess of Orange; was made a Commissioner of Appeals in 1690; appointed one of the Commissioners of Trade and Plantations in 1695, which he resigned for want of health in 1700. He died at Oates, in the County of Essex, the country-seat of Sir Francis Masham, Bart., on the 28th of October, 1704. His works consist of twenty-two different publications, collected in three volumes folio.

I have never seen any account of this gentleman's marriage; neither do I know upon what ground Sir Peter King, Lord Chanceller of England, was considered his nephew, unless it was in consequence of becoming his heir.(a) Near fifty years since I heard one of the grandsons of Lewis Locke call the chancellor, son of a tallow-chandler in Exeter, and treat his name with some reproach, under the idea of having supplanted the Locke family in the affections of their relation; although this gentleman allowed he was not the heir, neither could he tell who was. Perhaps some of the female line of his father's elder brother.

That too much room for local matter may not be stolen in such an useful work as the Gentleman's Magazine, it became necessary to introduce within a narrow compass as much information as possible. It must therefore be expected that many younger branches of this respectable family are left unnoticed, and many proofs omitted, that might have been adduced; but if there be any imperfection

"P. S. Having room, I ask Q, is the Rev. Dr. Locke of Norwich, and the Rev. William Locke, Rector of Burwell in Norfolk, mentioned in "Walker's Sufferings of the Clergy," p. 296, the same person, and how connected with this family?"

The following was from another corresponent: —

Mr. Urban, August 22.

"The inquiries of your correspondent A. B. (p. 555) as to the family of Mr. Locke, I am not furnished with materials to answer, but have no doubt, many of your readers have it in their power to give a very satisfactory answer to them. With respect to his arms, I can inform A. B. that he bore, or claimed to bear, Party per fesse Az. and Or, a pale counterchanged; on the three pieces of the first as many falcons (or hawks) volant of the second. At the same time it is proper to inform him that Edmonson, in his Alphabet of Arms, gives the following coat as granted to the name of Locke 5 July, 2 Philip and Mary, viz. Per fesse Az. and Or, a pale counterchanged, three hawks with wings indorsed of the last. Crest: a hawk with wings indorsed, holding in his beak a padlock, Or."

As it respects the name of Locke and the Arms, my efforts in endeavoring to discover the origin have been of little avail. In the article on page 342, it is said that "Tradition considers the name of Locke of Scotch extraction originally spelt Loch, but if so, it must have been in early time; for when Alfred divided this kingdom [England] into parishes, the dwelling of a great man known by the name of Locke was called after him Lockstown or the Town of Locke." Again: "The Locke family consider themselves as descended from a very ancient house, arguing that they gave the name to the parishes where they lived, before the Conquest, and do not derive their name with a De, from the parishes, as is very commonly the case."

Surnames were not common in England until after the time of William the Conqueror, and the above statement may admit of some doubt, although the authority is allowed, by some of the most learned antiquarians in England, to be generally reliable. The English word lock is from the Anglo Saxon loc or loce, an enclosed place, the fastening of a door, a curl of hair; and the Danish word lok and the German locke, has the same general signification. The Welch word llocc is a sheep-cote, a fold, or close or narrow place, and the Gælic word loch means a lake, a bay, or arm of the sea, (that is, water confined or enclosed more or less.) The Greek word for lake, in its radical sense, means a hole or other place that contains or holds. The original idea appears, then, in all these different languages, something that encloses or confines. But when and why it became a family name, must be left for others, more learned than the writer, to discover.

The Lockes in England are perhaps of a different origin from the Scotch Lochs, as the former in their bearings have the falcon and the padlock, while the latter have swans swimming in a lake. The orthography has ever been various. Some of the earliest records give us Locke, and somewhat later I find Loc, Lok, and Lock and Locke. Sir William's name is given Lock and Locke; his sons, Michael and John, who were both men of education, wrote it Lok, and the same variations are found through several centuries, showing most conclusively that the particular way which individuals may spell their names, is no proof that they are descendants from distinct families.

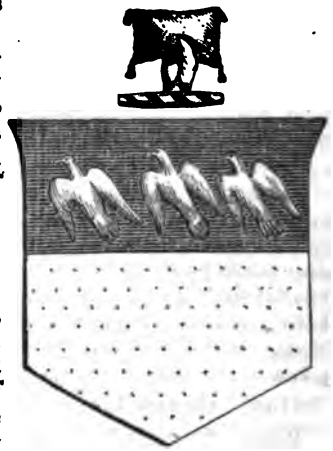
ARMS.

It is difficult, and in many cases impossible to determine when Arms were granted or for what cause, and the records of the Heralds' Visitations at London do not show the reasons for the particular bearings. In many instances the bearings were probably fanciful, either on the part of the person to whom they were granted, or that of the "Garter King of Arms," by whom they were granted. But in other cases the bearings had reference to the profession, occupation, or name itself, or to some exploit by which the person had made himself distinguished, some heroic deed of daring, as the capture of a castle or an enemy's ship. The reference to such acts would be shown more particularly in the Crests. The Heraldic books contain the description of eight Coats of Arms granted in England to the name of Lock and Locke, and one to that of Loch. Seven have the same principal bearings, three falcons, but somewhat differently arranged in the shield. This similarity shows that those to whom they were granted were all descendants from one original stock, the several arrangements with some slight additions designating different branches.



The Arms which I give stand first in Burke's General Armory, and no date being given, I presume they were those first granted, and probably to Sir William Locke, in the reign of Henry VIII. having reference to his exploit of going to Dunkirk in France, and tearing down the Pope's Bull of Excommunication against the King, a deed which at the present time would not be of much moment, but at that age when the Pope claimed great powers, and who was dreaded and feared by the people, it might require as much moral courage as to storm a castle. The cushion in the crest has reference probably to the Church, either Popish or Protestant, being symbolical thereof, and may be understood to mean, if it referred to the Popish, that he tore it down, or if to the Protestant, that he supported it. In the other crests, the padlock forms a part, and may have had a reference to the name, which was, in heraldry, called "punning," and if, as stated above the arms which are here represented, are those that were first granted to the name of Locke, I think we may reasonably conclude that the padlock was an afterthought, and had no original connection with the name. That they are the oldest, in the absence of any date of their grant, the strongest evidence, according to the best authorities, is that the particular manner in which they are "blazoned" indicates more antiquity, than does the style of blazonry exhibited in the other Arms.

The following Arms are described by Burke and others:

Lock. (London.) Per fesse az. and or, in chief three falcons volant of the second. Crest — A hand ppr. holding up a cushion or. [See arms above.]

Lock. (Warnford, Co. Southampton.) (Rouge Dragon, Pursuivant of Arms, granted 1767.) Per fesse az. and or, a pale counterchanged; on the first three falcons rising of the second, collared gu. Crest — A falcon as in the arms, in the beak a padlock pendant sa.

According to the preceding article, the name of Locke was known in England in the time of King Alfred, about the year 880, when the place where a "great man" known by that name, "was called after him Lockstown, or the Town of Locke." As greatness would not be acquired in a day, it is presumable that the family had been known for a considerable period anterior to that time. The name does not stand out prominent in the early or more modern history of England, (excepting in the instance of John, the great philosopher, who stands at the head of greatness and goodness in the ranks of the learned,) however it often appears, and connected with events and individuals, which shows that they were of respectable standing. To gratify the curiosity of some, and for a future reference, should any one wish hereafter to make further researches in England, I subjoin a few facts that have been collected, many of them being taken from documents published a few years since under the direction of the "Record Commissioners," by the Government of Great Britain, an incomplete copy having been given by said Government to the New England Historic-Genealogical Society. In many cases, the simple name only, and the date when recorded, is given. The different orthographies are seen.

had rights granted them by the King of Norway, Dacia and Sweden, they had been robbed and ill-treated by the merchants of Hanse, and though the King of Sweden had imposed a fine of 1500 marks upon the aggressors, it had never been paid, and their troubles still continued; and that in 1409, a ship was freighted by William Locke and others, of Lenn, for Berne and Wysmer, and the captain of the ship was seized at Berne, and ordered to return to Lenn; and they claimed a redress for their great losses.

Sir William Locke was employed by Henry VIII., having the charge of his commercial affairs "both at home and abroad." In the Cottonian Library, London, are several manuscript letters from him to the King, and to Secretary Cromwell, dated at Antwerp, in 1533–4, 1535 and 1538, relating to some works carrying on at Calais, concerning negotiations with France and about the woollen trade. He was, says Collins, "Particularly employed by Queen Anne Bullen, [Boleyn] privately to gather the Epistles, Gospels and Psalms, from beyond sea, in which he ran great hazard, some having been secretly made away with, for attempting the same thing." He had four wives, (see the chart, p. 358–9,) and twenty or more children, many of which died young. The name of his first wife has been variously given by different writers; some say it was Alice Spence, and others Elizabeth Spencer. Anciently the names of Elizabeth and Alice were convertible, one for the other. The records of the Herald's office, which are the best authority, say that her name was Alice Spence.

In the Cottonian Library is also "a manuscript of many pages," dated 1577, written by "Michael Lok," in which he says he "is son of Sir Wm. Lok, Knight, Alderman of London, that he (Michael) was kept at schools of grammar in Eng. until he was 13, when he was sent over the seas to Flanders and France to learn their languages, and to know the world, since which time he has continued these 32 years to travel in body and mind, following his vocation in the trade of merchandize, passing through many countries, had the charge of and captain of a great ship of more than 1000 tons, three years in divers voyages; and that he has more than 200 sheets of manuscripts of his travels," which he wishes to publish.

In Hakluyt's "Divers Voyages," pub. 1582, is a letter dated 1575, from James Alday to the "Worshipful Mr. Michael Locke, Agent in London for the Muscovie Co." Hakluyt's Voyages also contain a History of Sir Martin Frobishere's Voyage for the discovery of a passage towards Cathay, in 1574, written by Michael Locke, Locke himself being a great adventurer therein."

Hakluyt, in the introduction to his book, speaking of a passage to Cathay, says, "Secondly, that Master John Verazanus, which had been thrice on that coast, in an olde excellent mappe which he gave to King Henrie the eighth, and is yet in the custodie of master Locke," &c. Again. "The mappe is master Michael Locke's, a man for his knowledge in divers languages, and especially in cosmographie, able to do his country good, and worthy in my judgment for the manifolde good partes in him, of good reputation and better fortune." On this map is the following dedication:—"Illustri viro, Domino Philippo Sidnaeo Michael Lok civis Londinensis hanc Chartam dedicavit: 1582." (a)

In 1612, a book called "Peter Martyr de Novo Orbe," &c. &c. in eight decades, was pub. Three of the decades were translated from the Latin, by R. Eden and the others, "by the industrie and painfulle travaile of Mr. Lok."

5 July 1 and 2 of Philip and Mary Arms were granted or confirmed to Michael Locke.

Jerusalem in 1553, which is to be found in Hakluyt's Voyages. It contains a curious document in Latin, of which the following is a translation:

To all and each who may read the present letter, salutation in our Lord Jesus Christ. We testify to you and to others whoever they may be, how an honorable man, John Lok, the son of an honorable man, William Lok, Golden Knight, visited in person the most holy places of the Holy Land, viz. the most holy sepulchre of our Lord Jesus Christ, from which on the third day he gloriously rose from the dead, the most holy Mount of Calvary, on which, fastened to the cross, he deigned to die for us all; also, Mount Sion, where he celebrated that wonderful Supper with his disciples, and where the Holy Spirit, on the holy day of Pentecost, descended with fiery tongues on the same disciples; and Olivet, the mountain whence he miraculously ascended into heaven; the tomb of the chaste Virgin Mary, situated in the midst of the valley of Jehosaphat, and Bethany also, — Bethlehem, the City of David, in which he was born from the most pure Virgin Mary, and then was laid in a Manger — and besides other such places as well within as without the city of Jerusalem, in the Holy Land of Judea, as are customarily visited by modern travellers, he most devoutly visited, and in like manner worshipped. In attestation of which, I, brother Anthony, of Bergamos, of the order of younger brothers belonging to the regular attendance, Vicar, (perchance unworthy,) of the Convent of Mount Sion, in the province of the godlike Saint Anthony, also by apostolical authority, a commissary and rector of other places in the Holy Land, have willed that this certificate should be confirmed by the greater seal of our office, and by our subscription.

Given at the most holy chamber of the Lord, on the often memorable Mount Sion, in the year of our Lord one thousand five hundred and fifty-three, on the sixth day of the month of September.

In 1554, "A voyage to Guinea was set out by Sir George Barne, Sir John Yorke, Thomas Locke [son of Sir William] Anthonie Hickman [who m. Rose, dau. of Sir William] and Edward Casteline, the Captain whereof was Mr. John Locke [son of Sir William.] It consisted of two ships of seven score tons each, and one of ninety tons." A history of this voyage is to be found in Hakluyt, by J. Locke.

Henry Lock, prob. gr. son of Sir William, was employed by Queen Elizabeth; letters of "instructions" to him in 1592 are in the Cottonian Library.

Thomas Locke was connected with the Court of James I.

Thomas Locke, of Merton. — Lyson, in his Environs of London, says, that "Edward III. granted the Rectory of Merton belonging to a former Abbey of that name to Thomas Locke, about 1291." Here is an error, evidently, as the reign of Edward III. did not begin till 1327. Manning, in his History of the County of Surrey, within which is Merton, says of Merton Place, "Near the church is a large old mansion, which has been known from time immemorial by the name of Merton Place. In the year 1499, John Locke and Jane his wife, became possessed of it, [prob. by inheritance] in whose family it continued until the year 1646, when John, a remote descendant of John above, (and whose ancestors had in the meantime purchased the Impropriation of the Rectory in 7 of Edward VI.) conveyed it together with the Impropriation to Catherine, sometime wife of Rowland Wilson of the Parish, but late [wife] of John Highland, alderman of London."

From another source, not now recollected, I gather the following: "In the time of Henry VIII. the Locke family possessed the Estate of Merton Hall.

Thomas Locke, Esq. was minister of Merton. In 7 of Edward VI. (1552-3) the King by his letters patent dated 14 March, in consideration of the sum of £359 granted unto Thomas Locke and Mary his wife forever, the Rectory of the Church of Merton with the appurtenances, late parcel of the possessions of the dissolved priory of Merton, to be holden of the King, his heirs and successors, as of his manor of East Greenwich, in free socage and not in chief. On 29 Oct. 1643, John Locke and Jane his wife mortgaged (and in 1646 conveyed the equity of redemption of) the Rectory with all the houses, &c. to Catherine Highlord, the wid. of John Highlord, an alderman of London."

There seems to be some discrepancy in the dates, which may possibly be reconciled in this way, viz. that a portion of the premises may have been granted in 1291, and the remainder at a subsequent period. I think it is evident that they belonged to the Lockes before 1552, as the second wife of Sir William Locke was buried there Oct. 14, 1537, and Sir William himself 1550. The fact that his wife was buried there, and the similarity of Christian names, leads me to suppose that Sir William was descended from the Thomas Locke who was at Merton, 1291.

Merton Place subsequently became the property of Lord Nelson, who bequeathed it to the lady of Sir William Hamilton. [See Lyson's Env'ns of London.]

He acquired great reputation for the composition of the music for Shakspeare's and other tragedies, and subsequently was Organist for Queen Catherine II. of Portugal; and it is represented that he became a papist, of which there is some doubt. In the Gentlemen's Magazine, vol. 69, 1799, it is stated that about 1630 several persons of the name of Locke resided at Pool, in Somersetshire, who were chiefly commanders of merchant ships, and had landed property near Salisbury and Hindon, that in particular Robert Locke was one of this family, and gave precisely the same arms as John Locke; he lived at Berwick, St. Leonards, and Dinton, in Wiltshire, and d. 1706, and was buried at Dinton. This may have been the Capt. Robert Locke, commander of the ship Speedwell, of London, who in 1656, was prosecuted by the government of Massachusetts for having brought

JOHN LOCKE, "Gent."

The fame and character of John Locke, commonly called "the great philosopher and metaphysician," are too well known to require a more extended notice. For nearly two centuries the whole civilized world has acknowledged him as one of its greatest luminaries. The names of Locke, Newton, and Bacon, have long been associated as standing at the head of those great minds, whose labors in science and literature have enlightened the world. Of Locke, it may be said that he was not great only in one particular branch of learning, for his mind was capable of grasping and mastering every thing. Mataphysics, religion, and the science of government were all handled by him equally well. Free from ambition (a) and the love of wealth, rocks on which so many have been shipwrecked, he lived a long life, honored by all, and left behind him a character on which no stain could be found. His private and his public life were both equally pure. In the political changes of the day, when kings were made and unmade, he suffered political persecution, and was obliged in 1682 with many others to quit his country for safety, and he was deprived of his privileges at Oxford College by the arbitrary command of the King, in defiance of the rights of the College itself. After several years' absence, at the solicitation of William Penn, the King offered him a pardon, which was accompanied with gracious words of good will; but this he refused to accept, with this noble reply, that "he was ignorant of the crimes of which he had been declared guilty." At the revolution, however, he returned to England, and was honored by appointment to several offices, and he continued in office some years, and until his health became so impaired that he could not live in London only a few days at a time, when he sent in his resignation; on which the king sent for him, and proposed that he should retain his office and receive the emoluments, attending only occasionally, and leaving the duties to be performed by his deputies. Here again he exhibited the purity of his character by the memorable reply, "that he could not think of receiving pay for labor that he did not perform," (a) an example that is rarely followed in modern times, the practice being even in our republican country to receive all that can be obtained from the government.

All the English writers whose works I have consulted, seem to have been almost entirely ignorant of his pedigree. Even Lord King, his nephew, who was to a great extent educated by him, and who published an edition of his works, merely says that "He was the son of J. Locke, who was descended from the Lockes of Charter Court, in Dorsetshire. That his father, who was a Captain in the army of the Parliament, possessed a moderate landed property in Pensfold, [it should have been Pensford] and Bellerton, where he lived; that his fortune became so much impaired in the civil wars that he left a smaller estate to his son than he himself inherited." According to the Gent. Magazine, (see p. 344,) Capt. Locke was the son of Christopher, of Pilrow, in Somersetshire, but in the memoirs prefixed to the edition of the works of his son, pub. in London in 1801, it is said he was the son of Nicholas, of Suttenwick, in the parish of Chew-Magna, which is near Pensford, in Somersetshire. He was an Attorney, as well as a Captain, and officiated as "Steward or Court-keeper" to Col. Popham, who owned large possessions in the vicinity. Several authorities say that he was killed in battle, at or near Bristol, in 1645, and this seems to have been the prevailing opinion; but Lord King, in speaking of a letter written by John to his father, Capt. Locke, says, "It is without date, but was probably written before 1660." This remark would indicate that the father was living in 1660. Another writer says he was living at the restoration (1660), and was appointed Clerk of the Sewers. As the writer in the Gentleman's Magazine says he copies his pedigree from the record of the parish where Capt. Locke was a Church Warden, we must suppose his statement to be the most reliable, and if so, that he was the son of Christopher.

Equally contradictory are historians as to whom the wife of Capt. Locke was. Lord King, I think, does not name her. In the edition of Locke's works before named, published in 1801, in the memoir prefixed, it is said that Capt. Locke married Ann, the dau. of Edmund Keen or Ken, of Wrington; while on the other hand, the Rev. Joseph Hunter, in his article relating to the emigrants from Suf-

(a) Mr. Locke was afterwards reproached for not having made interest for some of his friends to succeed to the office, or at least to inform them of his intended resignation of it. "I know," said he, in answer to one of his relations who reproached him on this subject; "I know what you tell me very well, but that was the very reason why I would not communicate my intention to any one. I received my commission generously from the king himself, and to him I resolved to restore it, that he might have the pleasure of bestowing it on some man worthy of his bounty."

folk, (Eng.) to New England, which was pub. in the Mass. His. Society's Collections, says on the authority of Candler, a great antiquarian of England, and who left voluminous manuscripts, containing pedigrees of many families, that ——— Bernard, who was the farmer of an estate of Custridge Hall, which he held of Lord Chief Justice Coke, married a dau. of Robert and Sibil Fisk, and that Bernard had a dau. who was the mother of John Locke. Mr. Hunter is disposed to think Candler good authority, because Bernard was Candler's grand-uncle. Yet doubts may be entertained, for Mr. Hunter himself, who ranks high as a learned antiquarian, in this very article, makes a statement which shows that he is ignorant of what some of us even in New England have learned. He says "that little is known of Locke's father, but no one who has written on his life, has had the slightest knowledge of the mother." In contradiction of this statement, it is only necessary to refer to the memoir from which I have before quoted, prefixed to the edition of Locke's works, pub. 1801, where the writer knew, or pretended to know, that she was the dau. of Edmund Keen or Ken. I notice this that my readers may see how easy it is for writers to be mistaken, hoping that they will be charitable to the many errors that they may find in this unpretending volume.

I have before assumed that Candler was probably right, and that Locke's mother was a Bernard, and his statement seems to receive support from the association of the names of Matthew Barnard, (which I presume was only another way of spelling Bernard,) with the name of William Locke in Nicholas Davie's Will, on the presumption that there was a connection between William Locke and the family of John Locke.

The "progeny" of three of the sons of Robert Fisk, before named, emigrated to New England, as did several other puritan families with whom they were connected. So says Mr. Hunter on the authority of Candler, and goes on to say, as I have mentioned in another place, that "The mother of Locke must have been brought up among the more zealous puritans of the counties of Essex and Suffolk, (England,) that she must have heard from her infancy stories of religious persecutions, that she must have seen near connections of her family leaving their native home, to find as they supposed, security and peace in a distant land; and the feelings thus engendered in her mind we may easily believe to have been communicated to her son, who in due time became the great defender of the principle of the utmost tolerance, in dealing with men in affairs of conscience and religious opinion."

The conflicting statements with regard to the family of the wife of Capt. Locke may be reconciled by supposing that he may have been twice married, a fact unknown to the different writers. It is to be hoped that these remarks may induce further inquiries, which may throw more light upon the subject.

All authorities agree that John Locke, the subject of this sketch, was born while the mother was from home in a small cottage in Wrington, in Somersetshire, Aug. 29, 1632 An exception to this, however, as to the date, is a most interesting article originally published in the London Athenæum, and which was afterwards copied into the Living Age, No. 341, p. 424, entitled, "The Grave of Locke." The date of his birth, taken from his tomb, is printed A. D. "1631." This may be a typographical error. Wrington is a small town not far from Bristol, and in the immediate vicinity of Pensford, Bedminster, Pilrow, and several other places where many of the Lockes resided.

Mr. Locke was never married, and after his retirement from public life he became the inmate of the family of Sir Francis and Lady Masham, at their seat at Oates, in Essex, and here he passed the remainder of an invalid life in the cultivation of his mind, and in the composition of many of his admirable works. Lady Masham, who was the dau. of the Rev. Dr. Ralph Cudworth, of Oxford, was a woman of a congenial mind, highly intellectual, and herself a writer. The friendship that existed between them, says one, "must have rested on similarity of tastes and feelings, and perfect confidence. The noble woman who administered to him his last consolation, was like himself calm and possessed, in that last scene which united the serenity of the antique sage with the pious resignation of the Christian saint. After passing without sleep the night which he had not expected to survive, he was taken out of bed and carried into his study, where he slept for some hours in his chair. On waking he desired to be dressed; and then heard Lady Masham read the Psalms, apparently with great attention, until perceiving his end to draw near, he stopped her, and expired a few minutes afterwards."

Thus ended the life of this eminent man, Oct. 27, 1704, a. 72. He was buried at the Church at High Laver, in Essex, near Oates, about 20 miles from London. Against the south wall of the Church is a square raised tomb covered with a slab, on which is inscribed, "JOHN LOCKE, Ob. A. D. 1704." Above the tomb is a marble tablet bearing the Latin inscription written by himself. Here follows a translation:

"Stop, traveller! Near this place lieth John Locke. If you ask what kind of a man he was, he answers that he lived content with his own small fortune. Bred a scholar, he made his learning subservient only to the cause of truth. This thou will learn from his writings, which will show thee every thing else concerning him, with greater truth, than the suspected praises of an epitaph. His virtues, indeed, if he had any, were too little for him to propose as matter of praise to himself, or as an example to thee. Let his vices be buried together. As to an example of manners, if you seek that, you have it in the Gospel; of vices, I wish you may have one nowhere; if mortality, certainly, (and may it profit thee,) thou hast one here and every where."

I cannot close with any thing more beautiful than an extract from a Poem on the Progress of Science, delivered at Harvard College, Ap. 21, 1780, by the Hon. Samuel Dexter.

"In Metaphysics, too, a Locke we find,
Unfolding the recesses of the mind,
Teaching mankind the great Creator's plan;
Yet less admire the author than the man.
Great in himself, he could with pleasure leave
The tinsel'd greatness that a Court can give,
Refuse a place — a pension, and retire,
From glitt'ring pomp, to fan celestial fire."

(A) [See next page.] In a note on page 343, I commented on the statement made in the Gentleman's Magazine, that Michael Locke, the Father of Mathew of Pensford, was a younger Brother of Sir William, while other authorities had spoken of him as a Son of Sir William. The principal reason that has influenced my opinion in favor of the statement in the Gent. Mag. is that the Michael Locke who was a son of Sir William had three sons, Zachary, Benjamin, and Eleazar, and several daus., and that although these three sons speak of each other and their sisters in their wills, no mention is made of a bro. Matthew. On this hypothesis, the descent of Matthew is represented by the dotted line.

Remarks. [See (B.) Below.] The reasons that induce me to suppose that our emigrant Ancestor might have been the gr. son of Christopher of Pilrow, are many of them not easily expressed in a few words. I shall content myself, therefore, with saying, that the tradition has ever been, that our ancestor and the distinguished John Locke were of the same family; that the mother of the latter was a Bernard; that Nicholas Davies calls William Locke of Woburn his "cousin" (nephew), and also calls Matthew Barnard, of Boston, his "cousin," (Matthew being a son of Bartholomew.) I argue, then, that these degrees of kindred existed in consequence of the intermarriage of Davies and the Barnards and the Lockes in Eng. In addition to the foregoing, the Rev. Joseph Hunter, of London, in an article pub. in the Mass. His. Socy's Coll., says "The mother of Locke [the philosopher] must have been brought up among the more zealous Puritans, must have heard from her infancy stories of religious persecutions, and must have seen near connections of her family leaving their homes to find security in a distant land, and it will not be unacceptable to see the name of so illustrious a person placed in family connection with so many of the Puritan settlers in New England."

SIR JOHN BRAMSTON.

The following, though in part a repetition of what has gone before, contains some additional facts, and is so interesting, as coming direct from Rose, the dau. of Sir William Locke, I cannot avoid the inclination to publish it.

It is from the Autobiography of Sir John Bramston, which was written between the years 1670 and 1699, but not published until 1845. Sir John Bramston was the gr. gr. gr. son of Sir William Locke. He was b. 1611, the son of Sir John Bramston, of Boreham, Knight, Lord Chief Justice of the King's Bench, who was b. May 18, 1577, and m. Bridget, dau. of Sir Thomas Moundeford, M. D. of London, who m. Mary, dau. of Richard Hill, mercer of London, who m. Elizabeth, the "20th" child of Sir William Locke.

"The said Thomas Moundeford married Mary Hill, one of the daus. of Richard Hill, of London, by Elizabeth Lock, the twentieth child of Sir William Lock, the famous citizen Alderman and Lord Maior (a) of London, of whome I think fitt here to insert the storie as I find it wreten by one of his daughters, Rose, married first to Anthony Hickman, merchant aduenturer, from whom is descended the now Earle of Plymouth, and soe is the alliance betweene our families, he beinge descended of one daughter, and myself from another of Sir William Lock, but his tytle to Lord Windsor came by a marriage in that familie; her second husband was Throgmorton of Brampton in Huntingdonsheire, esqueir. I find it in wast paper in her Bible, which hath binn carefully preserued by the females in the familie acording to her order, and is now in the hands of my sister Lady Palmer, beinge giuen her by the aforementioned Mary, her and my Grandmother. The storie is (as I find it) thus: In the 25th yeare of King Henry the 8th, that was 1530, William Lock, citizen and Mercer of London, beinge in Dunkirke when a curse (interdiction, I suppose) was sett vp by the Pope's messinger or nuncio, against the King and Kingdom, in fauor and at the request of Queene Katharine, Mr. Lock beinge then there, he tooke it downe, (soe farr, sayes she, goes Hollinshead; but his daughter Rose adds) for which seruice the Kinge gaue him 100 pounds a yeare, and knighted him, and soe (says she) he was the first, that, beinge a Knight, was sheriff of London. He had alsoe the speciall fauor of the Kinge, to haue a key to his priuie chamber, to come to him when he would. The Kinge dined at his house, he being the King's mercer. . . . . And she tells this storie, (I meane Rose that wrote the Memoires;) she says, that, in the tyme of her first husband, Anthony Hickman, after the death of Edward the Sixth, Queen Mary changinge the relligion, her husband and her elder brother Thomas Lock, beinge merchants and partners, they liued to geather and sheltred manie of the godlie preachers in theire house; but the Queene inioyninge all to come to mass, and persecutinge the refusers, they were forced to let them goe, giuing them monie; she mentions Hooper, Fox, Knox, and one Reinger, for which her husband and brother beinge questiond, before the commissioners, (she calls them high commissioners,) were committed close prisoners to the Fleete, and then shee tells how they gott out; . . . . after which she says her husband went to Antwerpe, tooke a house there at 40 pounds rent, sent for her, but she being with child could not goe, but went into Oxfordshire to a gentleman's house, but she names him not, but thincks the house was called Childwell, wher she was deliuered; names not the child, nor whether male or female; but says she went to Cranmer, Latimer, and Ridlie, prisoners then in Oxford, to know whether she might christen her child in the Popish manner. They answered her that baptisme was the least corrupted in that church, and therefore she might, but sayd she should haue gone away before, for the child was baptised by a Popish preist, but she says she put sugar instead of salt into the handkercher which was to be deliuered vnto the priest, after which she went to Antwerpe to her hu - band, left 2 houses of her husband's, well furnished, one in London, another at Rumford, taking noething but one feather bed, ... Whilst she was at Antwerpe she had another child, which with great care she procured to be baptised after the reformed manner by a Protestant minister, which was done thus: The fashion was to hange a peece of lawne out at the window where a child was to be baptised; and her house hauinge two dores into two streetes, she hunge lawne out at each dore, soe the neighbours of each side, thinckinge the child was carried out at the other dore, inquired no farther; the hasard she rann was great, for she sayes, that in the hatred which was borne by the townsmen to the Anabaptists, the magistrates used to come at mid night into houses where any children were suspected to be kept vnbaptised, and if they found any such they vsed to putt them into a sack and threw them into the sea and drowne them, which crueltie to auoid, she did, as is before sayd, hange out the lawne, and there beinge a secret congregation of Protestants in the Towne, she procured her child to be carried thither, where it was baptised, she not knowing who were godfathers or godmothers. She continued in Antwerpe to the death of Queene Mary; she died at Gainesborough 21 November 1613, in the 87th yeare of her age. And this is all I find of her in these memoires collected and made by her selfe and sister.

"Elisabeth Lock was the 20th child of Sir William Lock, which is testified by a note written by himselfe in the said Bible. She was borne in Milk Streete, London, the 3d day of August, 1535. She had 2 husbands, beinge first married to Richard Hill, with whome she liued 18 yeares, and had by him 13 childrenn; she continued a widow one yeare and a quarter, and then married [Nicholas] Bullingham, bishop of Worcester, and had one child by him. Hill died at Newington Greene, Sep. 1568; shee was very younge when she married Hill, for she was but 20 yeares old when she went with her husband into the Low Countries to Antwerpe; and yet she had then 4 children; she had fiue in Antwerpe. She hath not mentioned the names of all her children. What I find of them in that memoire is thus: her eldest daughter, Katharine Hill, was married to Dr. Goad; she was baptised 23 April, 1554; of her was borne Dr. Goad, one of the diunes sent by King James I. vnto the Synod of Dort. Martha, the 2nd daughter maried to Luke Smyth, Clerke; she was baptised 8th of September, 1560; she dyed at Worcester, 1593. Rowland, baptised 16th October, 1561. I thincke he had no issue male, but he had a daughter married to Mr. ——— Munday. Mary, baptised 5th of June, 1562; she married Dr. Moundeford, from whome I am descended. Elizabeth, borne at Antwerpe the yeare before Queene Mary died, [1557]; she married with Edward Archbold, at Worcester. Otwell, borne alsoe at Antwerpe, the first yeare of Queene Elizabeth, [1558.] Ann, baptised 1566; married to Andros, I guess, parson of Chesterton. . . . . .

"I find Sir William Lock had a daughter married into Cornewell, for Otwell Hill went into Cornewell to his aunt, eldest sister to his mother; she is not named either by her husband's name or her owne Christen name, but I gues her husband's name was Cuswroth, for I remember one of that name that was clerke to my father, whome we called cousen."

Here ends the History of the Lockes in England. Many of the facts have a peculiar interest to those of the name in America, and go to show when the family was first known, and in what parts of the country they resided, and their occupation or profession. Like many of the early merchants of England, some of them were mariners, commanding their own ships and trading to different parts of the world. A thorough examination of the County and Town histories of England, which are very full of pedigrees, would undoubtedly give a vast number of additional particulars; and what appears in the preceding pages will be something of a guide as to where further information should be sought, and that was the principal object for inserting many of the items.

SAMUEL LOCKE, D. D.

PRESIDENT OF HARVARD COLLEGE. (b)

THE materials from which to make a sketch of the life and character of President Locke are not extensive. He died early in life, his children soon after followed him, and his papers have been lost. His Common-Place Book and a Book of Extracts, which are now before me, are all his manuscripts that I can find. His contemporaries have all passed away, but two of the most distinguished have left some valuable testimonials, viz. the Elder Adams and President Styles.

He fitted for College under the tuition of the Rev. Timothy Harrington, then the minister of Lancaster; he entered Har. College in his nineteenth year, where he was highly distinguished for scholarship in a class that produced as many distinguished men in proportion to its numbers, as any class of that College, of whom may be mentioned William Browne, Judge of the Supreme Court of Mass. and afterwards Governor of Bermuda; John Wentworth, LL.D. Governor of New Hampshire, and afterwards Lieut. Gov. of Nova Scotia, and a Baronet; David Sewall, LL.D. Rep. in Congress, Judge of the Supreme Court of Mass. and of the District Court of the United States; Tristram Dalton, Rep. and Senator in Congress; Rev. Moses Hemenway, S.T.D. a very distinguished Divine; and John Adams, President of the United States. The Hon. Charles F. Adams has kindly furnished me with the following extract from the autobiography of his gr. father.

"I went to College at the end of the vacation, and took the chamber assigned me, and my place in the class under Mr. Mayhew. I found some better scholars than myself, particularly Locke, Hemenway, and Tisdale. The last left College before the end of the first year, and what became of him I know not. Hemenway still lives a great divine, and Locke has been President of Harvard College, a station for which no man was better qualified. With these I ever lived in friendship; I soon became intimate with them, and began to feel a desire to equal them in science and literature. In the sciences, especially mathematics, I soon surpassed them, merely because, intending to go into the Pulpit, they thought Divinity and the Classics of more importance to them. In Literature, I never overtook them."

Prest. Locke graduated in 1755, and that year was a teacher at Lancaster, as he had been in 1752, and was one of the members of a Society, that was formed in that town for mutual improvement, in 1748. He studied Divinity with Rev. Mr. Harrington, and Nov. 7, 1759, was ordained over the Church and Society in Sherburne. (c) In Dec. 1769, he was unanimously elected by the Corporation of Harvard College, President of that ancient institution, which choice was unanimously confirmed by the Board of Overseers, he being only thirty-eight years of age, and the youngest man ever elected to that office. He resigned his pastoral relations at Sherburne, in Feb. 1770, and was installed at Cambridge, Mh. 21, 1770. His people at S. were very unwilling that he should leave them, and

(b) On page 31, the date of his marriage is erroneously stated to have been Oct. 20, 1755; it should be Jany. 2, 1760.

(c) The first Sermon preached in Dublin, N. H. was by Rev. Samuel Locke in the autumn of 1767, at the house of Eli Morse, whose infant dau. Sarah he baptized at the same time.—Rev. L. W. Leonard's Discourse, Sep. 7, 1845.

made strenuous exertions to prevent him, but the situation to which he was elected opened a wider field for usefulness. During the period of his presidency, the political affairs of the country were in an excited state. The people were all in commotion. The College was under the patronage and control of the State Government, at the head of which was the Royal Governor, Hutchinson. The College, like all the other interests of the country, was affected by the state of public affairs, and its prosperity was retarded, and no remarkable events transpired in College to mark the era.

Rev. Ezra Styles, D.D. minister of Newport, R. I. and President of Yale College, and who "was one of the most learned men this country can boast," left a voluminous diary, from which the late Prof. Kingsley favored me with the following extract, and coming from a man so learned, and many years the senior of Prest. Locke, it should have great weight in forming an estimate of the talents and character of the latter. I may add, that the extreme length to which President Styles went in his opposition to British rule, may have had some influence on his feelings when he speaks of the political opinions of Prest. Locke.

"1770, June 4th. Saw in a Boston print, the election of Councillors, held in the College Hall, at Cambridge, &c. — the same day was religiously celebrated at Boston, Dr. Chauncey preaching to a crowded assembly. Then all the ministers invited to dine at Fannuel Hall, by the merchants and the sons of liberty. A great number of pastors were present: among the rest the aged and venerable Israel Loring, of Sudbury, Æt. 88 and above, being the oldest minister in America. Also, Rev. President Locke, and Rev. Mr. Appleton, of Cambridge."

"July 16th. I set out with Mr. W. Hubbard for Commencement at Harvard College, — where we attended Wednesday, 18th inst., Rev. President Locke presiding for the first time. He conferred the degree of A. B. upon 34, and that of A. M. upon 43, total 77. The President was dressed in a black gown and square cap, as were most of the graduates. The Bachelors all dressed in black cloth coats of American Manufacture, covered with a thin black gown and square cap. Among other exercises there was a dialogue in Chaldee held betweeen three Bachelors, taken out of Daniel. At the close of this, the President subjoined a short speech in Chaldee; but he did not make any Latin Oration."

"1771, July. Commencement at Harvard College, Wednesday, 17th inst. when among other exercises, President Locke made a Latin Oration, — and there was a dialogue in Greek, and another in Samaritan."

"1773, June 24. Visited me, Rev. Mr. Samuel Locke, President of Harvard College, and Mr. Marsh, a tutor. Had much conversation together on a variety of things, both in politics and literature. The President is a gentleman of fine understanding, clear, distinguishing mind, rather adapted for active gubernatorial life, than for the deep researches of literature. He keeps a good look out ahead, and will pass serenely through life. He will be in danger of a duplicity of character, for he is ever adjusting himself to every body, — that it is somewhat difficult to find his real judgment on some points. Yet he is open and vigorous against the new divinity. In politics, he will never oppose the Governor or Crown interest, and will rather lean to that side the balance, and against the patriots; but he can talk strong for patriotism. I believe he likes neither at heart, and designs to trouble himself about neither, further than as either affects the interests of College, — and in which case he will secure both parties if possible, else that which will be most beneficial. He will make no stand in politics, either for or against the liberties of his country, and will rather divert himself with the folly of those who are most venturesome and enterprising on both sides. If America should become an independent empire, he would be for a pretty firm government, which the people could not easily overthrow. His own dominion would make a State happy. In his hands a tyranny would be a good government. Was President Locke at the head of Government, either in a tyranny or republic, his government would be administered with firmness, justice, mildness. It would be so good, that the most popular republic would never call him to an account, — it would be so good, that the subjects of an absolute monarchy would forget their chains, and themselves, in the fullest possession of their liberty.

"Under the idea and purpose of governing well, I believe his judgment would adopt a theory of high and absolute government. But was he in any other part of the world, he would forget theory and adapt his practice to the exigencies and usages of places. Neither would he suffer himself to be harassed with laboring the surreptitious introduction of a theory different, and very opposite to that which took place where he was called to act. He will aim at the glory of a really useful man. He will have but little leisure for reading and contemplation, but will profit by conversation with the literati of every branch of erudition. He has a liberal understanding, a penetrating discernment, and is capable of looking into and judging upon every thing. He has great affection for his pupils, and feels the father, the tender parent, towards all of them. He tells me, that he has about 180 undergraduates. He is a man in almost all respects of an excellent character. He is in the midst of life or rather young, I believe about 38. He is a good classical scholar, in Latin, Greek, Hebrew and Chaldee. He made an oration in Chaldee at the first public Commencement after his election to the presidency, which I heard. He is excellent in philosophy and academical literature, and in all branches of knowledge is far superior to any president of any of the American Colleges, unless Dr. Witherspoon, of Nassau Hall, should exceed him in theology. He is one of those minds which will enlarge to a great size, will grow and magnify through life. His morals are excellent — piety and a holy life sit on him with a good grace. I doubt not he is determined to live well, to act his part with dignity, to die well, and obtain the crown of immortal glory. He is a firm friend to revelation.

"We went to the Redwood Library, afterwards to Mr. Ellery's, then drank tea at Mr. Redwood's, visited Mr. Cheesborough, &c., and spent the evening till midnight in learned conversation. They lodged at my house. In the morning, June 25th, they rode away. I accompanied them to Mr. Redwood's garden, and parted."

Having learned that the Hon. John Welles, of Boston, was a pupil of President Locke, I called upon that venerable old gentleman. To the question, "Whether he could tell me any thing about the President," with a glow of feeling on his countenance, he instantly replied, "I think I can; he fitted me and my brother for College; he was the most learned man in America; our father placed us under his tuition in consequence of the high regard and great esteem he had for the President. We resided in his family (this was after that Mr. L. resigned his charge of the College); he was a perfect gentleman, dignified, and well did he perform his duties to his pupils with which his house was crowded." These facts show the estimation in which he was held after his retirement. Mr. Welles related many incidents commendable of the President, which I have not room to insert.

In 1762, he preached the Sermon before the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company, and in 1772 the Annual Sermon before the Massachusetts Convention of Ministers, both of which were printed, and the last was reprinted. These are probably all that he left in print.

A few days before the decease of the late Rev. Dr. John Pierce, of Brookline, I received from him a letter, in which he says, "President Adams, his classmate, assured me that he excelled in prayer all with whom he had ever been acquainted; he also considered him the best scholar in his class, with the exception of Dr. Moses Hemenway."

I have an old manuscript, which contains the following obituary. The style and many of the expressions indicate that it was written by a person educated in olden time.

"In Memory of ye Revd Samuel Locke, D. D."

"As a Divine he was learned and judicious — In ye pastoral relation vigilant and faithfull — as a Christian devout & charitable — In his friendships firm & sincere — humane affable & benevolent in his disposition — in ye conjugal and parental relations kind and officious — ye uncommon size and penetration of his genius — ye extensiveness of his erudition — ye fund of useful knowledge w^h he had acquired — ye firmness & mildness of his temper & manners — his easiness of access & patient attention to others — joined with his singular talents for government, procur'd him universal esteem, especially of the governers and students of Harvard College over w^h he PRESIDED, four years with much reputation to himself & advantage of ye public, after w^h he retired to ye private walks of life, entertaining and improving ye more confined circle of his friends until his Death w^h was very sudden on ye 15th day of January 1778, a. 45." (a)

The Rev. Abner Morse writes: "Rev. Dr. Locke was a stout, dignified looking man, a little below the common stature. He was a good whig, and used to go every evening to the common resort of the patriots and talk on public affairs, while as many as could, came and listened and carried home the inspiration he infused, so that Sherborn boasts to this day that their soil did not bear one tory. He was frequently elected chairman of the Committee of Correspondence, and was also on the Committee of Public Safety."

The same writer says, "His Common-Place Book shows that he had read a library of books, and had kept company with the most devotional authors, as well as with Ecclesiastical and civil historians, theologians and poets. It indicates also a taste for natural science, and abounds with sage aphorisms and choice extracts."

He died from the bursting of a blood-vessel, when aiding in driving some cattle from his field Jany. 15. 1778, a. 47, and his remains are deposited "on private land, the three first ministers of the town sleep by him, (b) who, like him, left no posterity to protect their graves, and to the eternal shame of their flocks they refuse, when appealed to for aid to remove their dust to a secure cemetery, and to contribute to give them, four in number, one decent monument." (c) A small white marble grave-stone has, since the above was wrtten, been erected at his grave by some one unknown. Notwithstanding some of his society were some "vexed" that he left them, yet after he returned to Sherburne he "lived in the utmost harmony with the church, and the pastor who succeeded him in his parish, and his name is held in high veneration by the descendants of his old parishioners. Some domestic troubles embittered the last years of his life, but he was never known to make a complaint, but bore them with Christian resignation." [Letter of one of his townsmen.] He owned a fine farm at Sherburne, (d) a part of which he probably possessed in right of his wife, and was a man of affluence. The Inventory of his Estate, after his decease, was

His house stood near the Northerly side of the Common on the road to Holliston. After the death of his widow, in 1792, it was sold with the land to Col. Calvin Sanger. The house was taken down or removed and another erected about twenty years ago.. The property is now owned by the heirs of Mr. Sanger. A part of his Real Estate was probably sold soon after his death. His library and plate was sold in Boston in 1788 (1778?)

The writer regrets that he has not been able to gather more reminiscences of a man who, though once filling an important station, so little seems to be known; a man who, according to the authorities cited, was a man of enlarged mind and of great erudition. Should time and opportunity offer, the writer intends to make further efforts to obtain materials for a more extended biography, and any information relating to Pres. Locke will be gratefully received. It may be sent to the care of Messrs. James Munroe & Co. Boston. As before stated, his library and plate were sold in Boston. The writer will give a reasonable price for any article belonging to the same.

A STORY OF THE REVOLUTION;

OR, THE NATIVE PEPPER-AND-SALT PANTALOONS.

The following anecdote of "the times that tried men's souls," was originally communicated to the Greenfield, Mass. Gazette, several years ago. The writer says "It is a bona fide fact, taken without amendation, from the life of a mother in Israel, Mrs. Eunice Richards, (see page 107, Par. 244.) It shows that there was an anti-British spirit in the women as well as the men of 1776."

"Late in the afternoon of one of the last days of May, in the year '76, when I was a few months short of fifteen years old, notice came to Townsend, Mass. where my father used to live, that fifteen soldiers were wanted.

"The training band was instantly called out, and my brother, that was next older than I, was one that was selected. He did not return till late at night, when we were all in bed. When I rose in the morning, I found my mother in tears, who informed me that my brother John was to march next day after to-morrow morning, at sunrise. My father was at Boston, in the Massachusetts Assembly. Mother said that though John (a) was supplied with summer clothes, he must suffer for winter garments. There were, at this time, no stores, and no articles to be had, except such as each family could make itself. The sight of mother's tears always brought all the hidden strength of body and mind into action. I instantly asked what garment was needed. She replied, 'pantaloons.' 'Oh, if that is all,' said I, 'we will spin and weave him a pair, before he goes.' 'But,' said mother, 'the wool is on the sheep's back, and the sheep are in the pasture.' I immediately turned to a younger brother and bade him take the salt dish and call them to the yard. Mother replied, 'Poor child, there are no sheep shears within three miles and a half.' 'I have some small shears at the loom,' said I. 'But you can't spin and weave it in so short a time.' 'I am certain we can, mother.' 'How can you weave it?—there is a long web of linen in the loom.' 'No matter; I can find an empty loom. By this time the sound of the sheep made me quicken my steps towards the yard. I requested my sister to bring the wheel and cards, while I went for the wool. I went to the yard with my brother, and secured a white sheep, from which I sheared with my loom shears, half enough for a web; we then let her go with the rest of her fleece. I sent the wool in by my little sister, and Luther ran for a black sheep, and held her while I cut off wool for my filling and half the warp, and then we allowed her to go with the remaining coarse part of the fleece. The rest of the narrative the writer would abridge, by saying that the wool thus obtained was duly carded, spun, washed, sized, and dried: a loom was found a few doors off, the web 'got in' and wove, the cloth prepared, cut and made, two or three hours before the brother's departure, that is to say, in forty hours from commencement, without help from any modern improvement.

"The good old lady closed by saying, 'I felt no weariness, I wept not, I was serving my country, I was relieving my poor mother, I was preparing a garment for my darling brother. The garment finished, I retired and wept till my overcharged and bursting heart was relieved.' This brother was, perhaps, one of Gen. Stark's soldiers, and with such a spirit to cope with, need we wonder that Burgoyne did not execute his threat of marching through the heart of America?"

MRS. MARY SANDERSON, OF LEXINGTON,

FORMERLY MARY MUNROE.

The following biographical sketch of "Old Lady Sanderson," was furnished, at my request, by a gentleman who had known her many years. A few months after it was written, the Ladies of Lexington, with praiseworthy liberality, on Sep. 23, 1852, held a Levee at the Town Hall, for the benefit of the old lady. The Hall, which was tastefully decorated, was crowded, many being present from the neighboring towns and from Boston. The tables were loaded with refreshments, the Germania Band discoursed sweet music, and good feeling ruled. The result was a fund of about $300 for the old lady. But ere another moon had waned the silver cord was loosed, the golden bowl was broken, and the spirit returned to God who gave it.

She d. Oct. 15, 1852, a. 104 years and 5 days.

Mr. Locke,

Dear Sir,—I send you a short notice of Mrs. Sanderson, as requested. What interesting associations are attached to the centenarian! With what avidity do we glean any information respecting one who has lived to reach one hundred years of age! especially of any one whom we know to have been an actor in, or conversant with scenes and incidents fraught with patriotism and suffering.

No little interest has been taken of late in Jonathan Harrington, "the youthful drummer," on the memorable 19th of Ap. '75, but Mrs. Sanderson was already a wife and mother when the first blood was shed upon Lexington Green; and how interesting it must have been, a few years since, to have listened to their reminiscences. A lady, who was present at such meetings, has assured me that she has sometimes been almost affrighted, so greatly excited did these aged worthies become, while recounting the scenes and actions appertaining to their youthful prime.

Great interest has been felt in Mrs. Sanderson, within a few years, by reason of her longevity. From the time she approximated the age of one hundred, she has become the object of inquiry, and received no small attentions — having, among others, been visited by a late chief magistrate of this Commonwealth, and honored at the recent Kossuth Celebration in Lexington, by the vast cavalcade halting in front of her residence, and cheering her, as she sat at the window of her chamber, while the band played for her several national airs, including her favorite, "Yankee Doodle."

Mrs. S. is the gr. gra. dau. of Wm. Munroe, Sen. of Lexington, who coming to this country about 1652, settled upon that portion of L. (then called "Cambridge Farms,") to which he gave the name of "Scotland;" the land being first settled chiefly by Scotchmen, and reminding them, in its features, of their native Highlands. This Wm. Munroe, Sen. was, in his day, a man of influence and property, being one of the largest contributors to the religious and benevolent objects of his time, besides raising thirteen children to the State. A son of his, George, who had nine children, was grandfather of Mrs. S. Her parents were William Munroe and Rebecca Locke, who were also blessed with a numerous progeny, having had ten children, who all lived to grow up; and two brothers and a sister of Mrs. S. lived past the age of fourscore. Mary Munroe was the seventh child, b. Oct. 10, 1748, and is now, therefore, nearly 104 yrs. of age. She was m. Oct. 27, 1772, to Samuel Sanderson, a cabinet-maker, and native of Waltham, who was reputed an excellent workman, and a man of strong, native, good sense, but of a rather phlegmatic and desponding temperament, with whom the world never wagged so cheerily as with many.

In 1776 they removed to Lancaster, where they lived about a quarter of a century, until his death, which occurred about the year 1800. She then resided at Waltham, with her son Samuel, until his demise, in 1829; the subsequent eight years she lived at Weston, with her gra. dau. Mrs. Fiske; and after Mr. Fiske's demise, on account of Mrs. F.'s declining health, she went back to reside with her old friend, the wid. of her son Samuel, with which incomparable woman, and her two daughters, she has resided at East Lexington, for the last fifteen years.

And here let me drop a passing word of commendation upon that excellent spirit manifested by these ladies towards their aged relative. I may not undertake to censure others, if any be to blame; but I will say, that, if any, bound by as near and as tender ties, have been remiss in duty, most nobly has their lack of service been supplied by the late widow of her son Samuel, and her daughters, Mrs. Goodnow and her sister Elizabeth. Of Mrs. G. I would speak particularly, on account of the strong attachment the old lady always seemed to manifest towards her, even from her childhood.

With a beautiful devotion to each other, not even surpassed by that of Ruth and Naomi, the pillow of age has been waited upon and smoothed for years by one, whose worth, and sweet and dignified manners might adorn any station in life. And what she has done, has been done with no compensation save in the occasional presents of a few individuals, who appreciated the difficulties and trials incident to the task which their kind natures have so long imposed upon these excellent sisters. May they be rewarded.

For more than twenty years, Mrs. S., by reason of a severe chronic rheumatism, has been confined to her room; and during the last fifteen years that she has been the loved and venerated inmate at her grand-daughters', it may be said that she has been constantly looking for the welcome summons that should take her hence. And yet it has not come! And what wonder that this mysterious lengthening out of her years, including so many weary days and nights of suffering and dependence, should cause her sometimes in tones of touching sadness to exclaim, "Surely God has forgotten me! O, why am I left to be a burthen to myself and to others?"

Wonder not, that, when "the grasshopper" shall have continued to be a burthen for so many years beyond the allotted age of man, the good Christian even should sometimes break forth into sighs and lamentations.

Mrs. S.'s conversation and appearance (as I at first knew her) would betoken her as possessed of a cheerful, sprightly mind, and perhaps of rather strong feelings and prejudices. One trait of character, noticeable in other members of her father's family, she still retains, viz. her facetiousness. Although the oil of life has long run so low, and its flame has often appeared so feeble and flickering as to be on the very point of expiring, yet even in this feeble, childlike state, her friends continue to be amused, at times, by some little scintillation of her old wit. As an instance of this, the writer, upon a visit to her when she was past a hundred, remarking on the uncommon fairness of her skin for one so aged, complimented her upon her former personal attractions, — "Ay," she laughingly replied, "and it was lucky for you, young man, that you were not about in those days."

In person, she is tall and slender, and one would judge that in early life she possessed a pleasing exterior. Indeed, we know that many of her father's family were, in their day, considered as possessing fine personal attractions, united to uncommon dignity and suavity of manners. While in her sisters' complexions, the rose is said to have beautifully contended with the lily, in hers the former never made its appearance. She was always one of the most slender of her family, and hence, perhaps, her uncommon care of herself; seldom, if ever, going abroad after sunset. To this care of herself, her plain, simple manner of living, and the salubrious air of her native town, may we attribute her great longevity, if we attempt to trace it to any cause beyond that of God's having given her a constitution, which, though apparently so feeble, possessed a wonderfully elastic and tenacious vitality. As to her diet, she always lived upon plain, country fare; requiring meat at least once a day to sustain her even now. She never drank any coffee, and her tea always very weak. Spirits she was never known to have used, and until past a hundred she seldom allowed herself to take a nap in the daytime.

Until past seventy, when she nearly lost all power of locomotion, she continued to be a stirring, industrious woman; fulfilling exemplarily, while her husband lived, the duties of a wife and mother; and after his death, affording much valuable service for many years to the son who took her to his home, in the labors incident to a farmer's dwelling, and in the nurture of those children who have since so well repaid her tender care. When past ninety, she could see to ply her needle, and sewed upon many useful articles for her friends very neatly. A devout Christian in her feelings, and a professor of religion, she was wont to sit for many years with her Bible and Hymn Book constantly by her side; and her sight having returned to her, she read when over a hundred, a chapter and a hymn (a) upon a Thanksgiving Day without the use of her glasses.

Within a year or two she has become a helpless paralytic, the subject of constant anxiety and attentions. It is difficult to understand all that she says, but her remarks evince that she still retains, in a considerable degree, the power of observation and reflection, while the power of expressing herself with distinctness is wanting.

It may be expected that I should give some of "Old Aunt Sanderson's" revolutionary reminiscences; but I would remark, that there is little new now to be told respecting incidents that have been so often described; and even those most intimate with her, find it difficult to recall to mind much of "the oft-told tales," saving her pleasing and animated manner of narration.

(a) Within a month of her death she repeated a hymn she had learned in her youth.

That the martial and patriotic spirit that ever characterized the descendants and followers of the Clan Roich, did not wholly die out in the Munroes of this country appears evident, for in the battle of Lexington there were no less than fourteen of that name, and of that number none did more than Capt. Edmund Munroe and others of his kin, towards infusing a military spirit and raising recruits for that company, in which were two of Mrs. S.'s brothers, Asa and Philemon. It is not wonderful, therefore, that she became imbued with the feelings that animated her relatives and neighbors in those trying times, and that her early impressions had their influence. When at the age of fourscore years and ten, she described the incidents attending the incursion of the British to the quiet home of her nativity.

JOHN PIERCE, OF BROOKLINE, D.D.

Rev. JOHN PIERCE was born in Dorchester, Mass. July 14, 1773, the oldest of ten children. His father, John Pierce, was an honest, intelligent, religious man. From earliest childhood he cherished the desire to go to college and to become a minister; this desire being awakened by hearing his friends talk of their kinsman, James Blake, a promising young clergyman, who died just after he began to preach. His boyhood was singularly pure, he never used a profane expression in his life, and there is reason to suppose he was never guilty of a deliberate falsehood.

On leaving the school of the same maiden woman who taught his mother to read, he commenced the study of Latin, and in 1789 entered Harvard College. He took a high rank in his class, and at graduating (1793) delivered the second English Oration. His whole college expenses amounted to $296.06, of which he had credit, as a beneficiary, for $102.56.

On taking his second degree he pronounced the Latin Valedictory Oration. After quitting College he was two years assistant preceptor in Leicester Academy, Mass. He commenced (July 1795) the study of theology with Rev. Thaddeus M. Harris, in his native town; was "approved" by the "Boston Association," Feb. 22, 1796, and preached for the first time at Dorchester, Mh. 6, 1796. Having preached in several places, and filled for nearly four months a tutorship in Harvard College, he received and accepted an unanimous invitation to become the Pastor of the First Church in Brookline, as the successor of Rev. Joseph Jackson, and was ordained Mh. 15, 1797. Oct. 31, 1798, he married Abigail Lovel, of Medway, one of his pupils at the Academy. She died July 2, 1800, leaving an infant son, who survived his mother only two years. He was married again, May 6, 1802, to Lucy Tappan, of Northampton, who is now his widow, after an union of the utmost harmony and affection, extending through forty-seven years. They had ten children, of whom all but two are still living.

Dr. Pierce was the sole pastor of his church for half a century, and the interesting "Jubilee" when he completed the fiftieth year from the day of his ordination, celebrated Mh. 15, 1847, will be remembered by the many whose privilege it was to listen to the hale, hearty and cheerful clergyman, showing in his seventy-fourth year the vigor of youth. The whole town united to celebrate this anniversary. Religious services were held in the parish church, the most remarkable of which was the discourse by the venerable jubilant, from the text, "I have been young and now am old," (Ps. xxxvii. 25,) containing the most exact statistical history of his church and of the town of Brookline. This discourse was afterwards published by request, together with an account of the other events of the day worthy of note. After the services in the church, the congregation repaired to the Town Hall, to partake of a collation. Here troops of his friends, numbering many honored and justly beloved names, were assembled, and the occasion was one of intensest interest. A valuable service of plate was presented him by his own people, and a silver vase and salver by the ladies of the Baptist and Harvard Societies; also a silver pitcher by an old friend and parishioner.

For thirty-one years of his ministry the First Church was the only church in Brookline. Dr. Pierce was for fifty-two years a member of the Massachusetts Convention of Congregational Ministers, and for ten years its scribe. For thirty years he belonged to the Mass. Congregational Charitable Society, and, of course, during the whole of his ministerial career, to the "Boston Association," whose meetings he rarely missed. For thirty-three years he was Secretary to the Board of Overseers of Harvard College, and for several years President of the Mass. Bible Society, and also a faithful officer or active member of numerous other associations of a literary or philanthropic character. He served on the School Committees during his whole ministry, and was among the very earliest advocates of temperance, and to the last of his days of activity, known of all for the zeal and courage with which, in public and private, he maintained the doctrine of "total abstinence." He officiated on various public occasions; and in January of 1849 he delivered the "Election Sermon," before the Executive and the Legislature of the State. This discourse, and several others, mostly statistical and historical, have been published.

Rev. Frederic N. Knapp was ordained as his Colleague, Oct. 6, 1847. But though thus relieved from the care of his pulpit, he continued to preach, with unabated strength, for his brethren, and to take part in various meetings, until the spring of 1849.

Dr. Pierce was a tall, large-framed man, with a mild, open countenance, beaming with cheerfulness and benignity. His hair very early became white, and gave him an appearance of venerableness long before he numbered years sufficient to justify the epithet. He enjoyed in youth and manhood, notwithstanding in infancy he was a feeble child, almost uninterrupted health; so that for forty years he did not know what it was to have a physical infirmity worth naming. In the spring of 1805 he was seized with a rheumatic fever, which confined him several weeks, but from that date to his last sickness his health was unbroken. It was his invariable custom to rise early, and saw and split his own wood, or work in his garden. He was a great walker; frequently on his exchanges going on foot, out and back, six or seven miles the same day, without fatigue. He was "temperate in all things," invariably making his dinner from one dish. Scrupulously punctilious in the discharge of every pecuniary liability, it was his habit to settle all bills for family expenses on Saturday. Consequently he was never oppressed with debt, and from the time of his second marriage, if not before, had, on the first day of every year, a year's salary and a year's stock of wood on hand to begin with. He purchased many books, subscribed for many periodicals, spread his table with abundance, and yet "made both ends meet, and had something to spare." His heart was ever prompt to respond to the call of humanity, and his charities were never withheld when sought by deserving objects. He greatly loved music, and was a fine singer himself.

Dr. Pierce's literary attainments were, for one who enjoyed no better early advantages, and belonged to the "old school," more than respectable. He made no pretensions to learning, and yet he had a correct knowledge of the classics as studied in his day. He wrote with accuracy; and we doubt whether an instance of mis-spelling or wrong punctuation could be found in his numerous manuscript sermons. His mind was a practical one — he had no taste for philosophical speculation; was wanting, perhaps, in depth of sentiment and imagination; but if he was not an original thinker himself, he appreciated the best thoughts of others. Indeed, it has been often thought that his reputation as a lover of facts, and his reverence for great writers who have become classic, together with the intense activity of his social nature, may have concealed, and so led to the underrating of his talents and acquirements, which, as they were shown in good sense, and discriminating judgment of men and things, were by no means inferior.

If any one might dare cherish the hope of inheriting, through the Father's mercy, the promises in the Beatitudes, Dr. Pierce might. He was a Christian in his trustful faith, his sincere devotion, his endeavors to keep the commandments, if ever there was a Christian on earth.

He was accustomed to speak of himself as a matter-of-fact man, and as such he has been known far and wide. The amount of dates and facts he carried stored up in his memory and had ready for use, was perfectly marvellous; and his knowledge, in this regard, was as accurate as it was extensive. The whole "Triennial" was in his head. Then his "Memoirs and Memorabilia," eighteen quarto volumes in manuscript, exceedingly rich in facts, relating to men and things; his memoranda; his interleaved almanacs; his occasional sermons, remain to show his industry, the innocent and ruling passion of his mind, and to be a treasury of information to those who shall come after him.

His venerable Alma Mater never dismissed a child from under her maternal wing, who cherished towards her greater filial affection and respect. He attended sixty-three Commencements, and for fifty-four successive years he "set the tune" of St. Martins to the hymn sung at the Commencement dinner. In speaking of Dr. Pierce as a preacher and a pastor, it will be well to mention his heartfelt dislike to party names and sectarian controversy. He was never willing to be called by any name but that of Christian, and was willing to extend the hand of fellowship to all who "love the Lord Jesus Christ in sincerity." He was an earnest, plain preacher, never shrinking to dwell upon any subject which he felt it his duty to preach. His discourses were generally practical, earnest appeals to the hearts and consciences of his hearers. By the daily beauty of his life as a faithful pastor, he won the confidence and affection of his people. He devoted his whole life to his flock, and the one great wish of his heart was to spend and be spent in their service.

In the closing hours of his life his light shone brightest. He was taken suddenly ill on the 3d of March, 1849. The disease was an internal cancer, which had been insidiously undermining his constitution for some time. Those who knew with what pride he seemed to take in his robust health, feared lest the trial of protracted disease would prove to be almost too hard even for his patience. But he met this sudden change in his condition, as if to prepare for it had been the sole work of his life; as indeed in some sense it was, since now was brought forth the crowning ripeness of his Christian character. At once he "set his house in order," — arranging all his temporal affairs, so as to leave his thoughts free for better things.

The unspeakable satisfaction of seeing and enjoying the society of his friends, was permitted him. Among those who thronged to visit him in his study, where he sat in his easy chair, pale and weary, but strong in faith and hope, were one hundred and twenty clergymen, representing seven different denominations. He bore his weakness like a meek, lowly, humble Christian, with the most entire submission to the Divine will, with a cheerful trust in God that took away all fear, and looked forward to eternity with the calm eye of assured religious hope.

Of an interesting occurrence towards the close of his earthly existence, an esteemed friend and parishioner thus writes: "He had one more duty to perform, and for this he seemed to have lingered. He had anxiously waited for the completion of the organ, hoping to hear its tones once. As the day approached, it appeared very doubtful whether he would be able to bear the exertion. Borne on the shoulders of strong men, he was carried from his house to the church, and placed where he could see the organ. He heard it, he consecrated it, his dying voice once more joined with his friends in the house of God, and then he was carried home perfectly aware that it was for the last time, and that in a few days his helpless form would return to the church. A week longer, and his work on earth was finished, the body was laid in the grave, but we feel that the spirit must sometimes revisit the scenes he loved so well."

On the evening of August 23, (1849,) after gazing upon all the persons in the room with a look of intense affection, he sank into a quiet sleep, in which he lingered till the next forenoon, when, with only one brief struggle, his spirit passed away. His last words were "Entire submission to the Divine will."

His remains now rest in the beautiful burying-ground of the town where more than fifty years of his life he had lived and labored. His people have erected a neat, white marble monument, with dates, and a motto selected by himself — "Christ is my hope."

FRANCES SARGENT OSGOOD.

Mrs. Osgood was the daughter of Mr. Joseph Locke, for many years a merchant in Boston, but who for a portion of his life was a resident of Gloucester and Hingham, Mass. Her mother, Mrs. Mary (Ingersoll) Foster, the widow of Benjamin Foster, of Gloucester, was of a good family of that town; and to her was Frances indebted to a great extent for her early education. Her elder brother, Aitchison, [see page 139] was a man of high literary attainments, who died at the early age of 38; and her elder half-sister, now Mrs. Ann Maria Wells, has for many years held a high rank among the female writers of America, while her youngest sister, Elizabeth, now Mrs. Harrington, wife of Rev. Henry F. Harrington, of Lawrence, Mass. although she has not so often appeared before the public as an authoress, is a woman nowise inferior to the others. Frances was married at the age of 24, in Boston, to Samuel S. Osgood, a painter, who has attained a high rank as an artist, and who, possessed of a literary taste himself, appreciated the qualities of his gifted wife.

Soon after their marriage they went to London, where her talents soon became known by her contributions to several London Journals, and she made many and lasting friends in several of the distinguished families of the great metropolis. While there she published a small volume, called "The Casket of Fate," and also a collection of her Poems, entitled, "A Wreath of Wild Flowers from New England." Both volumes met with a favorable reception, and were highly commended by the London press.

After a residence of several years, during which Mr. Osgood had acquired a standing as a painter, they returned to Boston in 1839, where he followed his profession, and his wife passed her time in literary pursuits, writing for many of the Magazines, and editing "The Poetry of Flowers and the Flowers of Poetry," and "The Floral Offering." She sometimes wrote prose articles, but poetry was her native language. "On the wing of versification she moved gracefully as a bird, and always in a region of light and love." Of a happy and cheerful spirit, "dark fancies never haunted her pure mind, misanthropy never laid its cold hand, withering on her heart; nor is there a single manifestation of bitter memories and disappointed feelings in her poems."

Happy in herself, she was kindly disposed towards others, and gave life and sunshine to the society in which she moved. Many of her graceful and gentle flowing poems were but the off-hand effusions of a heart at peace with all; the speaking out of the warm and tender feelings of her own joyous spirit, where nature found its appropriate expression in harmonious numbers. In the words of her own poem, the "Spirit of Poetry,"

> "Thou that camest to me in my dreaming childhood,
> Shaping the changeful clouds to pageants rare,
> Peopling the smiling vale and shaded wildwood
> With airy beings, faint yet strangely fair;
> Telling me all the sea-borne breeze was saying,
> While it went whispering thro' the willing leaves."

The peculiar charm of her writings, was the simplicity and harmony, the nâivete with which the passing events of the social circle and of the passing seasons were portrayed in simple rhyme that touched the feelings, and which all could appreciate. It cannot be said that she rose to the sublime, to that deep pathos that startles and wakes the depths of the human soul. She did not summon the Archangel from the glittering throne to minister to her fancies, nor call the spirits of darkness with their shadowy forms to fill up the picture. The wild rose and the daisy, the April shower and the summer breeze, the prattling infant and the wild bird were her ministering spirits. Other female writers, both at home and abroad, have excelled her in portraying the passions, in painting the cloud-capped mountains and the foaming torrent, but as a delineator of the chaste and the beautiful, of those little things which after all make up the grand sum of human happiness, and which enter into and make a part of us all, she had few if any superiors.

After a few years' residence in Boston, Mr. Osgood with his family removed to New York, where they continued to reside with an occasional absence on his professional business. While here Mrs. Osgood enjoyed the advantages of a large circle of the literati, and where she had many warm and dear friends. Admired as she undoubtedly was by the other sex, it is said that no woman ever succeeded in winning more the deep and lasting affection of her own, who worshipped her for her simplicity, her single-heartedness and kindness.

Her health never good became impaired, and in the winter of 1847–8, she became more feeble, and though the next summer she was somewhat improved, in Nov. 1849, she became a confirmed invalid and the tenant of the sick chamber, and thus she continued with the usual fluctuations of consumption through the winter; but the genial month of May wound up the period of her brief existence, and amid the fragrance of the early flowers and the sweet carolings of the birds, she passed from this to a better existence on the 12th of May, 1850, a. nearly 39.

Two little girls, Ellen Frances and Mary Vincent, were left behind, but ere eighteen months were passed, they were both laid beside her at Mount Auburn, and it is pleasant to hope that mother and child are once more in each other's arms in Paradise.

Several editions of her works have appeared, and after her death her friends combined to publish a work called the "Memorial," the proceeds whereof were to be devoted to the erection of a monument to her memory. Many distinguished writers contributed to the work, and a handsome octavo volume made its appearance in 1851. The following poem, of which it does not become me to speak, was written at the request of the lady who edited the Memorial, but the publication falling into the hands of another person, he out of a personal pique, or for reasons not explained, omitted to insert it. It was written in sickness, as referred to in the sixth and seventh stanzas.

A FUNERAL LAY FOR THE GIFTED.

The panting dove hath reached the garner nest,
  Leaving her fledglings at their early meal;
With lifted pinions o'er her snowy breast,
  She fled to seek her rest long ere the vesper peal!

Her tender mate in wonder saw her spread,
  Her unclasped wing to cleave the ether through;
And from his own proud shafts such radiance fled,
  He shivered his pale plumes and longed to follow too.

Woe! that the summer day seemed all too long,
  Thou bird of love, fresh garlanded thy crest;
Thy bosom heaving with the breath of song,
  And fame's proud jewels set redundant on thy breast.

Woe! gentle Minstrel, for the glowing sun,
  That kissed thy brow o'ershadowed by no cloud;
So thou did'st faint with thy rich burthen on,
  While noontide's softest airs its music chords did shroud!

Nor summer beauty, nor the autumn breath,
  When languid airs on homesick flowers recline;
Nor fainting love poising the myrtle wreath,
  May e'er beguile thee more from yonder angel shrine.

As from our midst thy spirit sought the sky,
  Stirring the holy atmosphere around,
I felt thy hallowed presence sweeping by,
  And pressed my own pale lips and bent me to the ground.

Now rising from that posture pallid still,
  I reach my shrunken palm with humble flower,
Some lingering space upon thy grave to fill,
  They mournful deck for thee, who hope a longer hour.

Thus bring we choicest strewments for thy tomb,
  Moist with fresh dews our eyes ne'er cease to weep;
Whose odor shall the sepulchre perfume,
  Where clasping thy fond lyre thou dost too early sleep.

With blossoms sweet bind we the basil leaf,
  And the rich fragrance of Hymettus' thyme,
And folded bud and flower of beauty brief,
  That droop and fall ere touched by winter's early rime.

For loveliest, tenderest things should deck thy grave,
  Whose gushing song was as the melody
Of woodland voices where green branches wave,
  Or lighter carol e'en, of some sweet fledgling free.

Henceforth a living garland binds thy name,
  (Long cherished word from thousand hearts ne'er riven,)
That for thy sake shall be a household claim,
  The gathered flowers of earth yet smelling sweet of heaven.

JANE ERMINA LOCKE.

LOCKES WHOSE PEDIGREES HAVE NOT BEEN ASCERTAINED.

Any person having information relating to any of them, is requested to forward the same to the author, directed to the care of Messrs. James Munroe & Co. Boston.

Henry, was paid 5s. by Richard Russell, Treasurer, 1653.

Philip, his Inventory in Pro. Office in Boston, 1656.

Ann, (his wf.?) admd. to 1 Church in Boston, 14, 12, 1656.

Philip, her son, bap. in same Church, 2, 6, 1657.

Philip Locke, was witness to a deed at Dover, N. H. about 1670 — was he son of Philip and Ann, of Boston, before noted?

Richard, was a resident of Hull, in 1674; perhaps the same who was buried in Boston, 1720–21.

John, was paid by John Hull, Treasurer of Mass. Dec. 10, 1675, £4, 19, 4, and soon afterwards £1, 14, 0. He was prob. a soldier in King Philip's war.

William, was a Chirurgeon in King Philip's war. In the Mass. Archives, Vol. 69, p. 10, is a letter dated Hadley, May 3 or 30, 1676, to Secretary Rawson, requesting the Government to forward him with the greatest speed a supply of medicines and other things for the "poor wounded." Attached to it is a long memorandum of the medicines wanted. It is evident he was a man of education. In the same vol. page 58, is his petition to Government to be paid for his services, and on page 60, are letters from Major Thomas Savage, Captain John Pyncheon, and Captain Mosely, giving evidence of his having performed good service in the army as a Chirurgeon. From his petition and these letters we learn, that he was with the Army at "Mount Hope," "Naragansett Country," "Nippmogg Country," "Mendon," "Quaboag," "Hadley," "Swanzey," "Seakonke," "Rehoboth," and several other places. I can gain no further information respecting him. His name does not appear in any of the histories of the Indian wars.

Abigail, m. Thomas Carter, in Reading, Feb. 19, 1713, and had there Thomas, b. Mh. 21, 1715; Abigail, b. Dec. 21, 1717, and they were probably the same parents who had in Weston, Eliza, b. 1719–20; Benjamin, b. 1722; Anne, b. 1725. See Bond, p. 150.

George, "late of Ipswich," d. at Boston, 1714–15.

Richard, buried at Boston, Jany. 13, 1720–21. [King's Chapel Rec.]

Mary, m. George Traluddia, Aug. 6, 1627, in Boston.

Margaret, pub. to John Russell, Nov. 5, 1730, in Boston. I have supposed the last three were daus. of Joseph, of Lexington. [See pp. 18, 19.]

Martha, pub. to Nathaniel Richardson, Nov. 1, 1727; he d. Ap. 26, 1730; had a son Nathaniel, b. June 11, 1729. A Martha Richardson m. Thomas Flagg, in Boston, July 15, 1734.

John, (the name may be Lake,)(a) m. Mary Crust, in Boston, Sep. 22, 1726.

(a) These names are from the Boston Records, but are so illegible that it is impossible to read them. I have omitted quite a number for that reason. The name of Lac and Lak frequently appear, and it is possible they were intended for Lock.

Edward, with wife Margaret, was a victualler in Boston, in 1718. He owned real estate on Spring Lane, (near Water Street,) which in 1720 he mortgaged for £100 to the Commissioners appointed to issue Bills of Credit. In 1721, he mortgaged the same estate to Martha Balston, which mortgage was cancelled in 1729. In October, 1722, he was indicted for a nuisance, his property being used for a butchery, or for a victualling establishment. He was not convicted, but in Dec. the same year he was again indicted, and he was ordered to take his building down, and pay 40s. In 1718, an indented apprentice of his was brought into Court for refusing to serve his time out, and was ordered by the Court to fulfil his engagements.

LOCKE AND GUNN.

"Married in Athol, (Mass. or N. Y.) Mr. John Gunn to Miss Molly Locke. What is a gun without a lock?" The above is from the Portsmouth, N. H. Oracle, of Feb. 20, 1819. In the same paper of Mh. 6, 1819, appeared the following, copied from the Boston Galaxy:

"There was a Gun, with barrel, stock,
All parts completely furnished,
Except the essential part, a Lock
Well fitted and well burnished.

The Locke was found and fitted on;
Thus 'tis a fair conclusion,
That Locke and Gunn being now made one,
Will do good execution."

NOTE.

Should this volume meet with a favorable reception, the author may at some future time prepare a second part; and he therefore requests that any further information relating to any of the families that have been noticed, may be forwarded to the care of Messrs. James Munroe & Co. (the publishers,) Boston.
